SNOW BUNNIES will find today the answer to their dreams but for the snow-shoveling majority, it's a nightmare. Skies will be party sunny, but it will be windy and colder, with the high only in the upper teens. Tonight will be fair and cold with the low between zero and 10. The sun will be out Sunday, too, when the temperatures will be in the upper teens again. — Page 2.

2 cars plummet to ground; 200 injured

CHICAGO (UPI) — A crowded elevated train hit the rear of another in Chicago's loop at the peak of the rush hour Friday evening, sending two packed cars smashing to the street 20 feet below and leaving two other cars hanging from the tracks. A mounting number of dead and injured was reported.

A Fire Dept. physician, Dr. Joseph Cari, said 16 deaths were confirmed. There were three dead reported at Henrotin Hospital, five at Wesley, one at Cook County Hospital and one at Children's Memorial.

Fire Comr. Robert Quinn estimated about 200 persons were injured, some critically. United Press International counted at least 193 persons taken to seven hospitals.

WHILE TWO cars lay on the snow-slushed street below the el's westbound turn from Wabash Avenue to Lake Street, two more hung off the tracks and passengers were trapped inside until firefighters and police freed them, sometimes by cutting through the cars' roofs with power tools.

The other 10 cars involved remained on the tracks.

There were persons still pinned in the wreckage an hour after the 5:29 p.m. derailment. Acting Mayor Michael Bilandic, at the scene, said it was hoped at least some were alive. A policeman on the scene said, "I doubt it."

The derailment occurred as the el tracks were jammed with trains carrying Loop office and shop workers home for the night. Each car involved contained an estimated 50 to 75 persons, either sitting or standing.

JAMES McDONOUGH, acting chairman of the Chicago Transit Authority, said a six-car train on the Ravenswood line had stopped just after making a 90-degree turn from Wabash Avenue to Lake Street when an eight-car Lake-Dan Ryan train hit it from behind.

The Ravenswood train stayed on the tracks but the second and third cars of the following train went to the street and crashed flat on their sides on Wabash Avenue.

"The Ravenswood train was stopped just beyond the curve for reasons unknown, whether to clear a train or because of a temporary stop of a train going ahead of them," McDonough said.

"THE DAN RYAN train coming in, over to Lake, came up upon him and hit him in the rear, obviously at a slow speed, because there is a 15 miles per hour speed limit maximum.

"Obviously, something went wrong, either human or mechanical failure."

In Washington, the National Transportation Safety Board said it was taking over investigation of the crash.

Restaurants near the crash were turned into emergency clinics. All doctors in the area were summoned to their hospitals.

Dr. Bernard Feldman, director of the emergency room at the Wesley Pavilion of Northwestern Memorial Hospital, said, "I didn't serve in Vietnam, but several staff members have. They said it looked like it — one patient after another."

THERE WERE unconfirmed reports some pedestrians on the crowded streets below were among the casualties.

The northern Loop area was turned into bedlam. Persons who struggled from wreckage of the downed cars ran into State Street bars, restaurants and stores.

Bilandic said, "We believe several people are trapped under one of the cars on the street. There has been motion indicating life and they are trying to get them out and get them medical attention."

BILANDIC SAID emergency medical centers were set up in several nearby restaurants and office building lobbies. All doctors in the area were urged to report to 10 area hospitals to care for the injured.

Mrs. Pauline Luvinski, 47, with blood on her right eye and cut hands, said, "I don't know what happened. All of a sudden the train just started to tip over.

"A man fell right on top of me and there was a lady right next to me. They pulled us out right away. I thought I would die."

Onlookers shudder as el tumbles

by DAVE IBATA

Witnesses first recall the crash — the thunderous concussion that shook buildings in Chicago's Loop. Then cars tumble off the elevated track; two smash to the ground.

Within seconds, 16 riders lay dying, while hundreds of other passengers were crushed against twisted metal, their screams and moans muffled by the walls of the cars.

"I was just standing out front and heard something like an explosion," said Henry Prater, 34, of Chicago. "By the time I looked up, here this el car was slowly falling into the street."

PRATER IS a parking attendant at the Chicago Service Parking Co. lot on the corner of Wabash Avenue and Lake Street, just below the curve where a westbound Lake Street-Dan Ryan el packed with rush-hour commuters rammed the rear of a stopped Ravenswood el Friday afternoon.

Ann Neuman, 21, of Westmont, was eating dinner with a friend at the Lakeview Restaurant, on a corner opposite from the parking lot.

"We were sitting near the window having dinner when we saw the cars coming off the track," Ms. Neuman said. "We ran to the rear of the restaurant. A car landed 10 feet from the window."

INSIDE THE CARS, seats tore loose from their bolts and passengers tumbled head-over-heels. Bodies pressed against more bodies; some fell through shattered windows, only to be crushed between cars and the pavement as the cars settled on their side.

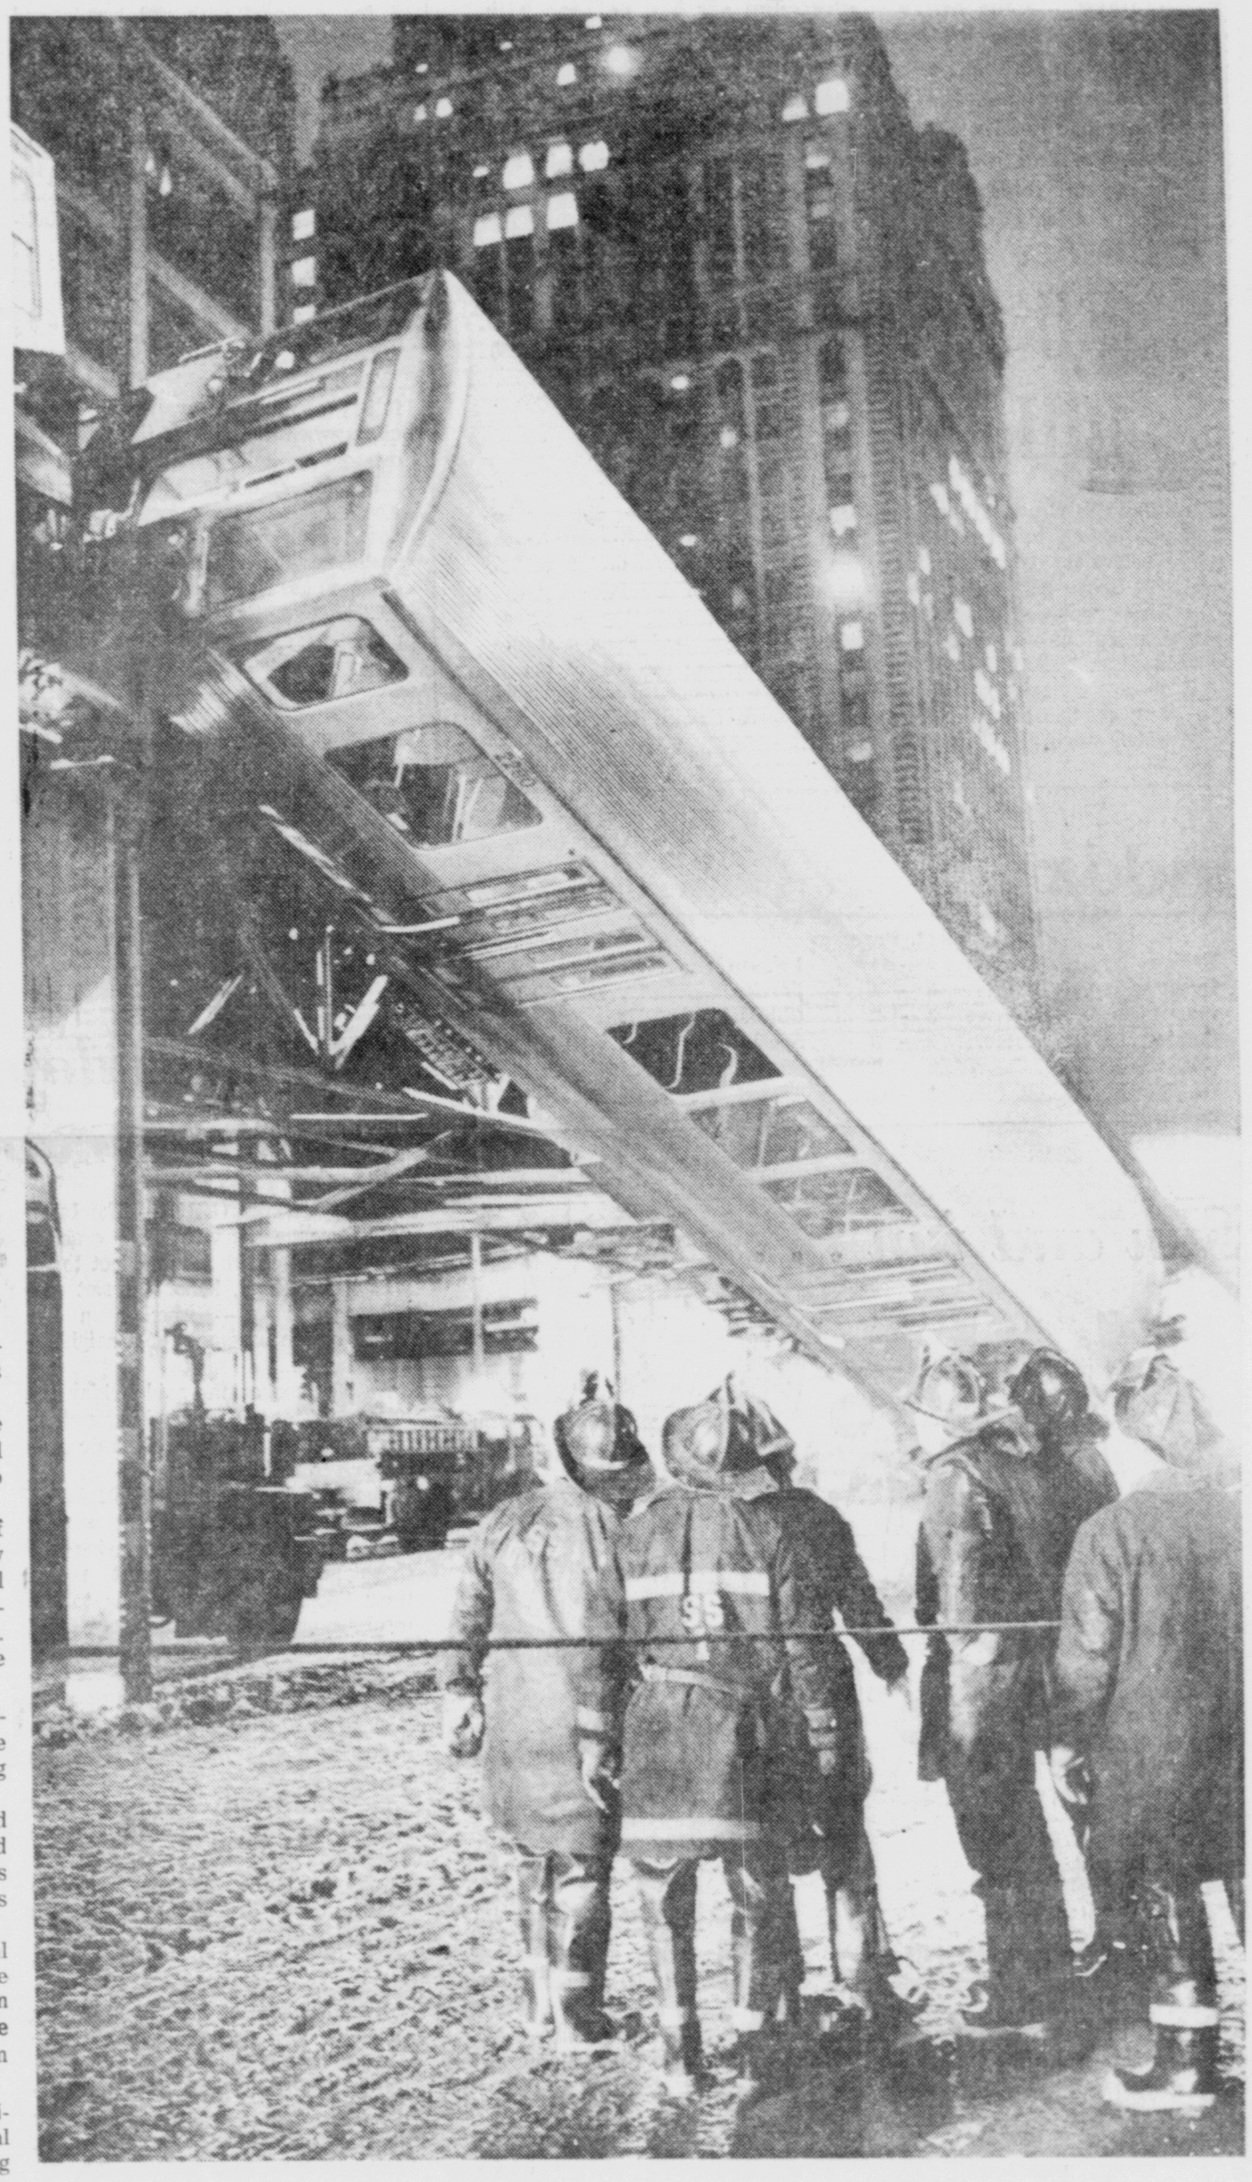

Two cars dangled from the trestle, ends touching the ground. Two other cars broke free from the rest of the train, and landed on their sides in the intersection.

Rescuers pulled passengers from the cars. Those who were free cried, "People are dying in there! People are caught!" said Ms. Neuman.

FIREFIGHTERS PUT injured passengers on stretchers and carried them to nearby stores, restaurants and office buildings to await rides to Chicago hospitals. Michigan Avenue and upper and lower Wacker Drive were closed off to rush-hour traffic to give ambulances free access to the crash scene.

The most seriously hurt victims were taken to hospitals via fire department helicopter, which dodged street lamps to land at the inter-

'Rebels' have hard time getting licenses

Foreign-educated med students a marked breed

by KURT BAER

Lee Hornstein never wanted to be a rebel. He just wanted to be a doctor — a family practice physician in a small Midwestern town.

But Hornstein, like his friends Gary Walsh and Greg Warda, are very nearly outlaws in the eyes of some members of the medical profession.

They have been branded renegades because they wanted to be doctors so bad they were willing to study at a foreign medical school after they were turned down by schools in this country.

AMERICAN MEDICAL schools reject two of every three applicants because of limited enrollment, despite the fact that about half of those rejected are qualified to attend, says Dr. Margaret Bischel, Lutheran General Hospital's director of medical education.

Hornstein, Walsh and Warda recently completed four years of medical school in Mexico. They have returned to this country to fight a battle of time, training and money for an Illinois physician's license.

They are luckier than other graduates of foreign medical schools. They have found help at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, where they are "Americanizing" their medical education.

"I interviewed at approximately 50 different hospitals in six states looking for an internship," Walsh says. "Most places were actually hostile rather than merely indifferent."

IT IS IRONIC that a foreign-born and foreign-educated doctor finds it easier to practice medicine in Illinois than does an American who graduates from a foreign medical school. But state licensing rules have that effect.

Byline report

Kurt Baer

A foreign doctor who comes to Illinois receives an immediate temporary license that allows the doctor to begin a hospital residency, Dr. Bischel says. After a year, the doctor is eligible for a license for private practice.

An American from a foreign medical school, however, must spend at least a year in a hospital program like Lutheran General's before becoming a resident. And while they are learning American hospital procedures they are required to pay tuition to a medical school sponsor.

If they cannot get into a hospital training program, it is even more difficult.

"We are getting a very necessary year of supervised clinical training at Lutheran General," says Hornstein of Hoffman Estates. "It brings us up-to-date in pediatrics, surgery, obstetrics and gynecology and internal medicine."

THE MEDICINE THE three men learned in Mexico is scientifically sound. But the emphasis, because of the schools' large class size, was on textbook training rather than experience.

"The foreign schools tend to keep you in the classroom until you graduate. The American medical schools

THE GENERAL Finance office, 105 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, received an unwelcomed visitor Friday when a car driven by Ruth Gordon, 62, of 296 S. Cedar, Palatine, crashed into the office window. The car had collided with another vehicle driven by Debra Schmidt, 20, of 348 N. Oak St., Palatine, police said. No injuries were reported to office personnel, but Ms. Schmidt was treated for a broken nose at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, and Ms. Gordon was treated for a pain in her head and released. She was ticketed for failing to yield from a driveway.

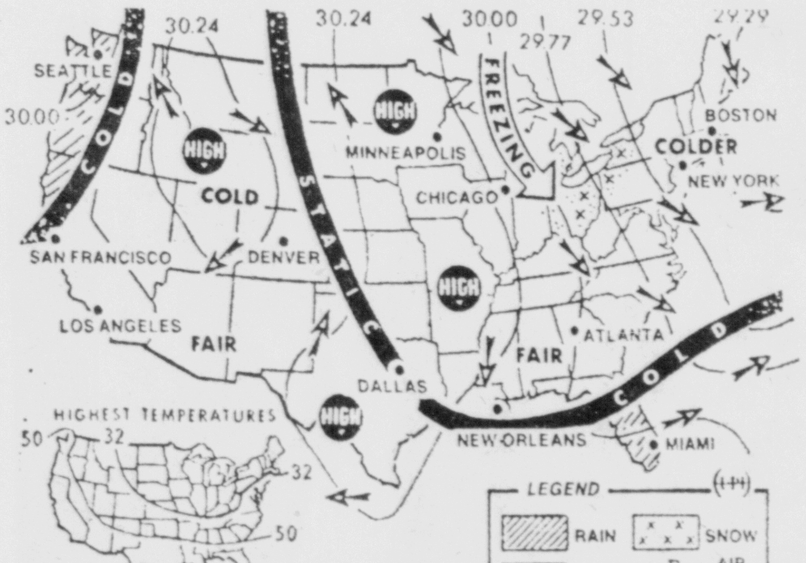

Elk Grove man, 19, killed by train

An Elk Grove Village man was killed Friday after the car he was riding in was struck by an eastbound Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train in Villa Park. Mike A. Carlin, 19, of 515 Elk Grove Blvd., died at Memorial Hospital of Du Page County, Elmhurst. Also injured in the crash was John S. Voyva, 23, of Addison, who was listed in stable condition late Friday at the hospital. Police did not know who was driving the car. A police spokesman said the driver of the car went around a lowered gate with red flashing lights. Both men were thrown from the car, which was dragged 143 feet.

Stamp of love

It's that time of year again, when places like Loveland, Colo., and Hartland, Wis., are inundated with requests for their postmarks

by NANCY GOTLER

Is your Cupid pooped? Do your Valentines not rhyme? Have heart. Volunteers in several cities around the country are waiting to put pizzazz back into your prose and love into your life.

All you have to do is send your Valentine cards to Loveland, Colo., to be postmarked with a poem. Or, if you prefer, Loves Park, Ill., Hartland, Wis., Valentine, Neb. or Loveland, Ohio.

Nearly 200,000 Valentines are expected in those towns, where they will be hand canceled with tender loving care and mailed to loved ones after being stamped with red hearts and poems.

LOVELAND, COLO., is the most popular poetic postmark. Last year the city of 28,000 received 181,000 Valentines to be stamped and mailed to every state in the country and as far away as Tokyo.

The post office requests that packages of Valentines be sent first class to the postmaster. The local zip code is 80537.

"We've had one lady from Dallas who has sent us her Valentines every year since 1949," said Jack Fellows, superintendent of deliveries. "And a family in Cleveland has been sending them since 1953."

Valentine, Neb., zip code 69201, already has received cards from every state and even England, which will pe stamped with a red heart and the date.

THE POSTMASTER at Loves Park, zip code 61111, and Hartland, zip code 53029, expect to receive several hundred Valentines this year.

Frances DeFosset, postmaster at Loveland, Ohio, zip code 45140, said, "It makes it more intimate to think that someone went to all that trouble to send a card."

So for many this year, the secret to Cupid's success may lie in a stamped message sent from far away.

Just great for snowballs

To 9 and 10-year-olds, a fresh snowfall is a winter extravaganza — especially when the snow is the first good one for snowballs and snowmen.

But for motorists Friday, the snow-covered streets made for slippery and hazardous driving. Before the evening rush hour, more than three inches had fallen on the Northwest suburbs.

Today's outlook is for frigid temperatures expected to drop to near zero this morning. The high will be near 20.

Sunday is expected to be sunny and will lead the way toward a warming trend through early next week.

As for Friday, it was a four-star day, according to local school kids who plastered the snow into sculptures of all kinds. That, of course, took place after school.

"Our teacher doesn't let us touch the snow," said Susan Shikata, an Arlington Heights third grader.

Snow boy?

She and her classmates were packing the snow onto a wall at Westgate School, 1211 W. Grove St., Arlington Heights. They also were forming the snow into letters spelling the name of their teacher, Janet Stoner.

IRS crackdown on bingo, keno, slot machine winners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service has cracked down on gamblers who neglect to report large bingo, keno and slot machine winnings — whether in Las Vegas or the basement of a neighborhood church.

An IRS spokesman said Friday the amount of money involved is "awfully big," but an accurate estimate was difficult to make.

The IRS regulations, which take effect March 1, stipulate that persons who win $600 or more playing the three popular games must report their Social Security number to the establishment before they are paid off.

THE ESTABLISHMENT would then report the winnings to the IRS on a new form — called a W-2G — which would then be checked against the winners' tax return.

The same system currently is used at the nation's race tracks, the spokesman said.

Keno is a bingo-type game played in Nevada hotels and gambling casinos that has grown in popularity in recent years. It is possible to win up to $25,000.

Large winners at the slot machines are rare, but an occasional winner may pocket several thousand dollars.

THE IRS spokesman said the new rules would create more paperwork for large gambling operations, but "they are used to it because they already file information returns from games such as blackjack and roulette."

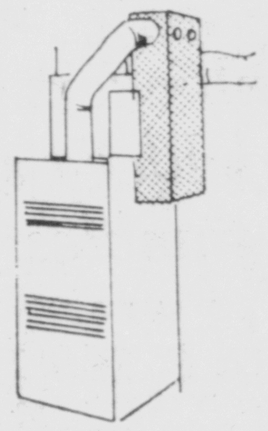

Bingo is played nationwide under the sponsorship of churches, schools and other small organizations. Officials could not estimate the amount of money that changes hands, but a recent investigation by Fairfax County, Va., officials has determined that just one boys' club grossed nearly $306,000 in 1976.

In the past, the spokesman said, churches and other bingo operators have not been required to file an information return.

The IRS regulations state that in determining whether the $600 reporting floor is reached: the winnings can't be reduced by the amount wagered, winnings which are not in the form of money must be reported at their fair market value, all of the player's winnings from one bingo or keno game must be added up and winnings and losses from any other wagering transaction shall not be taken into account.

'And all of a sudden we were . . . flying'

Spectators shudder at sight

by JOANN VAN WYE

"There was this boom and all of a sudden we were sideways flying through the air."

Dick Lane was one of the lucky ones. For 25 minutes he and dozens of fellow passengers were jammed inside a crowded CTA car dangling over the edge of the tracks.

"I was scared of falling but there wasn't much time. We knew it was coming and we just held on tight," he said. "People weren't thrown around too bad.The fall was slow and there was enough time to brace yourself.

"I FELT REAL calm as soon as the car was steady but the car in front of us went down and was flat as a pancake," said Lane, 201 Washington Blvd., Oak Park.

"There was some hysterical sobbing and cries of 'O Jesus, O God,' but everyone in my car was OK except for some bruises.

"The guys were yelling, 'Don't move, Don't move. They'll get us out.' "

"We were able to open the door going from car to car to clear the way for the firemen. You could see the car in front of us was a mass of jangled metal," he said.

"We didn't move around too much because we didn't know how steady the car was.

"You could smell something burning and I thought something was on fire but it was just the torches they were using to cut people out of the train.

"BY THE TIME the firemen came to get us we were cracking jokes. There wasn't anything else you could do.

"When the firemen came up with the snorkel they said, 'women and children first' just like the movies.

"I helped three women clamber to safety and then there was no one left but me and this big guy so I figured I would get out.

It was nearly 25 minutes after the crash before Lane was set safely on the street. The firefighters told him to give his name to someone from the CTA, but there was no one to be found in the confusion.

section of upper-level Wacker Drive and Wabash Avenue and picked up the injured.

Those less hurt walked around dazed, in shock, said a Chicago patrolman who arrived at the accident scene five minutes after the collision.

"WE TRIED TO assist the injured, loading them on stretchers, putting them in ambulances," said the patrolman, who asked not to be identified. "There were so many people — police and firemen — coming in to help they were getting in each other's way."

Within a half, hour, the passengers had been removed from the scene.

Chicago Fire Comr. Robert Quinn appeared on the scene, dressed in firefighter's garb topped by a tattered white helmet. He surveyed the wreckage, shrugged and said to reporters, "Well, we've had fatal el accidents before."

Ms. Neuman and her friend, Pat Bartels, 25, of Villa Park, meanwhile comforted the passengers who had escaped serious injury.

"WE MOSTLY consoled people, wiped the blood off their faces and hands, and talked to them," said Ms. Bartels. "We also called their families for them."

Injuries mostly were cuts and bruises, Ms. Neuman said. Some complained of broken ribs and chest pains, while others wept hysterically or walked around as though mesmerized, she said.

"Some would grab your arm, and say, 'I lost a show,' or 'I lost a package,' or I left a friend in there and I have to go back to find him," Ms. Neuman said.

MS. BARTELS MADE two telephone calls for injured passengers' families. One family's response surprised her, she said.

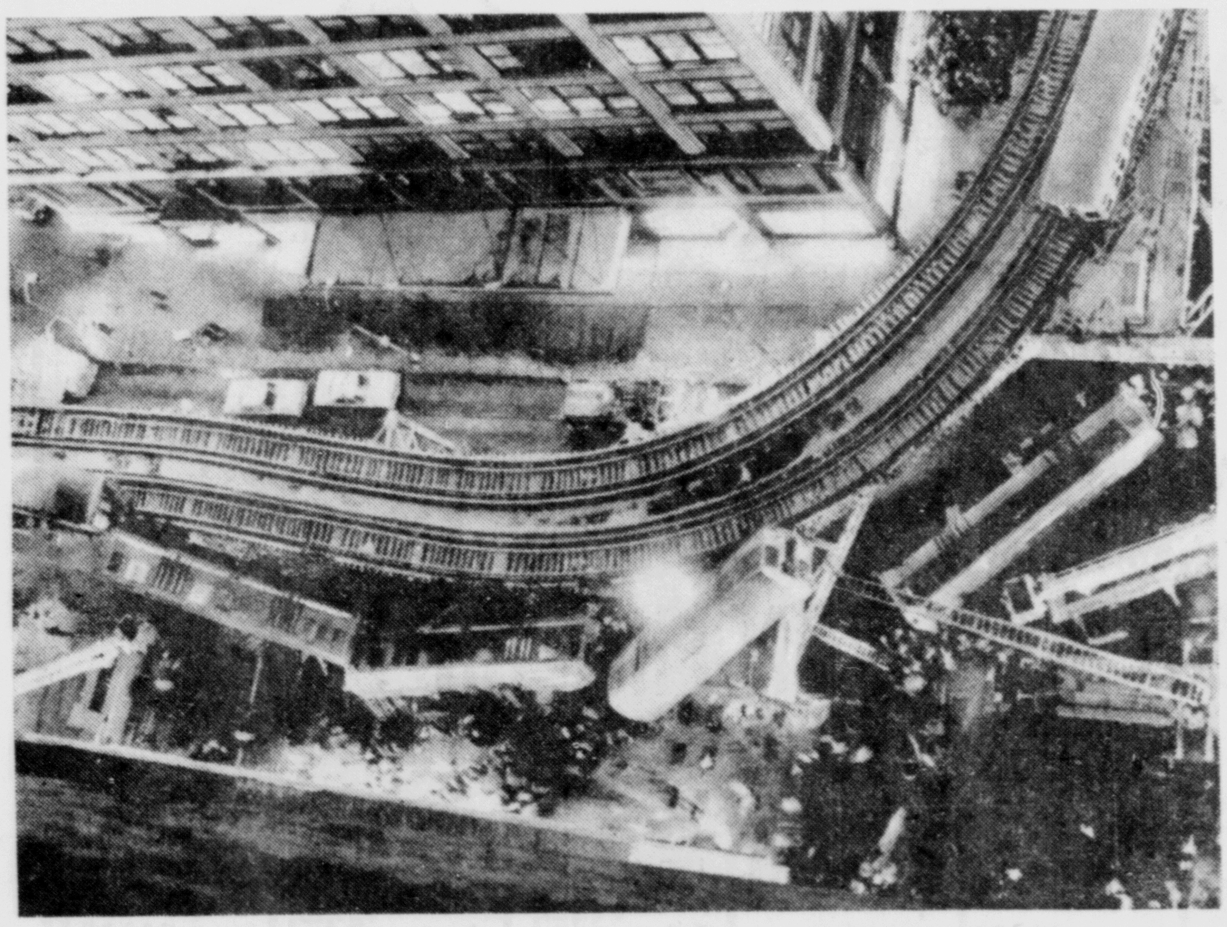

"I called one lady's family, and they just said, 'Well, she's got the car — can't she get to the car and drive home?' " Ms. Bartels said. " 'We can't get there; there's nothing we can do,' they said."

Ms. Neuman loaned 20 cents to a 7-year-old boy, who had been alone on the el and had escaped injury. The boy called his mother to tell her he was OK, and then rode in an ambulance to a Chicago hospital for a checkup just to make sure, Ms. Neuman said.

BY 8 P.M. IT was over. All the dead and injured had been taken to Chicago hospitals; all the uninjured had been sent home. Newsmen and onlookers trickled away, until only firefighters and police remained to clean up crumpled metal and broken glass.

Ms. Neuman and Ms. Bartels went to Prater's parking lot office to retrieve their car. They waited inside the tiny, heated shack while an attendant went for their auto. They talked about their experiences.

Tears welled up in Ms. Neuman's eyes. She said, "It was all too traumatic for me."

Cars tumbled like toys and fell onto Wabash Avenue.

4 fatal accidents mar el's history

In 40 years, the Chicago street and elevated railways have had four crashes in which passengers were killed, prior to Friday night.

A street-level collision between a trolley car and a gasoline truck May 25, 1950, at 62nd Place and State Street killed 34 persons.

On Nov. 24, 1936, 10 persons were killed and 234 injured on the Howard Street elevated line on the North Side.

Eight persons died Nov. 5, 1956, and 635 were injured when a CTA train on the Howard line collided with a standing North Shore interurban at the Wilson Avenue station.

Two Jefferson Park line trains crashed Jan. 9, 1976, killing one person and injuring 413 others.

A CTA train struck another near 40th street and Calumet Avenue on Sept. 18, 1969, injuring 300 persons. On May 10, 1974, 225 were injured when a CTA train struck the rear of another at 29th and State.

Skobel lives life to its fullest

Sammy Skobel

• Sammy Skobel, owner of Hot Dogs Plus in Mount Prospect, has got a lot going for him these days. Skobel, a former roller derby champion, is blind, but that never has kept him from enjoying life to its fullest. He'll be skiing in the Sun Championship this weekend at the Pine Knob Ski Area in Michigan, in an event for blind and partially blind skiers.

Skobel was busy last week with film crews from CBS-TV who followed him to his snack shop, 34 S. Main St., his home in Mount Prospect and speaking engagements at places such as Buffalo Grove High School where he told kids "they should make the most out of life."

The Feb. 26 segment of Channel 2's "The People" will feature a half-hour special on Sammy Skobel, tentatively titled "Slammin' Sammy Skobel." The show will air at 5 p.m.

• It was one of those bizarre, freaky incidents most people never would dream could happen in a supermarket. But, there he was Thursday in a Seattle, Wash., food store. A stranger handing out neatly stacked piles of $1, $5, $10 and $20 bills. Store employes asked him to distribute the dough just the other side of the cash registers, and when it was all gone he disappeared.

"He was absolutely handsome," said one woman who took a $20 bill. "He had a nice figure. He was dark and appeared to be East Indian." Everyone was asking "Who was that masked man?" And in he distance they heard, "Hi Ho, Silver, away . . ."

U.S. asked to end kids' pornography

A leader of a children's welfare group in Chicago Friday urged congressional action to end the multi-million dollar "child pornography industry that exploits and abuses hundreds of runaways and other children." Dr. Judianne Densen-Gerber, president of the Odyssey Institute, a national movement to prevent child abuse and neglect, asked that Congress establish a cabinet post to protect the rights of children. Densen-Gerber, New York City, said of the estimated 1 million runaways each year, at least 300,000 boys between the ages of eight and 16 become involved in the production of pornographic books, films or magazines. Densen-Gerber, who called Chicago one of the "bad cities," said children under the age of eight who become involved in pornography as usually allowed by their parents or guardians to do so. She said older children are usually runaways too young to find any other means to support themselves.

Pucinski seeks GOP backing

Chicago Ald. Roman Pucinski, who last Monday was rejected by Democrats for that party's endorsement in the Chicago mayoral election will meet with Republican slatemakers Monday. Louis Kasper, chairman of the Chicago Republican Central Committee, said Pucinski asked to appear before the group. "He is still running as a Democrat, we may support him though, Kasper said Republicans have been scrambling to find a candidate since former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie decided Wednesday not to run.

Besides Pucinski, the GOP officials will hear from a list of relatively unknown Republicans who have expressed an interest in getting the party's backing for the special June 7 mayoral election.

The list is "topped" by Mitchell Kobelinski, a top official with the Small Business Administration during the Ford Administration.

In addition to Kobelinski, Jack Mueller, a former Chicago policeman who once ran for Cook County Sheriff, former State Rep. Robert Dunne and several other lesser known candidates are expected to appear, Kasper said.

In other developments, fiery former Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan said he will be a candidate for the April 19 Democratic mayoral primary.

Former Chicago Ald. William Singer is also believed to be on the verge of joining the race.

Illinois Comptroller Michael J. Bakalis Friday said the economic outlook for the next five months has improved slightly but "we're not out of the woods by any means." He said the state must still spend carefully. "Last November, (former Gov. Daniel) Walker predicted the state would complete this fiscal year with an available balance of $100 million," said Bakalis in his first monthly report on the state's fiscal condition. "Last month my predecessor (George Lindberg) suggested it might be less than $50 million. "I am optimistic the eventual balance will fall closer to the upper limit of this range," said Bakalis. The comptroller said the General Revenue Fund was recently bolstered by money from two unexpected sources. The state won the right to charge sales tax on the federally-taxed portion of gasoline prices, freeing $20 million, and Illinois received $17 million under a new federal public works law.

Prison reorganization urged

A major reorganization of the state's prison population to relieve overcrowding and tension was outlined Friday by Charles Rowe, acting director of the Dept. of Corrections. The proposal, if approved by Gov. James Thompson, would reorganize correctional centers around the state to free up to 600 more beds for adult offenders. The plan calls for the Geneva Youth Center to be changed to a 300-bed facility for women. That center would become the only one for women in Illinois and would have women transferred from Dwight and Vienna correctional centers. The Dwight center would be changed from an all-female prison to a medium-security institution for males over 40. Valley View Center, in Kane County, now houses 170 juveniles. The proposal would transfer youth from Valley View to the youth center at St. Charles and other institutions around the state. Youthful offenders from Joliet, Sheridan, Vienna and Vandalia centers would then be moved into Valley View. The St. Charles School for Boys, with a current population of 220, would be increased to 400 under the new plan. The recommendations are intended to increase the amount of space available to accommodate criminals sentenced to state prisons because there is currently a shortage of this type of space in the state.

Heat's on Aledo to 'cool it'

Residents of Aledo, in western Illinois, have been warned to cut back on use of natural gas or be slapped with an $80 fine per user. The Aledo City Council approved a resolution asking the town's 3,300 residents to turn down thermostats to between 55 and 60 degrees at night to combat the effects of the severe winter weather. Mayor William Beer said Michigan-Wisconsin Pipeline Co., supplier of gas, advised that the town used more natural gas than had been allotted. Beer called for an immediate cutback of 20 per cent. "If citizens fail to comply, penalties of $80 per user could be imposed," Beer said, "and if we have severe weather in the next month or two, the penalties could be higher."

'Rebel' med students carry mark

are just the opposite," says Warda, who attended the Autonomous University of Guadalajara. "It would be very difficult to begin my residency without the individual guidance I receive at Lutheran General."

Hornstein, who attended the same university, says his hospital experience in medical school "consisted of giving healthy students physicals for school. We only read about X-ray machines and EKG's, but there were none on which to learn."

The students feel fortunate to be at Lutheran General because they have a fairly certain course to follow to their license. But they decry the fact that the hospital training, called a fifth pathway program, is difficult to find in Illinois and not always respected.

"THE FIRST TIME I contacted the University of Illinois about fifth pathway I was treated as if I was some kind of criminal," Hornstein says. "I was looked upon as an extra burden."

The students are required to pass a national board test before entering a ffith pathway program, so their medical knowledge should not be an issue.

"So many foreign graduates are passing the national boards. . .they can't say we don't know enough," Warda says. "So now they're saying that we are somehow bypassing the system."

Dr. Bischel says it is "crazy" for hospitals and medical schools to refuse to help foreign graduates.

"The country's teaching hospitals are filled with foreign doctors and yet the hospitals are not interested in helping Americans who graduated from foreign schools get back into the system," she says.

Rural and inner city America, where doctors are scarce, are the real losers, Walsh says.

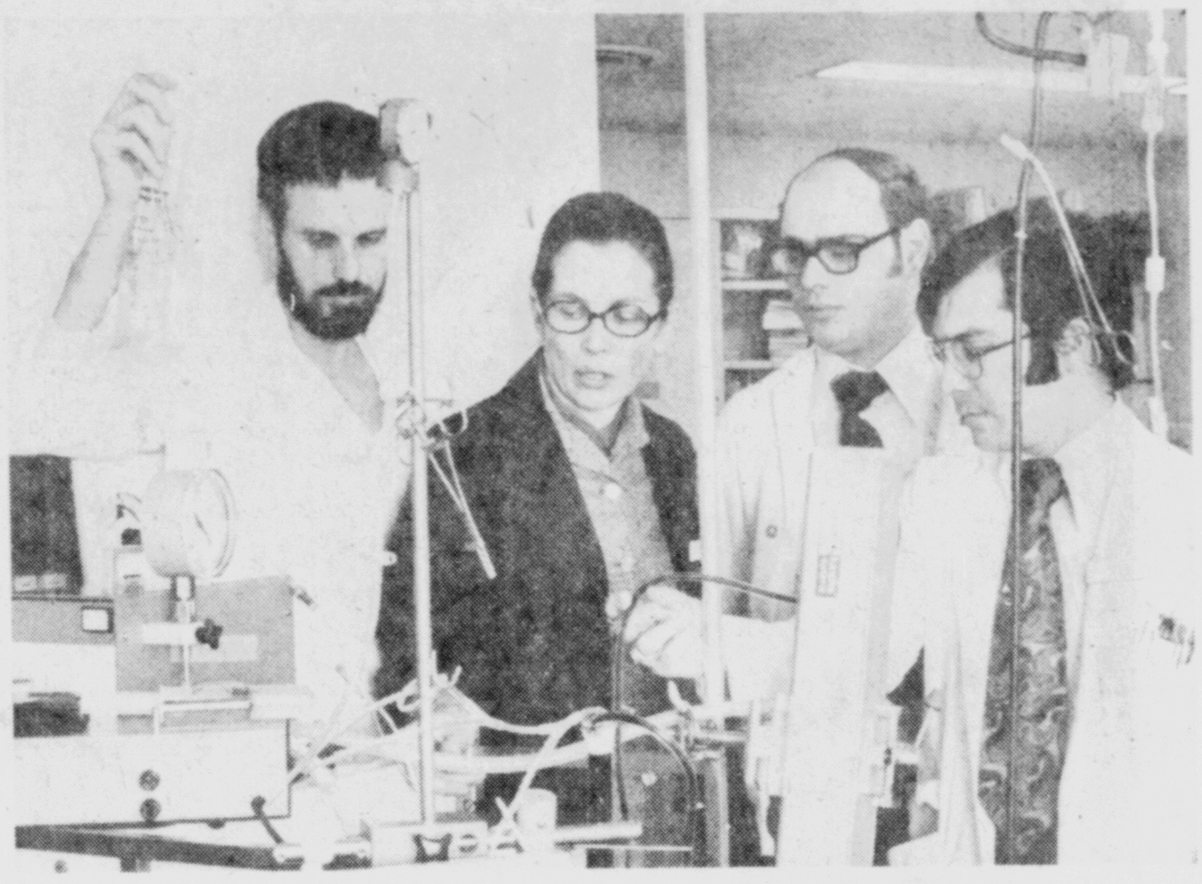

"I'VE LIVED IN TOWNS of 850 and 3,000 persons and I know they don't have the doctors they need, or there's a long wait to see a doctor or inadequate care."

The University of Illinois, one of the largest medical schools in the country, has slightly more than 300 students in a class, Walsh says, compared with the 6,000 students who were in his class in Mexico City. The difference, he says, is "absurd."

Learning medicine in a Mexican medical school was frustrating at times, Warda and Hornstein say. There were the problems of language, culture, bureaucracy and finances. But the biggest uncertainty, they say, was not knowing if and when they'd be able to begin U. S. practice.

Lutheran General is one of only five hospitals in Illinois that offer a fifth pathway program. State legislation establishing the program will expire in September 1978, and Dr. Bischel worries that it will not be extended.

Of the 750 students in Hornstein's and Warda's graduating class in Guadalajara, about 300 were Americans, 28 of whom were from Illinois. Hornstein says he knows of only 16 who got into fifth pathway programs.

Mikva ready to tackle his 4th term

ABNER MIKVA

WASHINGTON — The residents of the 10th Congressional District may find their representative here less flamboyant during the next two years, but the change will be only a restyling.

"I hope that is what it is," said U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva,D-10th, as he moved into new office space on Capitol Hill.

Mikva is quick to admit that the Democratic administration of President Jimmy Carter will change the way he operates in the Congress.

"IT REQUIRES a lot of discipline. You mute the criticisms. You don't get up on the floor and denounce the programs of your administration if you want to have any influence in what is being done," he said.

But the Evanston Democrat sees the change as an advantage.

"It is a two-way street, the fact of the matter is I had no chance for input under Nixon's programs. A lot of the Cabinet officials are former colleagues and friends that I know. I will have a chance for input now on a different level," he added.

Mikva already has some concerns about the new administration, however, mostly the initial tax reform proposals.

"I HAVE SOME strong concerns about Mr. Carter's proposal for a tax decrease because I think it is coming at the wrong time, wrong amounts and wrong shape."

"I hope to influence the decision in favor of a job program and reduce the size of the tax cut," he said.

As he starts his fourth Congressional term, Mikva sees room for more reform in the U.S. House.

"We are working on ethics policy now and I was able to push some rule changes that will eliminate some forms of delaying tactics," he said.

On the legislative front, Mikva intends to use the new session of Congress to push for more changes in the federal regulatory agencies.

"This is the time we have regulatory reform. I think I can have some initiative on the appointment process and where do we get our regulators from?" he said.

THE QUESTION of government officials jumping from the industry they will regulate and back again draws Mikva's greatest attention.

"I have some proposals to stop that swinging door and keep them from being a haven for broken down politicians," he said.

Mikva will continue on the powerful, tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee in the new session. He said the time-consuming position may limit his ability to pursue other legislative programs.

Byline report

Steve Brown

"At times I feel a little isolated on Ways and Means, I like being a generalist. It is a very busy committee and it drys up much of the time I have spent on gun control and other matters," he said.

He added that he hopes to push for a simplification of the tax code and admits that the last congressional effort to do the same thing deserves a "black mark."

"I AM AFRAID we have made it more complicated for the taxpayer to understand the law," he said.

While urban population shifts continue to put more voters into suburban areas, such as his own district that includes a portion of Des Plaines, Mikva has reservations about a suburban congressional voting bloc developing.

"I would hate to see the suburbs lining up against the city folk or combining with them against the rural congressional district," he said.

Mikva also is concerned about the growing contention that Northern and Midwestern states are getting less federal aid than warm weather states.

"I would hate to see a division between the Sun Belt versus the Snow Belt. I understand the complaints, but the solutions to the problems are solutions to the problems of the country. They are entitled to redress because the solutions will solve national problems," he said.

"I find something very significant in the title. It isn't Illinois representative to the United States Congress. It is United States Representative from Illinois.

"That says our role is a national role. Every time we vote it affects the people in California just as much as it does in Illinois," he said.

2 face drug trafficking charge

Two suburban men are scheduled to appear in federal court in March to answer charges of trafficking in cocaine and marijuana to Northwest suburbanites.

One of the alleged traffickers arrested is a Prospect Heights man who hires himself out as a bodyguard to such celebrities as Frank Sinatra and Elton John.

Charged in federal indictments with possession and transportation across state lines of illicit drugs are Rocco Filippinio, 33, of 1011 Wildwood Dr., Prospect Heights; and John DeCorrado, of Elmwood Park.

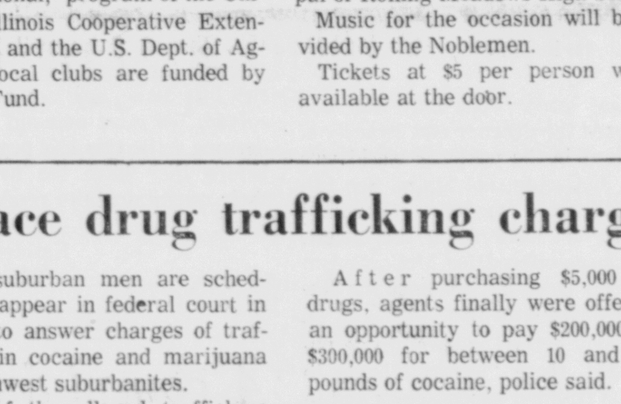

Police said an investigation initiated in the fall of 1976 by Arlington Heights undercover police traced drug traffic back to Filippinio and DeCorrado.

After purchasing $5,000 in drugs, agents finally were offered an opportunity to pay $200,000 to $300,000 for between 10 and 20 pounds of cocaine, police said.

Agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration of the U.S. Dept. of Justice arrested Filippinio and DeCorrado at O'Hare Airport Dec. 12 after the pair allegedly brought back from Florida 433 grams of cocaine with a street value of $300,000; 34.75 pounds of marijuana with a street value of $30,000; $25,956 in cash; and a loaded .38-caliber automatic pistol.

Filippinio and DeCorrado are free on $200,000 bond while awaiting trial in the U.S. District Court in Chicago.

The way we see it

Self-service gas needed in state

Chicago Ald. Chris Cohen wants to help us all help ourselves — to Chicago gasoline pumps.

Cohen has asked the Chicago City Council to pass an ordinance that would make it legal for motorists to pump their own gas at service stations in the city. Such a move would save consumers 2 to 4 cents a gallon on the gasoline they buy, he says.

We agree with Ald. Cohen that self-service stations are a good idea. But we think the action properly should come from the Illinois General Assembly.

Forty-six other states now permit self-service gas stations, including all of the states that border Illinois.

Arguments that self-service is a fire hazard or that it will shut down service station garages have not been borne out.

For reasons best known to themselves, gasoline dealer associations have successfully blocked attempts at self-service in Illinois. One possible reason is that the dealers are afraid gasoline wholesalers will have an unfair advantage if the dealers' role is diminished by self-service.

The fact that 46 other states seem to have coped with this possibility should provide reassurance to anxious dealers.

Cohen's proposal is to make self-service a legal option in Chicago. It would not be mandatory for service station operators. In Wisconsin, many dealers offer both self-serve and full-service pumps, leaving the choice up to the motorist.

New taxes are a popular source of revenue for government. Cook County recently passed a penny-a-gallon gas tax, and the Regional Tranportation Authority is talking about tacking on 2 to 3 cents a gallon in additional tax.

The least our government in Springfield can do is give consumers who want to save a few cents a gallon by pumping their own the legal right to do so.

Self-service should not vary with city or county lines. On this proposition, Cohen agrees. He sees allowing self-service in Chicago as a way of forcing the state to act.

We think Illinois legislators should be able to recognize the advantage of self-service by themselves, and should get started bringing Illinois into step with its sister states.

Court must lead reform

The Illinois Supreme Court has apparently backed away from leading the state toward meaningful reform of the way judges are selected.

Recent reports indicate a four-member majority on the court has rejected plans by the three newly elected justices to set up n o n-partisan screening committees in the state's five judicial districts to screen candidates for vacancies on the lower courts.

The high court has the responsibility for filling vacancies which occur in lower state courts and in the past have chosen candidates based on a "gentleman's agreement" allowing each justice to have his nominees confirmed. Many justices have gotten their candidates for vacancies from political "bosses."

The three new justices, William Clark and James Dooley from Cook County and Thomas Moran of Lake County, have set up screening committees to recommend three candidates for each vacancy in their districts. The committee's work would be a step closer toward true merit selection of judges and the elimination of partisan politics from the judiciary.

The veteran judges on the court, however, have rejected the idea. Chief Justice Daniel Ward of Chicago has asked the Chicago Bar Assn. to screen candidates for him, but the bar association's screening in the past has been criticized for being politicized and for catering to established power.

The new judges can continue w i t h their committees, of course, but if the four veteran justices band together to block their appointments, they will be helpless to carry out their plans.

Dooley, Clark and Moran have the right idea in trying to take appointments out of the hands of power brokers. They deserve the cooperation of their fellow justices so that the interest of all the people of the state will be served.

The three justices' idea may even lead the way to real merit selection of judges in Illinois, something that will require a Constitutional amendment and the backing of all who want to e n d power politics in the judiciary.

Anthony Eden: he learned history's lessons too well

Paul Greenberg

Let him be remembered as the dapper young Englishman who saw through European diplomacy right to its black heart back in the Thirties, and therefore through the puny fancies of those graybeards who assured him they could do business with Herr Hitler.

Like Churchill, Anthony Eden could see what was coming. He fastened on the most dramatic way to deliver his w a r n i n g that, without massive rearmament and a hard stand soon, war was inevitable. He walked out of the government. It was a warning appreciated only too late, and when he was ushered back in, the war was under way.

It is a common temptation among those who have achieved a measure of greatness early to play out the same script again. Almost as soon as he succeeded Churchill as prime minister in his own right, a no longer young Anthony Eden yielded to that temptation.

THE PRINCIPLE involved seemed the same, but the players and circumstances and times were not. Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal was not exactly the threat Hitler had posed. And the Anglo-French expedition to seize the canal was explained as a kind of peace-keeping force innocently interposed between Israelis and Egyptians rather than an honest defense of the canal.

The principle involved was lost in the conspiratorial arrangements. The United States would not back the Europeans. The military expedition was botched. And the Russians began rattling their rockets. Mr. Eden had to go. This time he had muddled, and not through.

AND SO HE WAS made Lord Avon. Lord Avon spent much of his time, entirely too much, explaining. Lord Avon's explanations grew longer, more bitter and slightly out-of-it. Indeed, Lord Avon slowly came to resemble the old bores young Anthony Eden had seen through so clearly — portentous, harrumphing, slightly mystified that young people didn't listen to him more closely — almost a stage Englishman.

Yes, let's remember the man as Anthony Eden — young, proud, incisive. And try to learn from him, and from what he became. "The main weakness in Eden," said The Economist on his death, "was his conventionality. He did not just master the hard-won lessons of the 1930s; the lessons mastered him — even when it was a different crisis and a different Britain that he still expected to respond."

That is a judgment applicable to Americans as well in this Post-Age. Post-Cold War, Post-Vietnam. It has become conventional to discuss, or just to assume, the lessons of those periods. Usually that means to forget their triumphs and exaggerate their defeats. The lessons slip by in books, articles, political speeches, news commentaries, idle conversations.

ONE LESSON IS that Vietnam was a mistake. Not the failure to use American power to its fullest there but the use of it at all. See Cyrus Vance's brief but unchallenged testimony to that effect in his confirmation hearings as secretary of state: The mistake of Vietnam was to try to impose democratic values on an alien culture. Or to put it plain, all men are created equal except gooks. But of course the lesson is most easily absorbed when it is not put plain, when it is insinuated, not said outright.

Another lesson: The only Joe who threatened the decency and security of Americans in the post-war world was named McCarthy, not Stalin. See Lillian Hellman's memoir, Scoundrel Time, for an example of this genre. The excuses offered for McCarthyism are rightly despised; the ones for Stalinism wrongly accepted.

Regularly echoed, allowed to go unchallenged, these "lessons" begin to enter the political subconscious and to master a new generation, rather than letting it master them. Only the unexamined lesson seems worth absorbing. One need not review the life of Anthony Eden, Lord Avon, to be impressed by the danger of drifting into a pattern of behavior uncritically. One need only listen closely to today's conventionalities.

Scientists, politicians must team up on energy crisis

by RAY CROMLEY
(Commentary)

We have now learned that most of the advice the nation's scientists have been giving the White House and Congress these past two years on solving the energy crunch has been so wildly contradictory and impractical it has been impossible for anyone to come up with a workable program.

This in considerable measure is the reason we are today even more dangerously dependent on oil from the petroleum monopoly than at the time of the worldwide boycott and why, energywise, we are living on borrowed time.

For one, scientists could not agree on priorities. And thus it now appears that we may be throwing most of our research money into the wrong channels, and strangling areas of the greatest promise.

AS ONE EXAMPLE, technical men working on pure theory saw in coal a relatively quick substitute for oil in a variety of operations. The U.S. has coal in abundance. Coal liquefaction and shale oil were the talk of scientific conferences. Never mind that coal producers said that practical production problems and high costs would make shale and liquefaction at competitive rates a long time in coming.

The scientists too, in their enthusiasm for coal, have only recently begun to consider just how great may be the envronmental problems associated with a major increase in coal output — and the costs involved in ameliorating damage to the environmental problems associated with a major increase in coal output — and the costs involved in ameliorating damage to the environment in large-scale strip mining.

Today also, the scientists are beginning to find unexpected problems associated with all other major roads to greater energy self-sufficiency — whether it be nuclear fission or fusion, breeder or non-breeder, geothermal, solar. All, including solar power, may create unwanted changes in the environment, the scientists now say.

IT NOW APPEARS we may run seriously short of energy worldwide before we solve the social-environmental and commercial problems necessary to expand alternate sources, such as coal, and to develop new sources, such as breeder reactors and solar energy, on a scale sufficiently large to meet our energy needs.

In the long run, the problems undoubtedly can be solved, though at considerably higher cost than energy today. But the social, environmental, political and engineering adjustments, and the consequent delays, will mean that sometime in the interim period — that is, in the next 30 to 40 years — there may be a most serious energy shortage worldwide.

The only way to make ends meet, a growing number of scientists now say, will be through the rapid development and adoption of much more efficient means of using energy, and adjusting our needs so that we don't increase our energy requirements at the fast pace of the recent past.

YET JUST A year ago, a prominent government engineer was all but laughed off the platform by the chairman at a major scientific meeting for suggesting just this approach.

The problem here, as in economics, is that the scientists too often live in a world of their own. The politicans also. And the producers. And those working on environmental protection. Each develops a program to protect or promote what their particular group believes in, independent of the others. The programs don't mesh. The groups end up in conflict.

The truth is, of course, we need in government, and in private society, more teams which include a variety of legitimate interests, teams that will work together to develop programs all of us can live with.

She asks OK for pay plan

How interesting that it should take nine months for a particular group of Rolling Meadows aldermen to finally admit they don't understand the pay raise proposal which was first presented to them in April, 1976. They authorized the expenditure of thousands of dollars at that time for a professional salary evaluation because they did not feel qualified to adopt a pay scale without it; it was also at that time that they indicated to city employes that any raises in pay would be retroactive to May 1, 1976. Acting on the belief that the City Council would hold to that agreement, the employes began their long wait.

Now after months of promises, meetings, committees, haggling, more meetings, more promises, and countless delays, some of our esteemed representatives in city government admit that they don't even understand what they previously had accepted, approved and voted upon. It is a little frightening to realize that these are the same people who are making decisions regarding other much more complicated city government issues. I am certain that there are many city employes who would be happy to explain the pay raise plan to these aldermen.

It had been suggested by some that the 9-month stall on pay raises has been motivated by political considerations involving the hiring of a new city manager and financial director — positions which have been more than adequately handled in the interim by a man who is still being paid at his former salary as an assistant. I don't know whether I would prefer to think that the whole issue has been caused by political maneuvering or by a group of aldermen who voted on something they did not even understand — either alternative is equally distasteful.

In two more months, the issue of an annual pay raise for city employes under the new budget will again come before the Council. It is unthinkable that the employes will have to go through the same fiasco again, when the last issue has not yet been resolved. We must demand that the aldermen settle this 1976 pay raise issue before they have the nerve to ask their constitutents to re-elect them in April.

Carter painting accessible, active, accountable image

by HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only two weeks in office, President Carter has moved rapidly to portray the image of an active, accessible and accountable president.

He kept a major promise — to pardon Vietnam draft evaders. He also has presented Congress with, admittedly temporary, solutions to the energy crisis and economic slump, with strong indications that he has the support of the lawmakers on both programs. All of his moves so far show him to be a cautious president.

In foreign policy, Carter sent Vice President Walter Mondale on a round-the-world trip a few days after the inauguration to carry the message to friends that the policies of cooperation and coordination of the past would continue.

BUT THE CAMPAIGN promise that Carter seems the most intent on emphasizing is his desire to "stay close to the people." Through his planned "fireside chats" and trips around the country, Carter believes he can break the age-old isolation of the president from the people and their everyday lives.

He flew to the Pittsburgh area last Sunday to "dramatize" his personal concern for workers at a turbine plant who — like hundreds of thousands in the country — have lost jobs because of the fuel crisis and brutal winter.

Carter also has directed his aides to set up a program where people with dire problems involving the federal government can telephone the White House and at least in some cases get action. As for accountability, Carter has promised at least two news conferences a month.

He also is toying with the idea of permitting limited press coverage of his Cabinet meetings, so that the people can know "the government is in good hands."

TO AVOID THE pitfalls of the past, he has said to Cabinet members on several occasions that they can call him any time, day or night, and that they don't have to take orders from any of his White House aides.

To dramatize the austerity of his regime, Carter has removed the chauffeur-driven limousines for his staff, whose predecessors were driven to and from the White House each morning and evening. Some of these privileges were abused when the wives of aides used the government chauffeurs for shopping excursions.

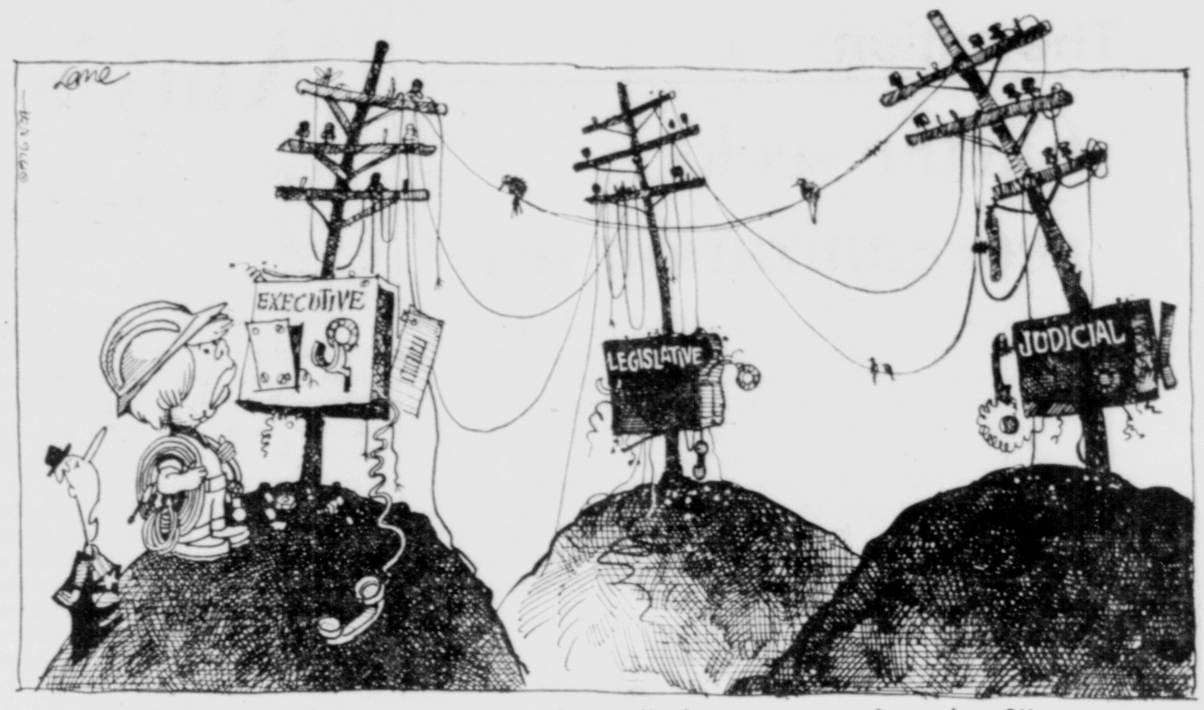

The President also has urged Cabinet officials to cut down on their motor pools, and to avoid trappings that would set them apart. He has asked Cabinet members to reduce their travel entourages and to make trips to places in the country which will enhance their knowledge of the nation's needs.

Carter has criticized the "imperial presidency" as the aspects where former Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger commanded several Air Force planes on his foreign travels to leap-frog his armored cars from one place to another.

He is restricting Sec. of State Cyrus Vance to one jet from the White House fleet, and pointed out to his Cabinet that Mondale did all right riding in limousines with the foreign leaders in the countries he visited.

Symbolically, Carter also has tried to reduce the pomp and pageantry of his arrivals and departures. He banned "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "Hail to the Chief," both usually played to herald his arrival at a White House reception.

In those outward aspects, Carter has sought to demonstrate that his administration is well aware of the lack of trust people have for presidencies of the past.

Bubble bath warning pops faith in FDA

Every now and then I pay attention to the findings of the Food and Drug Administration — and every now and then I don't.

Way back, when the FDA released its acceptable standards for how many bug parts, rodent droppings and fingernail parings were okay to be in my breakfast cereal, I quit eating breakfast. In fact, I quit eating altogether for a couple of days.

Even farther back than that, when cranberries were accused of causing cancer, I quit eating cranberries. This was not as much a sacrifice as giving up my cereal because I'm not too keen about cranberries.

NOW, THOUGH, THE administration of rodent droppings, red food dye, flammable underwear and lead paint has said that bubble bath may be hazardous to my health and I wish the FDA would stay out of my bathtub.

This information was released during the worst of our cold spell late last week and at the moment it didn't really matter to me. I had not only turned down the thermostat in my house, I had also closed off the bedroom wing — which is where the bathroom is. After a couple of days the temperature in there discouraged any lingering and try as I might, I couldn't muster the courage to take a bath.

As the cold spell lingered, then intensified, I mentioned the situation to my co-workers. And when I said, "It's so cold in the bathroom I haven't had a bath in two weeks," they moved upwind of me and said, "We know, we know."

But then came the warming trend and — not a moment too soon, according to my fair weather friends — I took a bath. And I used a lot, a real lot of bubble bath. I also took some reading matter with me to pass the time while I luxuriated in the tub, and that's when I saw the latest FDA report.

UP TO MY EARLOBES in bubbles, I learned that I was lolling in potential lung damage, itching, redness and rash, and I cursed the day that I learned to read.

There was no doubt that I was turning red. But so do lobsters and they don't use bubble bath. Therefore I had to be turning lobster-colored for the same reason lobsters do — I had the bath water so hot, trying to defrost my bod, that I was getting parboiled.

I further reasoned that since I have survived bug parts in my breakfast food and I won't tell you how many annual servings of cranberry sauce with my Thanksgiving turkey, I am by now immune to the Food and Drug Administration.

I think being FDA-immune is the next best thing to being warm.

McLain tough on regulatory units

Watch on Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The name of Marvin McLain is hardly a household word, put it should be for those persons interested in effective reform of regulatory agencies.

The recently retired 70-year-old U. S. Agriculture Dept. official is the father of the new law requiring bonding for the big meat packing houses that was signed into law in October, 1976, despite earlier fierce opposition by the Ford White House.

Republican and Democratic sponsors of the legislation in the House and Senate are unified in their praise of McLain who, as head of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, had the knowledge and leadership to force through the legislation.

THE FORMER IOWA farmer had the qualities that every agency's top officials should have, but few possess. McLain knew his job, he worked hard at that job, and was straightforward, nonpolitical and honest in the manner in which he performed.

A 1928 graduate of Iowa State University with a bachelor of science in agricultural engineering, McLain had more than 23 years of dirt farming experience on a 600-acre livestock farm near Brooklyn, Iowa, before moving to Washington, D. C., in 1953 to join the Eisenhower Administration.

McLain's college training, his farmer experience in marketing cattle and hogs, and his more than 20 years' experience in Washington ideally suited him for the role of courageous independent leadership needed to buck the Ford White House and Justice Dept. to get the much needed reform of the Packers and Stockyards Act of 1921.

The fact that he had served in the Eisenhower administration with the same rank — assistant secretary of agriculture — as Earl Butz, made it possible for him to talk straight across the taple to the often arrogant Butz as secretary of agriculture rather than as a political subordinate fearful of losing his job.

WHEN McLAIN REACHED the mandatory retirment age of 65 at the Farm Bureau, Butz asked him to head the Packers and Stockyards Administration which had long been ignored and had suffered from a lack of leadership under lame duck congressmen interested in pleasing everyone and yet pleasing no one with a timid approach to the mounting problems of corruption and mismanagement in livestock marketing.

Career experts in the Packers and Stockyards division have commented freely on "the vital role" of McLain in getting Butz to openly oppose the Ford White House in an election year.

Dr. Gerald Engelman, director of the industry analysis staff, had seen problems developing for years in custom cattle feedlot relations with meat packers and the problem of packer bonding.

Dr. Engelman, Bierman and others had seen cattle marketing change from stockyard and commission men sales to direct sales to packers. They recognized that the 1921 Packers and Stockyards Act left livestock dealers unprotected when selling directly to the packers but had been unable to stimulate sufficient interest in needed changes.

McLAIN WAS WORKING on the problem when the financial collapse of American Beef Packers of Omaha left thousands of farmers and ranchers with bad checks totalling more than $20 million.

That dramatic incident triggered McLain in the legislative effort that succeeded despite ill-advised opposition by the Justice Dept. and President Ford's Office of Management and Budget.

McLain worked quietly with Sen. Dick Clark, a liberal Iowa Democrat, and Senator Carl Curtis, a conservative Nebraska Republican, on the legislation and strategy. That effort finally resulted in passage of the reform legislation, which an embarrassed President Ford had to sign into law.

With that job behind him McLain retired Feb. 1 amid parties and plaudits acclaiming him as "the father" of the most important reform in livestock marketing since the original Packers and Stockyards Act was passed in 1921.

McLain's performance in the crisis contrasted sharply with those officials in charge of commodity regulation and grain inspection who reacted with political maneuvers and cover-ups rather than aggressive, principled action to correct problems.

President Carter, one of Admiral Hyman Rickover's proteges, shouldn't miss the point of the importance of having qualified independent men at the regulatory agencies rather than lame duck congressmen with dubious qualifications or namby-pamby fence straddlers.

Time is right for small investors

by IRA U. COBLEIGH

The stock market entered the year 1977 with confidence. After crossing 1000 15 times during 1976, that famous Wall Street barometer, the Dow-Jones Industrial Average, gained 25 per cent and closed at 1004.65, leading respected security analysts to predict a continuing bull market, reaching a high of perhaps 1150 in 1977.

This climate of enthusiasm is particularly welcomed by the brokerage fraternity, the investment institutions, and by individual investors. There are now about 28 million of these (not counting some 90 million more who are stockowners indirectly through their insurance policy, retirement or pension funds).

This number, 28 million, is down from a high of 31 million in 1970. The unpleasant selloff in stock prices in the recession period, 1974-75 proved discouraging to stock buyers. Many switched over to the bond market, where they were able to buy top-rated corpoate bonds yielding well over 9 per cent. Now, however, bond yields are much lower, and several high coupon bonds have been redeemed, so that once again stocks are returning to favor.

MOST STOCKHOLDERS prefer blue chip issues with long dividend records, which they acquire to build second incomes, to finance college educations for their children, and to supplement pensions at retirement.

About 30 per cent of all stock buyers, however, are speculators at heart. They are less interested in dividends than in capital gains. They enjoy the zest of speculation, seek action in their stocks and tend to brag a little about their "killings." For these folks, the market again is beckoning. But what should they buy?

Blue chips that may gain 25 per cent or 30 per cent in a good year are not the answer. Shares likely to rise more dramatically are lower priced ones, selling below $20. A $5 price gain on IBM doesn't amount to much, but it represents a 100 per cent profit on a stock acquired at $5!

Granted that lower tier stocks can be superior performers percentage-wise, how would you go about looking for possible winners?

FIRST, REMEMBER the adage, "stock prices are the slaves of earning power!" Buy stocks in companies earning more this year than last, more in the current quarter than the preceding one.

Further, look for industries in a rising trend! Three years ago had you bought shares in companies making denim cloth and apparel companies making Levi's, you would have won handsomely. Two years ago had you bought stock of citizen band radio companies, you would have done splendidly, as demand surged.

What about now? Obviously domestic fuels are going to be in demand as the Arabs boost oil prices again. Coal is coming back as a fuel. There are several fine coal shares, some quite low priced, with large underground reserves. These should earn well in the years ahead.

There are several well managed oil and gas companies trading at modest prices on AMEX and in the over-the-counter market. While well-entrenched companies like Homestake, United Nuclear are large uranium producers, there are a dozen smaller mines in line to benefit as uranium (now $40 a pound) is called upon to supply nuclear electric power and to displace oil. Silver is in an uptrend; and silver stocks may be worth looking into.

Companies with newer products and services always have speculative appeal. All you need do is pick the right one.

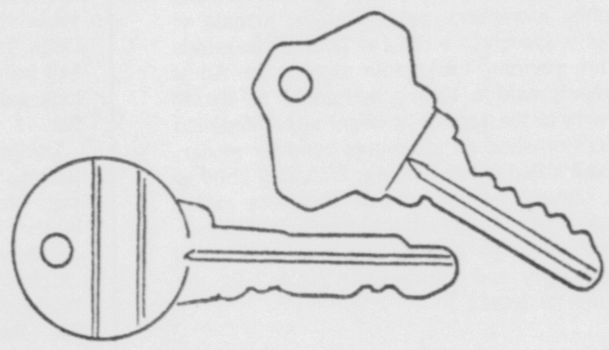

This year may present many speculative opportunities. To locate them look for active lower-priced stocks in a rising market trend; get informaton about promising shares from your broker; watch quarterly earnings statements published in the financial pages; and write to companies that interest you for their latest reports.

But be prepared to accept the risks involved; and spread your funds over four or five different issues.

Carter seeks reorganization act

President Carter asked Congress Friday to give him authority to streamline the executive branch — exclusive of the Cabinet departments — but gave both the House and Senate power to veto his plans. The legislation is similar to the 1949 Reorganization Act that gave President Harry Truman power to reorganize the government. The act was renewed several times but lapsed in 1973. Carter's legislation — like the 1949 law — provides that any reorganization plan would go into effect in 60 days if neither the Senate nor the House voted against it. But the proposal immediately ran into opposition from Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee. His committee must review — and could amend — Carter's proposal.

Fitzsimmons, 2 others indicted

Richard Fitzsimmons, eldest son of Teamsters Union President Frank Fitzsimmons, was indicted along with two other men Friday on charges of embezzling union pension funds to purchae personal insurance policies. The alleged conspiracy involved officials of Teamsters Local 299 in Detroit, the power base Fitzsimmons' father and James Hoffa before him used as a launching pad to the international presidency. Hoffa disappeared July 30, 1975, and is presumed dead. Indicted with Fitzsimmons, who lost a bid for the Local 299 presidency in a bitter struggle last year, were Anthony Sciarotta, former Local 299 business agent, and attorney Stewart Sinai.

Job funds sought for black teens

Black elected officials asked President Carter Friday to spend $2 billion to create jobs for the "maximum unemployed person in this country" — the black urban teen-ager. Carter had no immediate comment on the proposal, but he did present the group a two-page list of blacks who may soon get high government posts. The black officials said they were surprised by its length and the importance of the jobs. "We were not aware of many of the appointments that were under consideration," Richard G. Hatcher, mayor of Gary, Ind., said. Hatcher said Carter "listened and took under consideration" the jobs proposal. He said the group did not recommend whether the $2 billion ought to come out of Carter's plan for a $50 tax rebate for most Americans or from fresh funds.

Cocoa prices up 46%

Hershey Foods Corp. dealt the U.S. coffee boycott a blow Friday with the announcement it had raised wholesale prices on its cocoa by about 46 per cent. Consumer groups, supermarket chains and restaurants have urged coffee drinkers to cut consumption in protest against record high prices by switching to alternative beverages such as cocoa, tea and fruit juices. James Edris, a spokesman for Hershey Foods, said the increase boosted the wholesle price of a one-pound can of cocoa from $1.29 to $1.88, effective Jan. 31. "A lot of the weather factors that have driven up the price of coffee beans have affected cocoa as well," said Edris. "The frost that destroyed the coffee beans in Brazil also hit its cocoa bean crop."

The world

Worker party vowed in Ethiopia

Marxist strongman Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam Friday promised democratic rights, a workers' party and the arming of "progressive elements" in a speech to a rally of tens of thousands of persons supporting his regime, said radio reports in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. The report said a throng estimated at 200,000 marched through the streets of the capital 24 hours after Mengistu and his Marxist supporters crushed an attempted coup by moderates in the ruling junta and killed seven leaders, including chief of state Tefar Benti. In a vaguely worded speech, Mengistu told a rally in Revolution Square that "progressive elements" who supported his Marxist regime would be armed. Mengistu also called for creation of a workers' party and "democratic rights" for the nation of 27 million. He gave no details.

Viet Cong disbanded

The Viet Cong, ironically the last symbol of a divided Vietnam, was officially disbanded Friday night, reports from Thailand indicated. Known by various participants in the Vietnam War as the National Liberation Front (its official name), the VC, Victor Charlie or even "the enemy," the Viet Cong nominally fielded the soldiers and directed the pro-Communist battle in South Vietnam since its founding Dec. 20, 1960. Official Vietnamese media monitored in Bangkok said the National Liberation Front, a North Vietnamese group known as the Fatherland Front, and another South Vietnamese organization called the Alliance of National, Democratic and Peace Forces have been merged. "The Congress unanimously decided to merge all the front organizations in Vietnam into a single body called the 'Vietnam Fatherland Front,' " the official Vietnam News Agency said. Ton Duc Thang, a contemporary of Ho Chi Minh, was named honorary president, and North Vietnamese Communists hold the majority of power in the new front, which has a 191-member Central Committee with Hoang Quoc Viet as president of its 45-member presidium. The Viet Cong, by contrast, was made up almost exclusively of Vietnamese born south of the 17th parallel dividing line between the north and south. Its only chairman, former Saigon lawyer Nguyen Huu Tho, was appointed to lead the NLF at its founding convention in the jungles not long after he fled the tough anti-Communist laws of the southern capital.

Russia expels U.S. journalist

The Soviet Union Friday ordered Associated Press correspondent George Krimsky to leave the country within a week following an official Soviet press campaign alleging he had links with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. The 35-year-old American journalist, who has worked in Moscow since 1974, denied the charge and another allegation he broke Soviet law by giving Western currency certificates to a Soviet citizen. Krimsky, a fluent Russian speaker, was the first Western correspondent expelled by the Soviets in three years and the first U.S. citizen since John Dornberg of Newsweek was ordered out in 1970. Western diplomats said Krimsky's expulsion and the arrest the previous day of poet Alexander Ginzburg — one of the Soviet Union's leading human rights activists — appeared to be part of an official crackdown on dissidents and foreign reporters who write about them.

U.S. tourists stranded in Kenya

Tanzania abruptly shut its border with Kenya Friday, stranding thousands of American and European tourists visiting the world's greatest wild animal refuges in Nairobi, Kenya. Tanzania also seized scores of Kenyan vehicles and light planes in apparent retaliation for Kenya's decision to form its own airline — a move which brought the collapse of East African Airways, long operated jointly by Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda. The border closure, affecting ships, aircraft, cars and trucks, plunged relations between the countries to a new low.

Model prisoner gains reprieve

Amy's new nanny a murderer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Convicted murderer Mary Fitzpatrick was released from a life prison term at President and Mrs. Carter's request Friday and began life as a White House nanny and maid.

"I just don't believe this is happening to me!" she said upon arrival from Atlanta, where prison officials granted the reprieve, pinned a white corsage on her blue dress and sent her to live in the White House — one floor above the President.

A Georgia parole official said Mrs. Fitzpatrick, 31, a long-time Carter nursemaid who chaperoned Amy on Inauguration Day, got the reprieve from her work-release jail term because she is a model prisoner with "a very unusual employment opportunity."

WHITE HOUSE officials said she will become a $6,004 a year member of the resident domestic staff, supervising Amy, 9, and a baby due in March to the wife of Chip Carter, and helping with household cleaning and laundry.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, the divorced mother of two sons, supervised Amy when Carter was governor of Georgia from 1970 to 1974 under a work-release program Carter founded.

She had pleaded guilty to murdering John Bynum with a pistol in 1970, in Lumpkin, Ga., near Plains. Georgia police officials said she shot Bynum in the midst of a lovers' street quarrel between the victim and a female companion of Mrs. Fitzpatrick's.

She has served the past two years in the Atlanta Women's Work Release Center.

TOLD SHE would be living in the White House from now on, Mrs. Fitzpatrick turned to her presidential escorts at Washington's National Airport and said, with a big grin, "Oh no, I don't believe it."

She described the Carters as "a very warm family" and said she felt "close" to them.

She seemed stunned and frightened of the mob of reporters that surrounded her in the airport. Two female White House aides greeted her and drove her to the executive mansion in a white foreign subcompact car.

Rob Haworth, executive director of the Georgia Board of Pardons and Paroles, said Mrs Fitzpatrick is in a "reprieve" status until April 1, when she will be paroled.

"This certainly is an unusual situation," Haworth said. "The main thing that qualified it was the letter from the White House and her past record."

Mary Hoyt, the first lady's press secretary, disclosed it was Mrs. Carter who wrote the reprieve request for Mrs. Fitzpatrick, of whom she is "very fond."

"Mrs. Carter wrote the letter asking the parole board if it was inclined to parole Mrs. Fitzpatrick," Mrs. Hoyt said.

But Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said the President supported Mrs. Carter in the parole request.

"That is a fairly traditional thing under the work release program in Atlanta that a prisoner should have the opportunity for early parole," if a job awaits, Powell said.

IN WASHINGTON, Mrs. Fitzpatrick probably will live in the third floor White House residence area. She is no stranger there.

She came to Washington with the Carters for the Inaugural period on a three-day prison pass to take care of Amy.

She told reporters then she had "a fantastic time" romping in the snow with the child on the White House lawn and escorting her to two Inaugural balls.

Mrs. Hoyt described Mrs. Carter as "very pleased" with Mrs. Fitzpatrick's release.

"She has been fond of Mary for many years," Mrs. Hoyt said. "During the campaign I heard her speak of Mary often, saying 'if I just had her with me on weekends.' "

Guardian's past unclear to Amy

WASHINGTON — Amy Carter might not know that her new White House companion is an ex-convict but she knows "something was wrong" in Mary Fitzpatrick's life, a White House official said Friday.

A reporter asked Mary Hoyt, Mrs. Carter's press secretary, whether the 9-year-old realized that Mrs. Fitzpatrick, who was also Amy's nursemaid when President Carter was Georgia governor, had been in prison.

Mrs. Hoyt said it was "not clear" whether Amy knew or not. But she said the child did know "she was surrounded by prisoners and knew something was wrong."

At President and Mrs. Carter's request, Mrs. Fitzpatrick was released Friday from the Atlanta prison where she had been serving a life sentence for murder.

MARY FITZPATRICK

Family pleads for right to let their mother die

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — The son of a 41-year-old woman who has been in a coma for two months testified Friday he had no qualms about removing his mother's life-support systems "because she's dead now, really."

Bobby Dockery, 20, was among the first witnesses called at a Chancery Court hearing on a suit to remove devices that are keeping his mother, Della Dockery, alive. Mrs. Dockery has been in a coma since a heart attack caused brain damage in November.

Dockery has joined his father, Guinn, and two other brothers in the suit, which is expected to be appealed to the Tennessee Supreme Court regardless of the outcome here.

A physician testified Friday that mrs. Dockery would die within a week if her family is allowed to remove the respirator that has sustained her breathing for more than two months.

AN ATTORNEY ASKED Bobby if he knew his mother would die if her respirator were removed.

"She's dead now, really," he said. "But then she would stop breathing."

Mrs. Dockery, the mother of six, was admitted to Chattanooga's Erlanger Hospital in November for treatment of a hole in her lung. She suffered a heart attack two weeks later, and has been kept in the hospital's intensive-care unit since then at an estimated cost of $1,000 per day.

DOCKERY TOLD chancellor Herschel Franks his mother's attending physician had agreed the life support systems should be removed.

He said Dr. Yutaka Kato talked with him in the presence of another of Mrs. Dockery's sons, Chris, and a nurse outside his mother's hospital room Jan. 3.

"He thought it would be the best thing we could do if we could get the legal procedure to take the respirator off," said young Dockery.

Mrs. Dockery's husband was the first witness called and gave quiet "yes" and "no" answers to most questions.

Chancellor Herschel Franks asked him why he wanted to take the respirator away.

"She never did like to suffer," he replied.

Old cast iron stoves fast becoming a hot item

Grace Carolyn

Collecting

This may sound prehistoric, but a lot of my early memories are associated with cast iron stoves such as the one shown in the picture, and also with a huge black iron and nickel cooking range which occupied a corner and dominated the kitchen of my grandmother's home. In the 1920s and 30s, many homes were still using wood, coal and even corncobs to ignite and fuel their stoves for heating and cooking.

Early in the morning, while I lay snug in the feather bed and dreading the cold flight across the linoleum-covered floors toward the kitchen, my grandmother busily shook grates, banged stove lids and filled the water reservoir, started a blaze with cobs and kindling wood, then added coal to the heating stove in the living room. The other rooms of the house were unheated, and believe me, one didn't linger long with morning ablutions.

THE CAST IRON stove made its first appearance in America about 1840, and the first ones were just iron boxes, with more and more refinements until they reached the heights of Victorian fancy. The one shown is a fairly modest model, but in very good condition, with isinglass windows and nickel-plated "fenders" and base. It has an ornate top which swings aside to accommodate a lift-off stove lid, upon which a teakettle can be set.

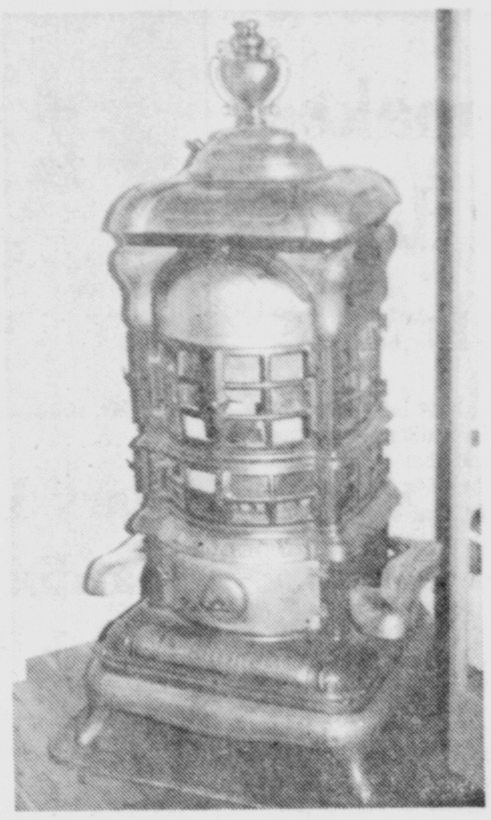

Almost a century earlier Benjamin Franklin had invented a stove, which improved on the fireplace, for it contained the heat and directed it outward into the room. Franklin never bothered to patent his device, for he wanted to encourage the widespread manufacture and use of the stove.

As the years went on, makers began to vie to make the fanciest and most efficient stoves. The public reacted favorably and by 1900 almost every American home had a stove, some used along, some in addition to fireplaces burning gas or logs. In its 1902 catalog Sears, Roebuck carried some 20 models of cast iron stoves, ranging in price from a few dollars to $25.

EXCEPT IN rural areas, oil and gas eventually supplanted the use of the stove for both furnaces and cooking, but there were exceptions. I remember that an aunt of my husband had a small "laundry" stove in her Chicago apartment at least until 1955. She used it to simmer a kettle and to dispose of paper trash and for auxiliary heating, but it was first made to accommodate a laundry kettle, long oval in shape.

World War II with its fuel shortages prompted a revival of the stove for a few years, and now again with the energy crisis, dealers report a brisk trade in old stoves. One dealer in our town says he sold four near Christmas, and yes, the buyers intend to hook them up with stovepipes and use them. I would imagine city codes would prohibit such use in some areas.

A stove such as the one pictured (Early American Museum, Mahomet, Ill.) would probably be tagged at about $300 in a shop, while an ornate cook stove, with swinging shelves, warming oven, and much trim, could go as high as $500. I even saw a small scale model of a cookstove about a foot in height, complete with all utensils (tiny hand-turned waffle iron, kettle, coal scuttle, shovel, etc.) priced at $500! But toys and "salesman's samples" are always most desirable and high priced.

BUT BARGAINS can still be found. I recently saw a nice "pot-bellied" heating stove, slightly rusted but still in good condition, $65 at a garage sale. The stove had been used to heat the garage workshop, and the buyer intended to use it for the same purpose.

Some ideas are just too good to die out, and the iron stove was one of them. With the price of natural gas soaring, I imagine a dealer with several stoves in his storeroom will smile all the way to the bank.

The doctor says

Caffeine in tea makes it poor child's drink

Please tell us what effect drinking iced tea regularly will have on a 1-year-old child. The tea is made with a tea bag and hot water, then sweetened and iced.

A cup of tea as ordinarily brewed contains about half as much caffeine as brewed coffee. The tea bag and then diluting the tea with ice probably means it has as little as half that much — or about the amount found in a fourth of a cup of coffee. That is still a pretty good jolt for a small child. Incidentally, that is also about the amount of caffeine you find in a cup of cocoa.

The caffeine may not hurt him, but it is a nervous stimulant. It would be useful in a hyperactive child. Coffee is sometimes helpful in these cases because the caffeine has effects similar to the medicines used in hyperactive children. Otherwise, I would rather see the child get a cup of fruit juice or milk without the caffeine problems.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-1, Coffee, Tea, Cola, Cocoa, for more information. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Just write to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Whenever I eat sweet or acid foods, I have ulcers in my mouth. I would much appreciate it if you would suggest any means to remedy such ulcers besides not eating such foods.

This condition is almost untreatable. I presume you are talking about canker sores. About one out of five of the population has them at any given time and the treatment is very unsatisfactory.

These shallow ulcers have a grayish base and are on the lining of the cheeks inside the mouth and sometimes on the tongue. The current thinking is that they are one of the immune problems people have. That means you literally become allergic to yourself. Some chemical that your immune systems produces reacts with sensitized tissue in your mouth to cause the tissue destruction or ulcer.

Although antibiotics are sometimes useful in preventing secondary infections, they will not remove the fundamental ulcer. The best you can do is keep the mouth clean and avoid irritating the ulcer. It will heal in one or two weeks.

Anything that irritates the inside of the mouth may cause canker sores. This includes irritation with dentures, accidentally biting the inside of your cheek, irritation with the way you brush your teeth or anything that damages tissue.

Canker sores also tend to occur in women just before the menstrual periods and may flare up during pregnancy. However, I have seen them in many women who are well past the age of having either menstrual periods or pregnancy.

Acid foods do seem to cause them in some people, including tomatoes, citrus fruits, vinegar and foods containing vinegar such as pickles, wines and chocolate.

Some doctors paint the ulcer with silver nitrate. This causes a membrane to form over the ulcer and reduces the pain. You may get some benefit out of Proxigel which you can buy without a prescription. It comes in a tube and you can squeeze a little on to the finger and apply it. It is fairly resistant to saliva and will stay on for a time. You can try it if you wish.

Also, I should say that crops of canker sores tend to occur in susceptible people during periods of stress. If you can minimize stress and the things that get you keyed up, it might help some.

National organization checks out charities

It's a staggering figure that goes into contributions — something over $26 billion a year. We all figure in this in a way because who among us hasn't been asked to solicit our block or neighborhood in behalf of some good undertaking? And none of us escapes the endless appeals. All of us wonder from time to time about the efficiency of some of the organizations soliciting us. I didn't know until now that an agency has been at work for almost 50 years patroling, checking and reporting on this whole vast enterprise. I found out because the National Information Bureau (419 Park Ave., South, New York, N.Y. 10016) has "gone public" and is sending to those who request it a monthly "Wise Giving Guide." It tells which organizations pass all the tests, which fail in some respects and which have not provided sufficient data. Those whose contributions have risen to the point where they mean something in family budgets may want to take advantage and do some checking.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip for those who would like to have whipped cream topping on hand "just in case." Whenever I have sweetened whipped cream left over, I drop blobs on a cookie sheet, freeze them and pop them into a plastic bag.—Laura Grauer

Dear Dorothy: A piece of burning wood scorched the concrete slab in front of the fireplace. What now?—Elizabeth Morris

A stiff brush with a detergent solution containing ammonia ought to take care of it — adding, of course, a fair amount of elbow grease.

Dear Dorothy: Ever tried marjoram in scalloped potatoes? Do! Scrumptious!—Kristin Rockmore

Dear Dorothy: Can anything be done with a good-size piece of cheese that turns up in the refrigerator too hard to eat?—Joy Berry

Most cheeses that turn hard (rather than spoil) are perfect for grating. Casseroles are often better because an extra piece of hard cheese is there for grating.

The almanac

by United Press International

Today is Saturday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1977 with 329 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars.

The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American evangelist Dwight Moody was born Feb. 5, 1838.

On this day in history:

• In 1631, British clergyman Roger Williams arrived in Salem, Mass., seeking religious freedom. He founded the colony of Rhode Island.

• In 1904, Russia and Japan broke off diplomatic relations in a dispute over Korea and Manchuria.

• In 1971, American astronauts Alan Shepard and Edward Mitchell of Apollo 14 walked on the moon for four hours. ,

• In 1974, Patrica Hearst, 19-year-old daughter of San Francisco publisher Randolph Hearst, was spirited away from her apartment in Berkeley, Calif., by assumed kidnapers.

A thought for the day: American statesman Henry Clay said, "If you wish to avoid foreign collision, you had better abandon the ocean."

Peanut butter made with oil

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Shawn Brown, 10, of Louisville, Ky., for his question: HOW IS PEANUT BUTTER PROCESSED?

Commercial producers of peanut butter have their own secret formulas and ways of putting that favorite spread into jars. But, basically, the recipe is very simple: Place some roasted peanuts in an electric blender with a dash of salt and a spoon of peanut oil and blend until the mixture is spreadable. Good!

A doctor in St. Louis, Mo., is given credit for inventing peanut butter. In 1890 he was looking for a high-protein food that could be digested easily by his patients. He put some peanuts into a meat grinder — and out came success.

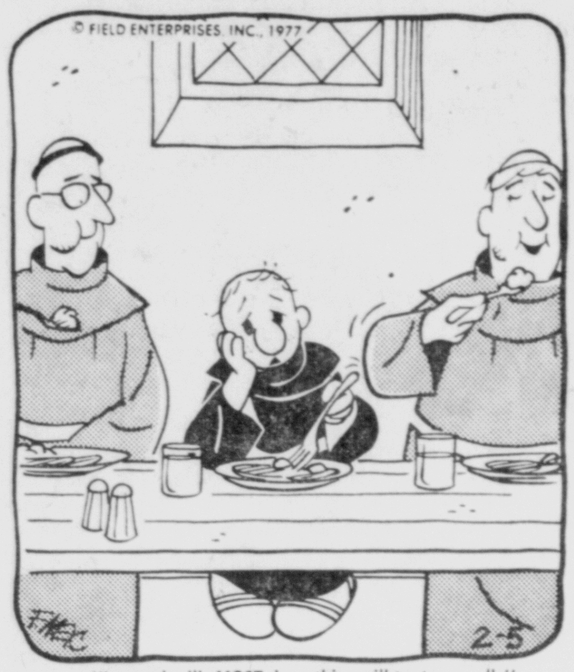

Peanuts are not grown commercially north of Washington, DC. Peanut-producing states include Georgia, (which is the leading producer), Texas, Florida, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Virginia and Alabama. New Mexico and Mississippi have also gone into the business.

While peanuts are big in North America, the world's largest peanut acreage is in Asia, with India and China leading and accounting for half of the world's fields.

For years, peanuts have been used extensively in Oriental cooking.

Cave-dwelling family puts heating bills out in cold

ADDING A LOG to the Franklin stove, Andrew Davis, his wife and visiting grandchildren Amanda, Travis and Marcy Demling find the cave home with stone walls comfortably warm. Davis dug out the hillside home with three bedrooms and modern appliances after receiving a heating bill last winter for $167 a month.

ARMINGTON, Ill. (UPI) — His daughters feared their classmates would call them the Flintstones. Neighbors were skeptical, too, when Andrew Davis started hollowing out a hillside to build a cave home.

Davis got the last laugh.

In spite of all the record subzero weather, he says his heating costs this winter will be $1.29.

"It's nice and warm," says his wife, Margaret. "It's just wonderful. It's not costing us anything to heat and I don't think of it as being any different than a house."

DAVIS, A 48-year-old electrician with a caveman-style beard, got a little miffed last winter when he received a $167 monthly heating bill.

So he dug out a hillside and shaped stone cave walls eight inches thick to form a one-level, three-bedroom abode. He topped it with a foot-thick stone ceiling and covered the cave with four feet of dirt.

His family moved into the strange dwelling in this tiny central Illinois town in December amid national publicity.

"This is quite a thing," Davis said. "Being underground is what makes it work. Dirt is a constant temperature of 58 degrees winter and summer. All I've got to do is raise the temperature from 58 to 70 degrees. If it's 10 below outside, people in the house have got to raise the temperature from 10 below to 70 degrees."

THE LITTLE HEAT Davis needs is provided by a wood-burning Franklin Stove.

"I've got my own chain saw," he said. "What it amounts to is I'll heat the whole winter from two dead trees. The price of the wood cost me $1.29 — that's for my gas and oil for the chain saw. I didn't count labor because I enjoy cutting wood.

"Most of the reports I have is that most people are envious of me."

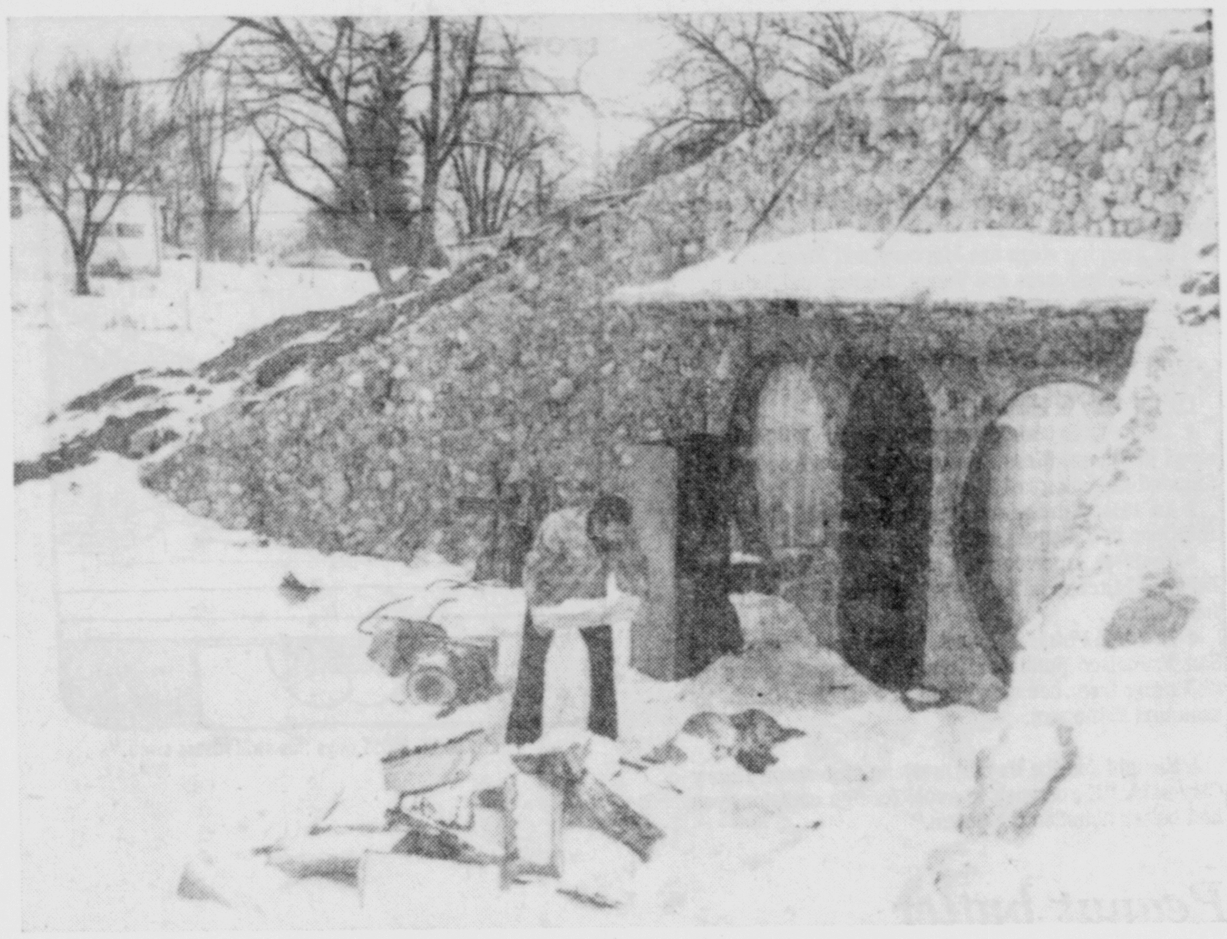

The home is furnished with thick carpeting and the latest appliances, but the Davises preserved the cave-like atmosphere by keeping the stone walls exposed, and using cowbones for doorknobs and towel racks.

Besides saving heating expenses, Davis says the home has a number of other advantages for his family of 11, including 5 older children who no longer live at home.

"Tornadoes can't bother us," he said. "Fire can't hurt me. I don't even carry insurance on it.

"Just 20 miles from here we're building a nuclear power station. You never know what could happen. If there was an explosion it wouldn't bother me.

"They say three foot of dirt would protect you from fallout. I've got a bomb shelter."

ANDREW DAVIS selects a log to take inside his cave home in Armington, Ill. The home is heated by a Franklin stove. Compared to a $167 a month heating bill before moving into the home, Davis expects his heating costs this winter to be $1.29 — the gas and oil cost for his chain saw.

New treatments for fabric top 'cover story' of 1977

Carolyn Murray

Your home

In recent interviews with a group of manufacturers and retailers at the Los Angeles Home Furnishings Mart, one good new direction came to light. The manufacturers call it the "cover story," and they all seem to agree that 1977 will be the year of the textile.

Upholstery fabrics with interesting surface treatment will abound. And when we think of all the possible ways we can alter the surface of a textile, the industry prediction does hold promise.

Even if one begins with color and texture alone, there are flat weaves, twill, velvet, suede, brushed cotton pile and a new descriptive term — eyelash fabric.

INFLUENCES FROM the Middle East, Far East and the wide west offer a fine formula for living in this total design grouping. Highlighting this arrangement is the bold batik printed fabric on the handsome Selig sofa.

TO EACH POSSIBLE surface add a variety of printing techniques (including silkscreen, batik, photographic and emulsion processes) and the possibilities become really expansive.

There is more derring-do now in retail circles, and store buyers have finally realized that component systems for both storage and seating are here to stay. One retailer said the five-piece bedroom suite is "dead"! We consumers could have told him that a few years ago when we started making more individual purchases.

So we may all begin to see a nicer mix of home furnishings within retail operations. The boundaries are disappearing between the old "modern" and "traditional" presentations in the stores.

Illustrated here is a pleasing example of today's comfort mix in which that one important printed fabric takes center stage. It's a bold batik, in deep indigo and cocoa colors, and is used in an all-upholstered covring technique. The sofa is a medium-priced one by Selig and it's as stylish in the living room of a stay-at-home as well as a jet-setter.

The glass-topped wicker table rides on a recessed plinth, and a pair of car seat-comfort chairs can be moved around for group needs. A hemp carpet, hand-woven wall hanging, reed blinds, baskets and wood paneled walls also are interesting textural characteristics that we often find in today's marketplace.

Life-saving smoke detectors no fad: fire experts

by JEANNE LESEM

Firefighters see red when asked if smoke detectors are a fad.

They react the same way when asked if they agree with consumer activist Ralph Nader's claim that the risk of radiation is a serious problem with the ionization type detector.

"Nader doesn't know what he's talking about," says William McClarran of Johnston, R.I., president of the Society of Fire Protection Engineers.

THE MULTI-NATIONAL technical society of engineers specializes in protection of life and property from fires.

"Rhode Island just last year passed a law requiring all new dwellings to have smoke detectors," MClarran said. "There's no question that they have come a long way in the past couple of years. The industrial type cost hundreds of dollars. Now you can buy very reliable ones for $30 and up."

Federal law now requires detectors in all mobile homes. Many states, counties and cities are enacting legislation similar to that of Rhode Island. Some even require detectors installed in existing homes when they change hands, says the National Safety Council of Chicago.

Spokesmen for the Boston-based National Fire Protection Assn. regard detectors as an important new way of saving lives in home fires. The association is a nonprofit safety organization.

"A FAD? ONLY in terms of being fashionable," said one official.

Another, Richard Peacock, estimates that easily 60 to 80 per cent of the Americans who die annually in fires in their homes could be saved if they have just one smoke detector on the premises.

"More than half who die are never touched by flames," Peacock, director of the public affairs division, said in a telephone interview. "Sales are skyrocketing, and it's a good thing, too."

Peacock and members of other firefighting organizations cite the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's findings as conclusive scientific evidence that the radiation from exposure to the sun and watching television is greater than that from an ionization detector. The commission has said even a malfunctioning one would leak only negligible amounts.

FIRE SAFETY experts also recommend photoelectric smoke detectors. Both types have advantages and disadvantages.

The National Safety Council says the photoelectric type gives early warning of smoldering fires even before their heat is felt. It says some ionization detectors respond more slowly to these fires, but probably react faster than photoelectrics in fires that emit relatively little visible smoke.

Photoelectrics work on house current; ionizations, on either house current or batteries.

The experts say one detector per house is better than none, but ideally there should be at least two in multi-bedroom dwellings, especially if bedrooms are in separate wings or floors.

MANUFACTURERS and local fire stations are good sources of information about placement, they said. Peacock said association brochures on the subject are available free at firehouses.

Because smoke rises, ceiling or near-ceiling locations are preferred. They should be installed in hallways leading to bedrooms because most home fires occur at night when the household is asleep.

Peacock prefers following the manufacturer's instructions on placement, since each knows where his own particular model works best.

If the battery-operated type is chosen, he suggests one with a fairly common power source so it can be replaced more easily. "Most have a pretty good beeping sound when the battery runs low," he said.

In a small apartment, the recommended location usually is the hallway between the living and bedrooms.

"Don't put one in the kitchen," Peacock said. "If you're like me and burn the bacon, it would go off all the time."

Maintenance tips told by council

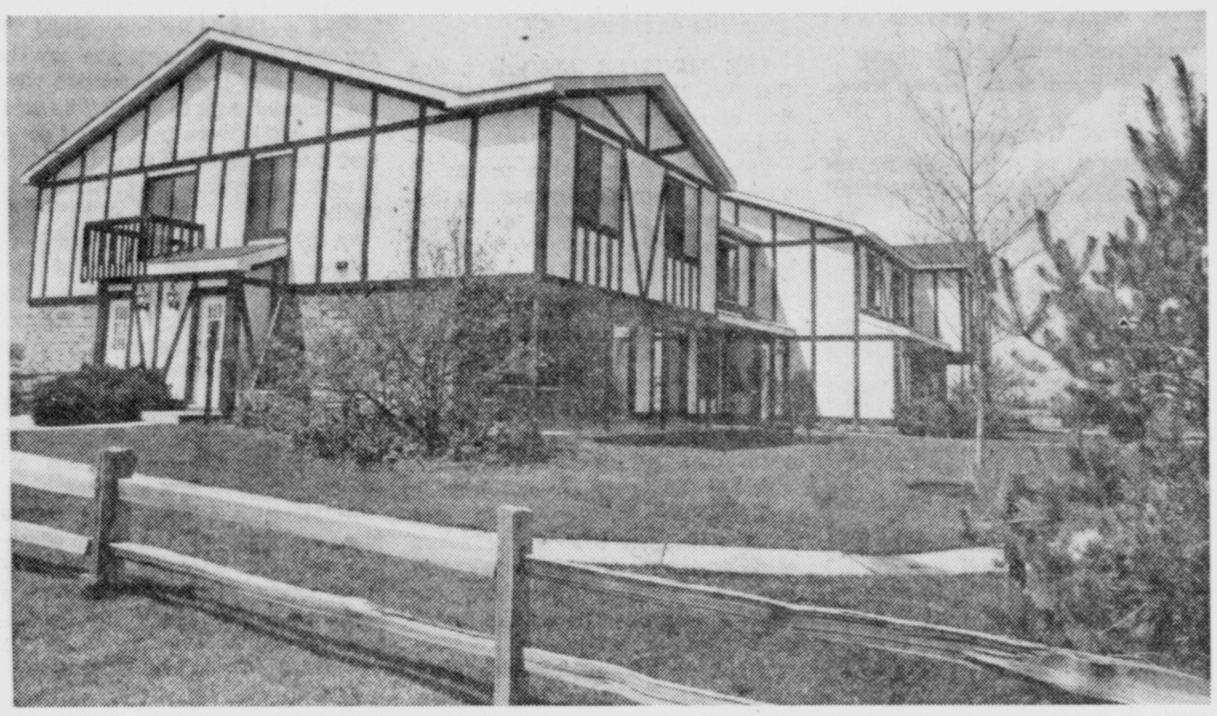

The National Safety Council advises following individual manufacturer's recommendations for maintaining smoke detectors in the home.

Both photoelectric and ionization types need annual vacuuming. Some models must be cleaned with alcohol.

Each unit should be checked occasionally for insects and tested periodically by blowing smoke into the chamber from a cigarette, cigar, pipe or even a candle.

Don't get upset over an occasional false alarm triggered by a combination of circumstances, burned toast or similar kitchen accidents, the council says. Just take it as an assurance that your detector is doing its proper protective job.

THE COURTHOME building at New Century Town in north suburban Vernon Hills contains six and 3-bedroom homes priced from $35,490 to $40,500. The homes are built by United Development Co.

Make ownership possible

Courthomes: young couples' hope

With the median price of a new home in the Chicago area now about $50,000, what can a young newly-married couple hope to buy?

The answer may very well be a new-style type of housing called a courthome. This is a two-or three-bedroom home in a building that has a total of six similar homes. Each of the homes is owned, not rented, so the buyer gets the financial advantages of home ownership.

"By buying a Courthome, a young couple can achieve ownership that otherwise might have to be delayed if they want a conventional single-family house," said Pete Fleming, sales manager at New Century Town in Vernon Hills, where courthomes are being offered by the United Development Company. The courthomes are in a section of the development called Independence Square.

THE HOMES range in price from $35,490 to $40,500. Because of this, a buyer can purchase a courthome for a down payment that's substantially less than that of a single-family home. In addition, the monthly payments can also be less, meaning that the buyer doesn't need as high an income to qualify.

Fleming cited two examples to make the point:

Let's say a young couple is interested in a $50,000 single-family home and can make a down payment of 10 per cent, or $5,000. That leaves a mortgage amount of $45,000. A 29-year mortgage at 8.5 per cent interest would make the monthly payment $348 for principal and interest. In addition, the couple should allow an estimated $85 per month for real estate taxes. That comes to a total of $433.

Most mortgage lenders, such as banks and savings and loan associations, use a rule-of-thumb that says a buyer's monthly payment should be no more than one-fourth his gross monthly income. On that basis, the couple would need to earn $1,732 (four times $433) a month, or $20,784 a year to buy the $50,000 home on these terms.

THE SAME COUPLE would need considerably less to buy a courthome. Let's say they chose one from the middle of the line, a Concord model at $35,990. Their down payment could be as little as 5 per cent, or $1,890. That leaves a mortgage amount of $34,100.

A 29-year mortgage at 8.5 per cent would mean a monthly payment of $264 for principal and interest. Estimated real estate taxes would add another $59, and a monthly maintenance assessment would add $38. That would bring the monthly total to $361.

Four times this amount is $1,444 monthly, which translates into $17,328 a year. That's the income needed to qualify.

Fleming cautioned that other factors besides income are taken into account by the lender in determining whether a buyer qualifies for a mortgage, so his example is a simplification.

Furnished models of the Courthomes are on display from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The entrance to the model area is on Vernon Drive at Town Line Rd. (Ill. Rte. 60), 1½ miles west of Milwaukee Ave. (Ill. Rte. 21). To get there from Chicago take I-94 to Ill. Rte. 60. Turn left at Vernon Drive.

Bergson unveils models for 55-home community

The Bergson Co., Roselle, has unveiled models for Park Place, a community of 55 single-family homes in Bartlett.

The two-story model is being offered in two sizes, but only one is being shown as a model. The five homes range in size from 1,708 to 2,200 square-feet, excluding two-car attached garages. They are priced from $50,950.

LOT SIZES, which Berger said have been a major attraction to the predominantly family-oriented visitors and buyers, range from 61 to more than 85 front feet and from about 129 to 135 feet deep.

Following is a description of the Park Place models:

• The Ashley is a 1,793 square foot bi-level model with a large kitchen, living/dining room combination, three bedrooms and bath on the upper level. It is priced at $50,950. With a finished family room and an optional powder room on the first level, the price is $53,450.

• The Barton is a 1,720 square foot split-level home. The large living room with dining "L" and kitchen with breakfast area are located at the engry level with a three-bedroom wing a half-level up.

The Barton also can be purchased with the lower level finished to include a spacious family room and powder room. The base price is $52,950. With the finished lower level the price is $54,950.

• The Concord is a two-story home that is available with three bedrooms and 1½ baths (Concord I) or with four bedrooms and 2½ baths (Concord II). The first floor is identical in both verions. A central entry foyer with an open staircase opens to a living room that is 12 by 18 feet. The kitchen is 11 by 13 feet and provides a generous breakfast area. A family room of 12 by 16 feet has an optional wet bar. There is a separate dining room, 10 by 11 feet, powder room, utility room and laundry room at this level. In the Concord I the master bedroom is 11 by 14 feet. The other bedrooms are 10 feet by 10 feet and 10 by 11½ feet. All three rooms share a bath with dual entries.

The second floor of the Concord II is an expanded version of Concord I. It has the same rooms but in addition has a different master bedroom suite with sleeping area that is 12 by 17 feet, a dressing room, and a private bath. With 1,708 square feet, the Concord I is priced at $54,950. The Concord II offers 2,025 square feet and is $58,450. The Concord does not include basement, but basements are available options.

• The Dover is a top-of-the-line split level with four bedrooms, 2½ baths, 2,200 square feet of living area, and is priced at $60,950.

Berger said that sodden front yards will be included and other special values will be offered during the grand opening period. Available options include wood-burning fireplace and wet bar for the family room, air conditioning and water softener.

Jobless rate drops to 7.3% but that's before cold set in

The nation's unemployment plunged to the 7.3 per cent mark in January before a severe cold spell caused layoffs of more than 1 million workers, the U.S. Labor Dept. reported Friday.

Meanwhile, unemployment in Illinois dropped from 7.2 per cent in December to 6.7 per cent in January. Some 18,000 persons dropped from the unemployment rolls in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area where unemployment dipped from 7.4 per cent in December to a 6.9 per cent rate.

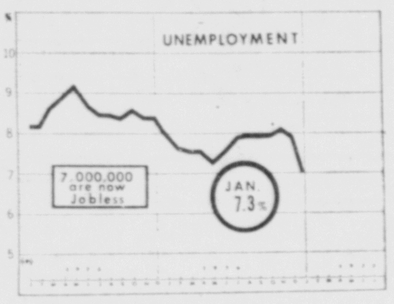

Joblessness at the start of 1977 was at a record low for the post 1975 recession period. But bad weather quickly altered the situation.

THE WHITE HOUSE announced officially Friday night about 1.2 million persons have been laid off as a result of cold weather and energy shortages. That would boost the unemployment rate by more than 1 per cent.

The figure was compiled from reports from state unemployment offices. White House officials cautioned the figure was "slightly understated" because some midwestern states had not reported.

The government's figure also did not include those persons who have been unable to report to work, although they were not officially laid off.

SOME ANALYSTS have estimated the weather will force unemployment as high as 9.2 per cent — reflecting about 1.8 million temporary layoffs. That would exceed the recession peak of 9 per cent in May, 1975.

THE NATION'S jobless rate dropped to 7.3 per cent during January, as the Illinois unemployment rate decreased to 6.7 per cent.

A representative said President Carter was pleased by the improved jobs situation in early January, although "his pleasure was tinged with a heavy degree of caution." He acknowledged joblessness probably will climb in February.

A .5 per cent decline in joblessness between December and January was the biggest drop in a year. Not since last May has joblessness been as low as 7.3 per cent.

JULIUS SHISKIN, head of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, suggested the bad weather may have been responsible for the sharp decline as well. Most of it was caused by an unexplained exodus of some 440,000 from the labor force.

"One possible explanation is that many job seekers discontinued their efforts to find employment because of the unusually cold weather," Shiskin said.

As early as the week of Jan. 9 when the government's employment survey was taken, Shiskin said the increase in weather-related layoffs and reduced working hours "was almost double that of any increase in the past five years."

NEARLY 7 MILLION persons were unemployed during early January, a decline of 560,000 from the previous month. But total employment rose slightly to 88.6 million.

Bad weather already had caused the loss of 65,000 jobs in the construction industry by early January — a problem that has grown worse in recent weeks. The average work week for building tradesmen also dropped faster than in any other industry.

Adult workers benefited most from the January decline in unemployment. Joblessness among adult men fell to 5.6 per cent, and it was down to 6.9 per cent for women.

But teen-age unemployment stayed high at 18.7 per cent.

An Illinois Dept. of Labor representative said the figures were based on reports available early in the month and did not reflect layoffs since mid-January caused by the severe cold. She said cold weather layoffs were estimated at about 15,000 for the past weekend that figure "was still pretty good."

According to the seasonally adjusted figures, Illinois' 6.7 per cent unemployment rate was .6 per cent below the national average of 7.3 per cent.

There were mixed results throughout the state.

Unemployment fell in Decatur from 9 to 8.2 per cent; in Springfield from 6.9 to 5.7 per cent; in the Illinois section of St. Louis unemployment fell from 8.3 to 7.2 per cent; and in Peoria from 5.7 to 5.4 per cent.

Unemployment went up in the Bloomington-Normal area from 4 per cent in December to 4.5 per cent in January; and Rockford, 6.6 to 7 per cent; and the Illinois Quad Cities, 5 to 5.2 per cent.

Unemployment remained unchanged in the Champaign-Urbana-Rantoul area, 4.3 per cent.

The state's 6.7 per cent unemployment rate was more than a full percentage point better than January, 1976, when the rate was 7.9 per cent. The department said 338,100 Illinois residents were out of work during the first month of this year compared with 399,300 a year ago.

"Have you ever considered starting a market research department?"

East may get gas for weekend heat

A weekend cold snap could bring additional federal allocations of natural gas supplies to regions where high priority customers face fuel shortages, said Ray Sauve, Federal Power Commission representative in Washington, D.C. Sauve Friday said pipelines supplying homes, small commercial users and hospitals in Ohio and other eastern states may need additional fuel supplies during the next few days. Northern Illinois Gas Co. spokeswoman Sally Anderson said Friday the utility has had no indication its reserves of natural gas will be allocated by the commission to other regions of the United States. Service to residential customers in Northern Illinois will not be affected by an allocation, she said, adding "We can certainly understand this emergency situation but some long-range solutions to the problem are needed, starting with the deregulation of natural gas prices."

NICOR revenues on rise

NICOR, parent company of Northern Illinois Gas, reported 1976 earnings of $3.52 cents per share of common stock, up 27 cents from 1975. Income for 1976 was $52.8 million on revenues of $861.5 million, a $4.2 million increase more than $48.6 million reported in 1975 on revenues of $716.4 million. NICOR chairman J.C. Gauthier said the 1976 earnings do not fully reflect all of the revenue from the much colder than normal weather during the later part of the year. These revenues will be reported in 1977 as billings are made to customers. "At the same time, the gas costs for the period, are included in 1976 expenses," he said.

Centel shares average $2.50

Central Telephone & Utilities Corp., Chicago, reported 1976 primary earnings of $2.50 per average common share. Net income during the year reached $53.7 million on operating revenues of $422.6 million. Fourth quarter earnings amounted to 66 cents per average common share. Net income for the quarter was $14.2 million on operating revenues of $110.2 million. Robert P. Reuss, chairman, said fourth quarter electric utilities results improved significantly because of higher rates. The corporation's operations include Central Telephone Co. of Illinois, Des Plaines.

Food firms dividends told

The board of directors of Fairmont Foods Co., Houston, Tex. declared quarterly cash dividends of 17 cents a share on outstanding common stock and 25 cents a share on outstanding $1 cumulative preferred stock. The dividends are payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 4. Fairmont Foods has a facility in Des Plaines.

Hundreds a day call hotline

Illinois residents and business executives have been calling the Illinois Division of Energy telephone hotline service at the rate of several hundred a day, reports spokesman Dianne Shanks. Companies and individuals who wish to report energy problems may call the hotline number in Springfield, 217-782-1986.

Insurance firms pay $118 million

U.S. property-casualty insurance firms have paid more than $118 million during the past seven years to protect people who had claims against insolvent insurers, according to an insurance industry study group. The National Committee on Insurance Guaranty Funds estimated that the total cost for all companies declared insolvent by Jan. 1, 1977 will reach some $150 million after all claims are settled. Guaranty associations assessed insurance companies $121,225,778 from November 1960 to December 1976, the group said.

S&L assets climb $5 million

Total assets reported by Chicago Savings and Loan Assn. reached $114,126,088 as of Dec. 31, 1976. Philomena Pakel, chairman and president, said the figure is a gain of $5,139,407 compared to year-earlier assets. Total savings deposits as of Dec. 31 amounted to $95,428,181, an increase of nearly $7 million during the past year, Mrs. Pakel said. The association, 6245 S. Western, Chicago, has offices in Des Plaines, Darien and at 3434 W. North Ave., Chicago.

'Windfall' rebate has three basic economic flaws

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — For you and me individually, there's only one way to react if the government wants to hand us a $50-a-head tax rebate: take the money and run.

The voracious "public sector" sucks off far too much of our hard-earned wages as it is and wastes a remarkable proportion of what it inhales. So anytime it wants to reduce its haul from your pocket, don't feel guilty about shouting hallelujah.

But while a tax cut is welcome news, and while this one might provide a small, temporary bonanza for such businesses as restaurants (catering to the splurgers) and savings banks (catering to the thrifty), let's not kid ourselves that President Carter's latest fiscal finger snap makes any fundamental economic sense.

IT CARRIES, indeed, three fairly serious flaws:

• Once again, Washington is ignoring the necessity to promote investment, in favor of the more instantly popular promotion of consumption.

This was true of the 1976 rounds of tax revisions, before Carter arrived, and it is true to a worrisome extent of his own package. Despite the late addition of an investment tax-credit option for corporations, the program still walks right past the kinds of reforms that could markedly encourage individual investment.

Inadequate capital investment, individual and corporate, is a central long-range economic problem for the American economy. It contributes to a host of other problems, from joblessness to lagging productivity (which slumped again last quarter), and the recent trend of pro-consumption, anti-investment tax legislation is putting a drag on a solid, noninflationary economic recovery. Rebates, however tasty, won't do the job.

• Once again, we are being seduced by short-term tinkering instead of permanent change.

As Michael Blumenthal, the new secretary of the treasury recently acknowledged, taxes in the United States are, indeed, too high.The government takes too much of our national wealth. Though it continually shocks the theorists, the truth is that we usually spend our own money more intelligently than the bureaucrats can.

THE SOLUTION is to make permanent reductions in the level of income taxes, both those openly levied on us as individuals and those that we pay indirectly through business. Such a change would carry an additional, significant economic benefit. Unlike one-shot rebates, permanent cuts provide a basis for long-range planning and thus help inspire the confidence that a maximally expanding economy requires.

In contrast, perennially playing games with the tax system — as with one-term rebates that are supposed to make us "grateful" to the "benefactors" who are graciously allowing us the use of a little more of our own money — comes off as one more gimmicky attempt to "fine tune" the economy instead of curing its ills.

• Once again, we are widening the federal deficit and adding to the Red Sea of inflation that has poured out of Washington in 14 of the last 15 years.

Desirable — and essential — as tax cuts are, they make no lasting sense unless we also move toward cutting government spending. The true tax we pay each year is determined by the level of government spending, not by our tax bill. All the spending has to be paid for, somehow: if not through taxes, then through inflation.

And herein lies a clue to another element of the economic fakery in such schemes as the $50-a-head rebate. The government is giving us no authentic benefits if it hands us $50 with its taxing hand and simultaneously robs us of far more than $50 with its inflating hand.

Look at it this way. On each $10,000 of spendable income, every 1 per cent rise in the cost of living represents a tax of $100 — even before we start figuring in such additional factors as the evils of compounding, and the pernicious effects of an inflexible tax-bracket system. A $50 rebate can be dwarfed pretty quickly if the government keeps on inflating.

So when and if the government sends you your rebate check, cash it and enjoy. But don't think for a minute that the politicians have done you any enduring favors.

Premiums big business

Premiums and other marketing prizes likely will be a $5.5 billion business in 1977, the magazine Incentive Marketing predicts. The sum is more than 12 per cent above last year's actual outlays for premium and incentive merchandise.

Dow Jones up just a bit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although late profit-taking trimmed earlier leads, prices closed out a lackluster week with a small gain Friday — the first in three days — in fairly active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up nearly four points at one time, finished with a gain of only 0.75 to 947.89. For the week, it lost 9.64 points. However, for the year to date it has dropped 56.76 points.

The NYSE common stock index gained 0.04 to 55.46 and the average price of a common share increased by 2 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.03 to 101.88.

ADVANCES TOPPED declines, 826 to 606, among the 1,875 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 23,130,000 shares, compared with 23,790,000 traded Thursday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all exchanges at 3 p.m. totaled 25,492,340 shares, compared with 26,647,400 Thursday.

Investors were encouraged that short-term interest rates moderated following the Federal Reserve Board's report late Thursday that the nation's basic money supply fell $1.9 billion in the latest statistical week.

Prices rose in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex market value index gained 0.36 to 112.95 and the average price of a common share increased by 4 cents. Advances topped declines, 383 to 282, among the 945 issues crossing the tape. Turnover totaled 3,340,000 shares compared with 2,950,000 Thursday.

Mitchell, Haldeman

Nixon aides appeal convictions

by CHARLOTTE G. MOULOON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Watergate cover-up figures John Mitchell and H. R. Haldeman claimed Friday that the U. S. Supreme Court should review their 1975 convictions because of massive pretrial publicity.

Mitchell, the attorney general in Richard Nixon's administration, and Haldeman, one of the former President's top aides, stressed in an appeal the "enormity and pervasiveness of the pretrial publicity" as major grounds for a decision that their trial should have been delayed or held outside Washington.

Bound volumes of media accounts, the appeal said, are six feet high.

"BY PIECEMEAL revelation, a drama too bizarre for fiction was unfolded," it said.

In addition, the appeal noted, Mitchell was called to testify before both the Senate committee investigating the scandal and the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment proceedings and Haldeman went before the Senate committee.

The appeal also contended that:

- John Sirica should have disqualified himself as trail judge because he added to the publicity and made errors in rulings.
- Nixon's testimony should have been obtained.
- Mitchell's testimony before the congressional committees should not have been admitted.

"Why should the defendent be forced by the committee to disgorge his defenses to the grand jury's charges?" the appeal asked.

John Ehrlichman, another top Nixon aide and a third defendant, made his appeal to the high court earlier. He is serving time in a federal work camp awaiting the outcome of it.

THE THREE MEN were convicted by a jury on Jan. 1, 1975, on charges they conspired to obstruct justice and lied to a grand jury to cover up White House involvement in the 1972 break-in of the National Democratic Committee headquarters in the Watergate complex.

The Mitchell-Haldeman appeal accused the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, which upheld the convictions last Oct. 12, with a "studied effort to rewrite the Watergate affair."

The Supreme Court won't act on the appeal until the U.S. Justice Dept. files an answer.

Ehrlichman's appeal of his conviction on charges connected with breaking into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist is also before the high court.

'Tail Gunner Joe' Sunday

3-hour drama on Joe McCarthy

by JOAN HANAUER

NEWYORK (UPI) — The pudgy Marine sat behind the gun mount in a grounded bomber and machine-gunned the palm trees on a Pacific island, firing a record number of rounds at the coconuts.

A pair of World War II war correspondents thought it was funny and wrote a story about the record number of rounds, without mentioning that the plane wasn't airborne and the enemy was vegetable, not animal.

That was how Joe McCarthy got the nickname "Tail Gunner Joe" and helped him project the image of returning war hero that he parlayed into election as junior senator from Wisconsin.

THE THEMES OF deception, ambition and greed run through "Tail Gunner Joe," a drama about the life and career of Joe McCarthy — Communist hunter or witch hunter, depending on your viewpoint — that NBC will broadcast from 7 to 10 p.m. Sunday as a Big Event.

As a drama, "Tail Gunner Joe" takes off with the creaky device of a young television reporter who is told to research a retrospective story on McCarthy, but once the show is in the air, it flies.

Peter Boyle performs as a combination impersonator-actor, mimicking the McCarthy speech pattern but putting life and some fire into the man, also. The big flaw, for which the script can be faulted more than Boyle, is that from all accounts McCarthy could be extremely personable. Not this time around.

BURGESS MEREDITH as attorney Joseph Welch in the Army-McCarthy hearings of 1954, looks nothing like the Boston lawyer did, but he will recall the old gentleman for everyone who saw those televised hearings.

Patricia Neal makes a noble Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine; Roy Cohn with plastered down black hair is played by George Wyner, Andrew Duggan plays Dwight Eisenhower, and a number of other notables appear including Harry Truman, George Marshall and Dean Acheson in a scene the actors in those roles obviously enjoyed.

The performances are excellent and the story is accurate.

The interpretation of that history will draw strong disagreement from those who still admire Joe McCarthy, and from those who scorned his methods but believe his ends justified them.

Another NBC special of note, is "Emily, Emily," a Hallmark Hall Fame production that continues a story first told the 1969 special, "Teacher, Teacher."

The show deals with Freddy, a retarded boy — a child in the early version who now has grown to be 19. It will be on the air Monday 7-8:30 p.m. and is recommended by the National Education Assn.

Carter sticks with Warnke for arms post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday sent the Senate his nomination of Paul Warnke as chief U.S. arms negotiator, contending Warnke is "the best man in the country for the job."

Chairman John Sparkman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said nomination hearings would be "at an early date."

He invited Chairman John Stennis and other members of the Senate Armed Services Committee to attend the confirmation hearings "so any concerns can be explored fully with the nominee."

While Senate liberals seem generally ready to confirm Warnke's nomination to head the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, an unsigned, four-page memo was circulated by Senate conservatives.

The memo said Warnke's position was in "marked contrast" to Carter's.

But Carter's news secretary, Jody Powell, said Friday Carter believes Warnke's nomination "to be crucial to his administration."

Cards flash early league mat power

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Arlington powered seven wrestlers into the semifinals to take a surprising lead after the first night of combat in the Mid-Suburban conference wrestling meet at Fremd Friday.

Coach Jack Cutlip saw his first four Redbird grapplers all advance, including unseeded 98 pounder Tom Thiessen. Later, two other Cardinals pulled off upsets to help Arlington compile 47 points and a nice edge over Wheeling (38), Buffalo Grove (33), and Conant.

There were the usual rash of first night shockers although all 12 top-seeded wrestlers moved up to Saturday afternoon's semifinal arena. Among those falling by the wayside was last year's 105-pound champ Al Blount of the Cougars, who was shocked by Tim Bush of Elk Grove 14-7 in a 119-pound quarterfinal match.

BUFFALO GROVE'S front-seeded 167 pounder, Chris Rugg, nearly went to the sidelines as well, when Chris Scarton of the host Vikings put a five-point move on him in the last 30 seconds of their bout.

That tied the score but Rugg managed a last moment takedown to win, 10-8.

Also waiting until the last moment to win was Wildcat heavyweight Ken ant going into the last round, he esaant going into the last round, he escaped to tie the score but was neutralized until gaining a pin with one second remaining in the match.

Arlington's advancing wrestlers after Thiessen included top-ranked Paul Pressing at 105 and Dan Weber at 119 along with Kevin Smith at 112, unseeded Jason Slezak at 185 and heavyweight Ted Rumatz.

THE BIG CARD shocker occurred at 132 however where Gil Darmofal first improved on his 1-5 record by knocking off Cougar Scott Miller (11-10-1) by a 12-4 count and then upsetting second-seeded Bob Muff (13-4) of the Grenadiers, 8-5.

Buffalo Grove also elevated seven to the semis. In addition to Rugg, second-seeded Tim Foley (119), Dave Millay (126), Greg Thomson (138), Tim Dunn (155) and third-seeded Kirt Lewis (132) along with unranked 185 pounder Mark Teutsch all survived.

Wheeling and Conant, the two dual meet champions, will be hard pressed to catch up with the Bison and Redbirds. Each graduated only five to the semis.

Other Cougar casualties, in addition to Blount and Bello, included 185 pounder Jack Kerr, who was edged by Teutsch. Conant's top ranked Jon Gluck at 112 and John Brennan at 138 meanwhile both forged pins to advance handily.

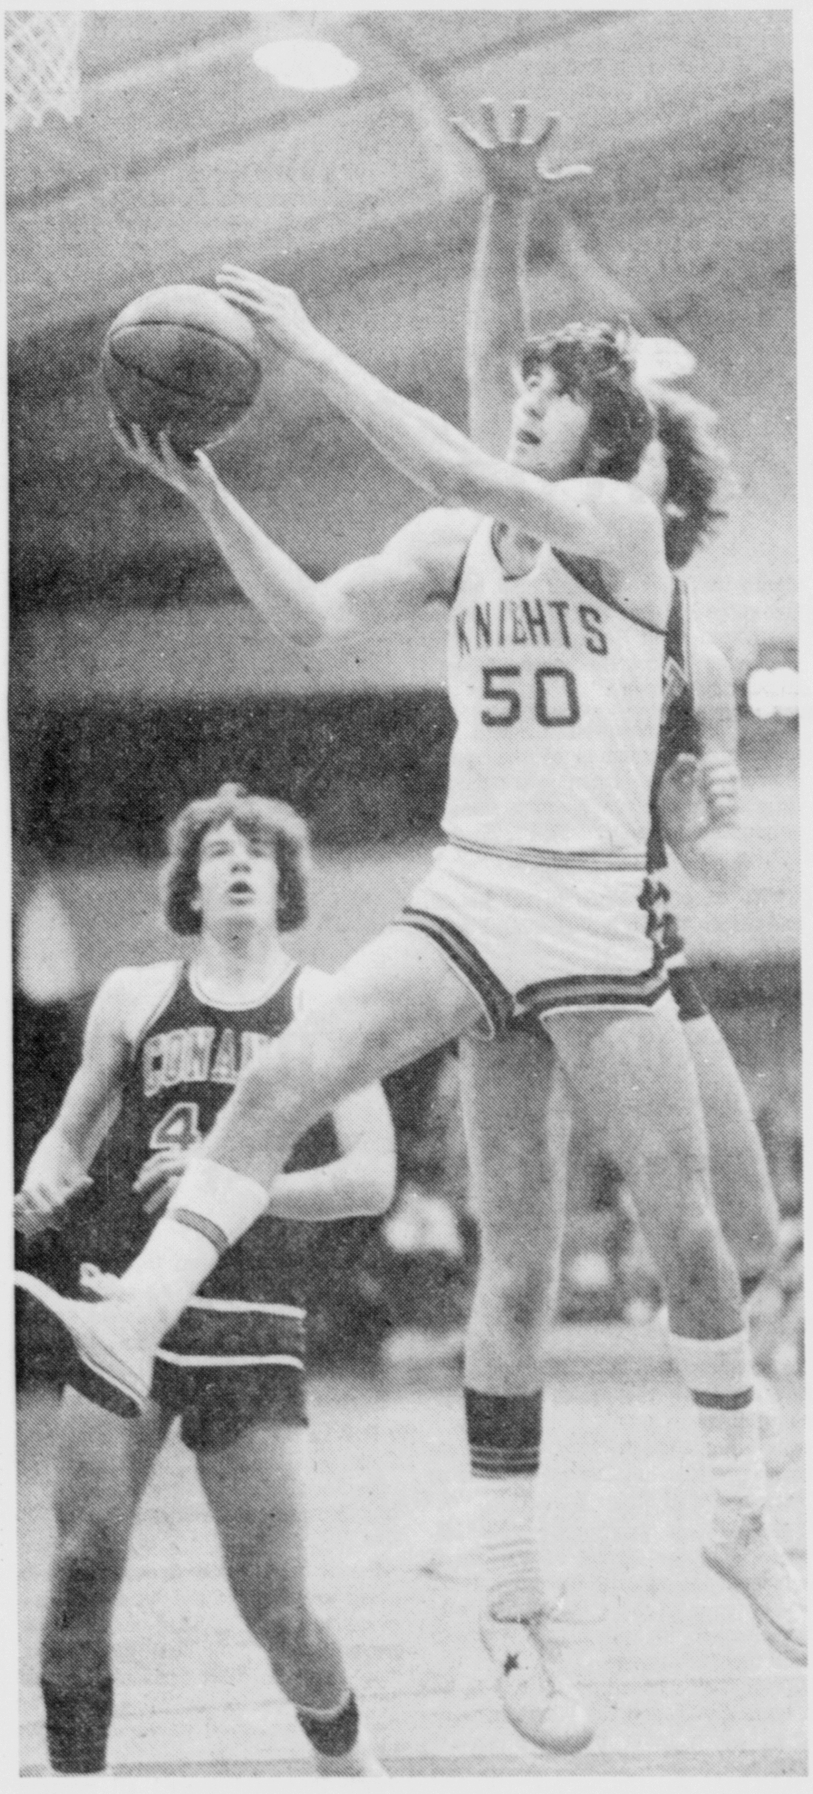

TOP-SEEDED Wildcats Mike Reif at 132 and Dale Walters at 145 were also winners by fall while front ranked 'Cat Dave Pearlman eased out a 4-3 verdict over Vike Greg Leggett at 155.

Other advancing top-seeded were Elk Grove's Jay Evans at 98, Curt Gordon of Hoffman Estates at 126 and Lon Reitz of Forest View at 185.

Team scoring after one session had a host of teams clogged in the middle. Conant had 29, Hoffman 28½, Elk Grove 27½, Hersey 26½, Prospect 23 and Palatine 22½. Rounding out the pack were Forest View with 16, Rolling Meadows with 15½, Fremd with 12, and Schaumburg with 11½.

BUFFALOED BISON. Ken Bartlett's great escape effort for Buffalo Grove goes for naught as he drops a 7-6 decision to Matt Bello of Conant in opening round action at the Fremd-hosted Mid-Suburban Conference Wrestling Meet. Bello subsequently was defeated after nearly battling top-seeded Ken Kent of Wheeling to a standoff in the next round. Tourney action continues today.

DRIVING BRAD Millar of Prospect scoops in a pair of his 21 points ahead of the Conant defense as the Knights trimmed the Cougars 69-65 Friday night.

Elk Grove keeps pace

Mustangs cling to lead

by ART MUGALIAN

The book on Rolling Meadows senior Jeff Schrock says he's physical, he plays good defense, and he has the vertical leap of a kangaroo. The book doesn't say he can shoot.

So the book will have to be revised.

Schrock scored 16 points and 6-3 teammate Kent Walker added 14 to lead Rolling Meadows to a 52-43 victory at Hoffman Estates Friday night, keeping the Mustangs a full game in front of Elk Grove in the Mid-Suburban South.

MEADOWS LED virtually all the way, breaking an early 6-6 tie with a 20-foot jumper by Bob Rose, a pair of fancy hooks by 6-3 junior Glenn Brettner, and a steal and layup by Walker.

Leading 16-10 at the start of the second quarter, the Mustangs maintained the edge on the varied shooting talents of Schrock, a 6-3 forward who started the game at center.

"Jeff has earned his starting job back," cracked a happy coach Bill Weinberg after the game, the team's ninth win in 10 South contests. "He made some mistakes out there, but he sure came through in the end."

Schrock's 10-point second-quarter effort kept the Mustangs in the hunt. He canned a 25-footer, then drove the baseline for an easty two-pointer, and capped the first half with a last-second 45-footer to give Meadows a 28-24 halftime cushion.

SCHROCK WAS playing in place of injured 6-8 center Kevin Kiley, who saw plenty of action despite his bad knee and scored six points.

"This has to be the toughest loss we've ever endured," said Hoffman coach Jerry Segebrecht who watched his team fall from the ranks of the South contenders at 5-3. "We played good basketball and we were getting our shots, but the ball has to go in the basket."

Hoffman's two top scorers, Ron Warring and Joe Tully, had just 17 points between them as the Hawks fell behind by as many as eight in the third period. Tully and John Staback led a charge in the final quarter that pulled them to within three points with 3:45 to play, but the Hawks didn't score the rest of the way while six free throws by Rose iced the victory.

Walker's 14 points came on long jumpers in the first half and fast-break layups after the intermission. The junior guard is averaging 14 points a game

"NOBODY TALKS much about Kent," said Weinberg, "but I think he can do more than any guard in the league."

Rose contributed eight points to the Mustang cause and 6-3 junior Kevin Krutwig added seven rebounds.

Staback led Hoffman with 13 points.

Grens win, 68-41

by BILL HILL

Two starters sat out most of the game in foul trouble and another regular suffered a sprained ankle, but the Elk Grove Grenadiers banded together Friday night at Schaumburg to easily defeat the Saxons, 68-41.

The win allowed Elk Grove to keep pace with Rolling Meadows, a winner over Hoffman Estates, in their race for the championship of the Mid-Suburban South division. The two teams are even in the loss column but Rolling Meadows is two games ahead in the win column.

It was a case of the old maxim of balanced scoring meaning the difference as the Grenadiers shared the load to offset the usual standout performance of Schaumburg's John Chmiel, who finished with 21 points.

"I DON'T KNOW who had all our points. It was a nice balanced effort with good defense," said Grenadier coach Ken Grams afterwards.

Elk Grove actually was never seriously threatened as the Grenadiers raced to their tenth win of the season. They now have a 7-1 record in conference play.

Whistle-happy officials slowed the progress of the game but did little to halt the refined play of the Grenadiers.

Elk Grove led 18-10 at the end of the first quarter. But Dave Champa sprained an ankle and Marc Evans and Mark Smith, the team's leading scorer, soon found themselves in foul trouble in the second quarter as the Saxons made an abbreviated challenge.

ELK GROVE LED 34-26 at halftime and then completely outmaneuvered the Saxons in the third quarter as they compiled a 49-32 lead. The Grenadiers were poised on offense, even with reserves playing much of the time, and employed an effective zone defense to thwart Chmiel, the Saxons' 6-7 junior center who is the conference's leading scorer.

"The zone is our basic defense," Grams said. "We just tried to sag on him (Chmiel) to let him know we were in town," he said.

Grams' squad also displayed smart shooting throughout the game with a 51 per cent average in the first half and a 57 per cent clip in the second half.

More importantly, the Grenadiers forced the Saxons into multiple turnovers in the second half and allowed the hosts to take only 12 shots in the final two periods. Schaumburg only converted four of those shots as Elk Grove jumped to leads in excess of 20 points during the final period.

Saxon coach Joe Breault attributed the solid performance of the Grenadiers to the momentum they've gained in their fight for the conference championship.

"They dictated the offensive and defensive play. They're a championship team going down the stretch with a lot of momentum," Breault said.

"We're used to teams sagging on Chmiel. Some games we adjust and the rest of our guys pick up the slack, but tonight we didn't," he said.

Mike Marshall leads the way

Bison ramble past Palatine, 83-51

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The Buffalo Grove Bison, loose and relaxed after wrapping up their second straight Mid-Suburban League North Division title last week, hit 17 of 26 shots from the floor in the first half as they rushed past the Palatine Pirates 83-51.

For the Bison, ranked eighth in the state, it was win No. 21 in 22 confrontations. It was a game that saw Buffalo Grove strike with such offensive assurance that the outcome was decided long before the Bison held a 42-19 halftime lead.

"We just ran our offense," said Bison coach Paul Grady. "When I write my book and become famous then we'll give it a name. But all I can tell you is that it's a combination of a lot of things.

"WITH THE PLAYERS we've got, and with Brian (Allsmiller) inside, we've got everybody we play between the Devil and the deep blue sea."

Allsmiller, the Bison' 6-8 All-State center, turned in a subpar statistical showing with 11 points and just eight rebounds. But there were plenty of other Bison for the Pirates to contend with.

Forward Mike Marshall, a 6-4 junior, hit six field goals and eight of eight free throws to lead all scorers with 20 points.

Senior guard Scott Groot canned 17 points, many from 20 feet out and and 6-5 Phil Czosnyka came off the bench to score a dozen.

BUFFALO GROVE never trailed in the game and jumped to an 11-point lead twice in the first quarter before Palatine's 6-6½ Kevin McKenna brought them within eight at the end of the period.

McKenna outplayed Allsmiller for the second time this season, popping 19 points and collecting 12 rebounds. He also put Allsmiller on the bench with foul trouble before fouling out himself, for the eighth time this year, while crashing the boards.

Doug Buenzow scored 13 points for the Pirates while sophomore Bob Cole, a starter at center, added seven.

Marshall hit for 10 of his points in the second period as the Bison swept away from the Pirates.

BUFFALO GROVE'S defense, which forced 32 Palatine turnovers, held Palatine without a field goal for the last three minutes of the half while they rolled up 10 unanswered points themselves.

"It was a good game for us," Grady said. "What we're looking for now is consistency of effort.

"Every game we play this year we're at a psychological disadvantage. Everyone gets their biggest crowd when we come in and they all want to see us get beat.

"We're going to run into a hot team but consistent defense will take care of the hot nights."

TOM WATSON digs out of a sand trap in the $240,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament in Honolulu. Don January has taken a one-shot lead halfway through the competition.

January holds lead, big guys miss cut

HONOLULU — One-time PGA Tour dropout Don January fashioned a 64 Friday for a two round total of nine under par 135 and a one-stroke lead over Grier Jones and Japan's Takashi Murakami halfway through the $240,000 Hawaiian Open.

Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Dick Stockton all failed to make the cut for the final two rounds. It marked only the second time in the last six weeks Nicklaus failed to make the cut in any tournament.

January, a 47-year-old Texan who left the Tour in 1974 to devote full time to a golf course designing career and then came back when hit by a recession, rolled in eight birdie putts ranging from one to 50 feet over the 7,234 yard Waialae Country Club course. He had an opening round 71.

Jones, with only one tournament victory since winning the 1972 Hawaiian Open, got off to a fast start, birdying his first five holes. However, he settled into a second place tie with Murakami at 136 after also shooting a second round 64.

Pistons, Lanier roll past Denver

Bob Lanier matched his season high with 40 points, grabbed 21 rebounds and had a career best nine blocked shots in pacing the Detroit Pistons to a 124-111 victory Friday night over the Denver Nuggets in the National Basketball Assn.

Austin Carr sank two free throws with six seconds to play to lift the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 102-101 win over the Kansas City Kings and only their second road win in their last 14 games. Boston's Fred Saunders and Jo Jo White combined for 17 points in the final period and Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 33 points, missed one of two free throws that would have tied the game with six seconds to play as the Celtics edged the Lakers 99-98.

Mike Bantom scored 32 points, including two foul shots with 10 seconds to play, to give the New York Nets a shocking 113-112 victory over the Atlantic Division-leading Philadelphia 76ers.

Brawl highlights Flames' triumph

ATLANTA — Rey Comero whipped in two goals to lead the Atlanta Flames to a 6-3 victory over the Boston Bruins Friday night in a game marked by an 18-minute brawl and 119 minutes in penalties.

At the end of the second period, Jerry Cheevers left the crease and skated to the corner in a clearing attempt and Atlanta's Willi Plet promptly hammered him into the boards, launching a bench-clearing brawl. It took 18 minutes to clear the ice.

In all, the Bruins took 76 minutes in penalties and the Flames 43. Stan Jonathan, Terry O'Reilly and John Wensink were ejected for Boston, as was Atlanta's Plett.

Rockford skater wins U.S. crown

HARTFORD, Conn. — Sandy Lenz, of Rockford, Ill., won the junior ladies figure skating crown in the U.S. Figure Skating Championships competiton Friday night.

In other competition, defending world champions Judy Genovesi and Kent Weigle gave another strong first place performance to virtually clinch the gold dance title.

The two Connecticut skaters received firsts from six of the seven judges in compulsory and original set pattern dances to put them in a commanding position for the finals Saturday.

The performance matched their dazzling skating Thursday in which they received first place from all seven judges in the waltz and quickstep.

In the final junior ladies competition Friday night, Cindy Perpich, of Littleton, Colo., finished second and Clarissa Perrella, of Oakland, Calif., finished third.

District meets at 3 area sites

Bowlers in 2nd season

by ART MUGALIAN

Even girls bowling has a second season and it starts today in three area houses.

District meets at 28 centers around the state will feed into the state tournament next weekend in Peoria. District winners will advance to the state meet.

MID-SUBURBAN champion Arlington, led by sophomores Barb Dougherty and Denise Randolph, will be the favorite at the Hersey District beginning at 11:30 a.m. at Thunderbird Lanes in Mount Prospect. Buffalo Grove, Palatine and Wheeling will also compete.

Former state champ Forest View hosts Rolling Meadows, Fremd, Prospect and Elk Grove at Fair Lanes in Rolling Meadows at 9 a.m.

Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Conant will journey to the Elgin-Larkin District at Elgin Lanes at 9:30.

"ANYTHING GOES in district competition," said Arlington coach Linda Thompson, whose surprising Cardinals broke Forest View's string of three MSL titles this season. "We're not too cocky. We'll be bowling on different lanes and that can make a big difference."

Mid-Suburban League matches are rolled at Fair Lanes, so Thompson's girls have made a point of getting in some practice time at Thunderbird during the past week.

"I'm really having a hard time determining my five starters," Thompson admitted. "I've had eight kids practicing and it's really difficult."

Her top bowlers, Dougherty and Randolph, have 156 averages and are guaranteed a spot in the district lineup. Others with a good shot are Kathy Golden, with a 152 average, and Carol Holland and Caroline Schaefer, each averaging 150.

"We're coming off a tremendous win and the girls are up," said Thompson. "But the competition is tough."

ARLINGTON WON'T have to face Forest View — at least until the state finals. Coach Warren Myers' Falcons were the only team to beat the Cards this year, but the 1974 state champs are in a different district. Their toughest challenge may come from Rolling Meadows, which took two points from the Falcons earlier in the year.

"I don't know who's going to win the districts," said Myers cautiously, "but if Arlington and us go downstate, I think we're both capable of doing something down there — we're both big-scoring teams."

Forest View, led by MSL scoring champ Nancy Lachus' 164 average, is looking for a fourth straight Peoria appearance. Myers has five returnees from last year's state runner-up team, but his lineup this year is anything but settled.

His top four are Lachus, Judy Pleickhardt, transfer Karen Toppel, and freshman Karen Ellingsworth. Three state-meet veterans, Debbie Compton, Cheryl Hanson and Julie Mathews, will vie for the two remaining spots, including a substitute's berth.

SCHAUMBURG, the MSL's fourth-place team, will have to fight off a tough Elgin squad in order to reach Peoria for the fourth time in five years. The Saxons are led by Sue Huzar, whose 158 average was third in the league, and Carrie Cihak. Also on the team are Debbie Riemer, Kim Crawford, and freshman Lorraine Clelland.

Harper's matmen in N4C tourney

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Norm Lovelace is hoping that quality and not quantity will tell the story as he prepares to lead his Harper wrestling team into the N4C tournament at Triton today.

The Hawk coach will be fielding less than a full squad for the eight-team gathering but virtually all of his grapplers are potential point-earners and several have excellent chances to reign over their respective fields.

The tourney will start at the River Grove school at 1 p.m. and run almost continuously until champions are crowned at 10 weights. Defending co-champs Triton and Joliet are again expected to battle it out for top laurels while the Hawks look to improve on their third place showing of a year ago.

IF HARPER hasn't picked up enough scoring through the first six divisions, they can count themselves out of the running for team honors. Lovelace has seen all of his heavier matmen felled by injuries over the course of the season and will not have any entries beyond 158 pounds.

At 118 Hawk Jim Dugo will take a 9-2 mark into action and Dennis Lake of Joliet and Dan Urie of Triton are expected to be his chief foes. Jamie King will represent Harper at 126 again (he was runnerup in the meet in 1976) and his major competition could be Willie Staples of Joliet, if eligible, and Bob Valesquez of DuPage.

Neal Kendall (13-2) is the Hawk entry at 134 and he could well battle his way into a finals showdown with Roger McCausland of DuPage. At 142 returning champ Angelo Palais of DuPage and Joliet's Tom Reuttinger will be the major opposition for Hawk John Preissing (10-3).

A TOUGH 150-pound class will include Mark Rubbidge of DuPage as well as strong Rock Valley and Triton entries. Dan Lynch will represent the Hawks.

At 158 Greg Moore of Triton is a heavy favorite while Steve Dulin will battle on behalf of Harper. Another Triton wrestler, Bob Ruzich, is the defending loop champ at 167.

Former Hoffman Estates standout Jim Thomas will be one of the top grapplers at 177, representing Triton. At 190 pounds and heavyweight there are two more returning Triton conference champs in Sam Carson and John Nino.

HARPER PREPPED for the league showdown by taking two out of three dual meets against four-year schools. Thursday, Dugo, King and Kendall were all triple winners as the Hawks toppled Concordia 30-20 and Carroll 27-23 while falling to host Carthage, 33-15.

Prospect rallies to overcome Conant

by JIM COOK

Prospect was in a pinch, Brad Millar needed a pinch and Paul Izban delivered the punch as the Knights trimmed Conant, 69-65 Friday night.

The Cougars, threatening to chalk their first triumph of the season in 16 starts, enjoyed an eight-point lead late in the third quarter.

But Millar, whose inconsistent play prevented him from starting, came off the bench for 21 points and 14 rebounds.

AND IZBAN, a slick-shooting junior who moves equally well without the ball, riveted 25 points, including nine of Prospect's final 13 points in the clutch to seal the Knights' third league win in nine starts and sixth in 20 over-all.

"They both played a ton," Prospect head coach Bill Slayton remarked. "They really took command when we needed it. Conant gave us the ball game we were expecting."

The Cougars looked anything but winless as they set the tempo through the first two and one-half periods. Quarterback Rob Totten directed the attack and uncorked several several brilliant assists, many to Ed MacDonald who stuffed through 20 hard-earned points and pulled down a dozen boards.

Totten, MacDonald and steady Dave Brumm each had eight points at the intermission as Conant held the upper hand, 34-28. But with Millar sweeping the boards and Izban knifing through the lane for acrobatic jump shots, the Knights scratched back for a 48-48 standoff after three quarters.

"WE'VE HAD SEVERAL games where we'd have a good lead late in the game but fail to hold it," Conant head man Dick Redlinger said. "We just seem to lack the knockout punch to put a team away."

The lead seasawed through the opening four minutes of the fourth quarter before Izpan yanked the Knights to safety with nine straight points and a 64-59 cushion with 2:09 left.

"We expected Izban to get his 20, and (Jim) Apuzzo 10," Redlinger said, "but Millar really killed us inside. MacDonald doesn't have much mobility because of his knee and Millar really did the job."

"For as young as we are," Slayton added, "we showed signs of playing some good ball. "For the most part tonight, we had two sophomores (Apuzzo and Dave LaCosse) and two juniors (Izban and Andy Loos) on the floor."

And Brad Millar, one determined senior.

Second-half explosion earns Maine West win

by DOUG PALM

Patience, teamwork, hustle, unselfishness.

Those were the key ingredients Friday night, as the Maine West Warriors turned in a solid team effort in a convincing 65-51 victory over Glenbrook North in Central Suburban South action at Maine West.

Maine West was particularly impressive in the second half, when it outscored the visiting Spartans, 34-24. What was even more impressive, was the manner in which the Warriors built their advantage.

Basketball was always meant to be a team game, and the Warriors were every bit a team from the second quarter on.

TRAILING 14-6 at one point in the opening quarter, the Warriors regrouped at both ends of the court.

Defensively, Maine West tightened up its zone defense and denied the visitors the movement inside, which they had enjoyed in the earlier stages.

Maine West displayed a consistent alertness which resulted in 17 Glenbrook North turnovers.

It was on offense, perhaps, where the Warriors were most effective with four starters in double figures.

Maine West head coach Gaston Freeman had reason to be pleased with the patience of his team, when they had the ball. Intent on taking the good percentage shot, the Warriors patiently worked the ball around the perimeter with numerous passes.

PLAYERS WITH seemingly good shots would look for teammates with even better opportunities, especially if that teammate was open from 10-15 feet.

Senior guard Bob Anderson was a prime example of the unselfish style of play, which typified the Warrior performance. Time and time again, Anderson was willing and able to find an open man for easy baskets. For the night, Anderson was credited with nine assists.

Bob Zuccarini topped all scorers with 18 points, but he was ably assisted by senior guard Kevin Gerhardt, who tallied 16 points. Pete Karabas and Anderson added 12 apiece.

Freeman echoed the sentiments of an appreciative home crowd, when he termed the Warrior effort "fantastic."

"WE WERE truly a team out there tonight, with everyone contributing.

The victory evened Maine West's overall mark to 9-9 and improved its CSL mark to 4-5.

ESCC forms cage coaches' group

The newly formed East Suburban Catholic Conference basketball coaches' association recently elected officers for the coming year.

St. Viator basketball coach Ron Cregier was voted to the position of secretary. Max Kurland of St. Patrick High School is president. Gene Pingatore of St. Joseph's is vice-president. Stu Snow of Notre Dame High School in Niles is treasurer.

"The association was formed to promote the league and basketball throughout the area," said Cregier.

Swim triangle looms as Grens swim by Knights

by BOB GALLAS

Elk Grove swimmers got some revenge and set up a three-way battle for the Mid-Suburban League title by narrowly defeating Prospect, 86½-84½, Friday in a meet that went down to the final event.

The win avenged the Grens' only defeat of the season, which came at the hands of league-leading Arlington two weeks ago, and put Elk Grove just behind the 6-0-1 Cards, and just ahead of the 5-1-1 Prospect team. Prospect and Arlington tied when they faced each other earlier in the season.

The meet came down to the final relay but by then Prospect had already swum its top swimmers in the maximum three events and didn't have enough left. Elk Grove took first and third places to get enough points for a victory.

BUT THE TURNING point of the meet came in the second-to-the-last event of the afternoon, the breaststroke, which was won by Prospect's Ed Boutet. The Knights took first, third and fourth in the event but the fourth place swimmer, Doug Young, was disqualified because of an illegal kick. That meant Prospect lost two points while Elk Grove moved into fourth and gained two, for a four-point difference that proved to be enough to win for Elk Grove.

"But we also got help from unexpected places," said Elk Grove coach Pete Weber. Sophomore Don Irbe took a third for the Grens in the 500-yard freestyle and soph Jim Soja took an unexpected third in the 200-yard freestyle for Grove.

Oddly enough the Grens won despite having a meet Thursday, a makeup contest with Hersey that was rescheduled from last week when cold weather closed many pools.

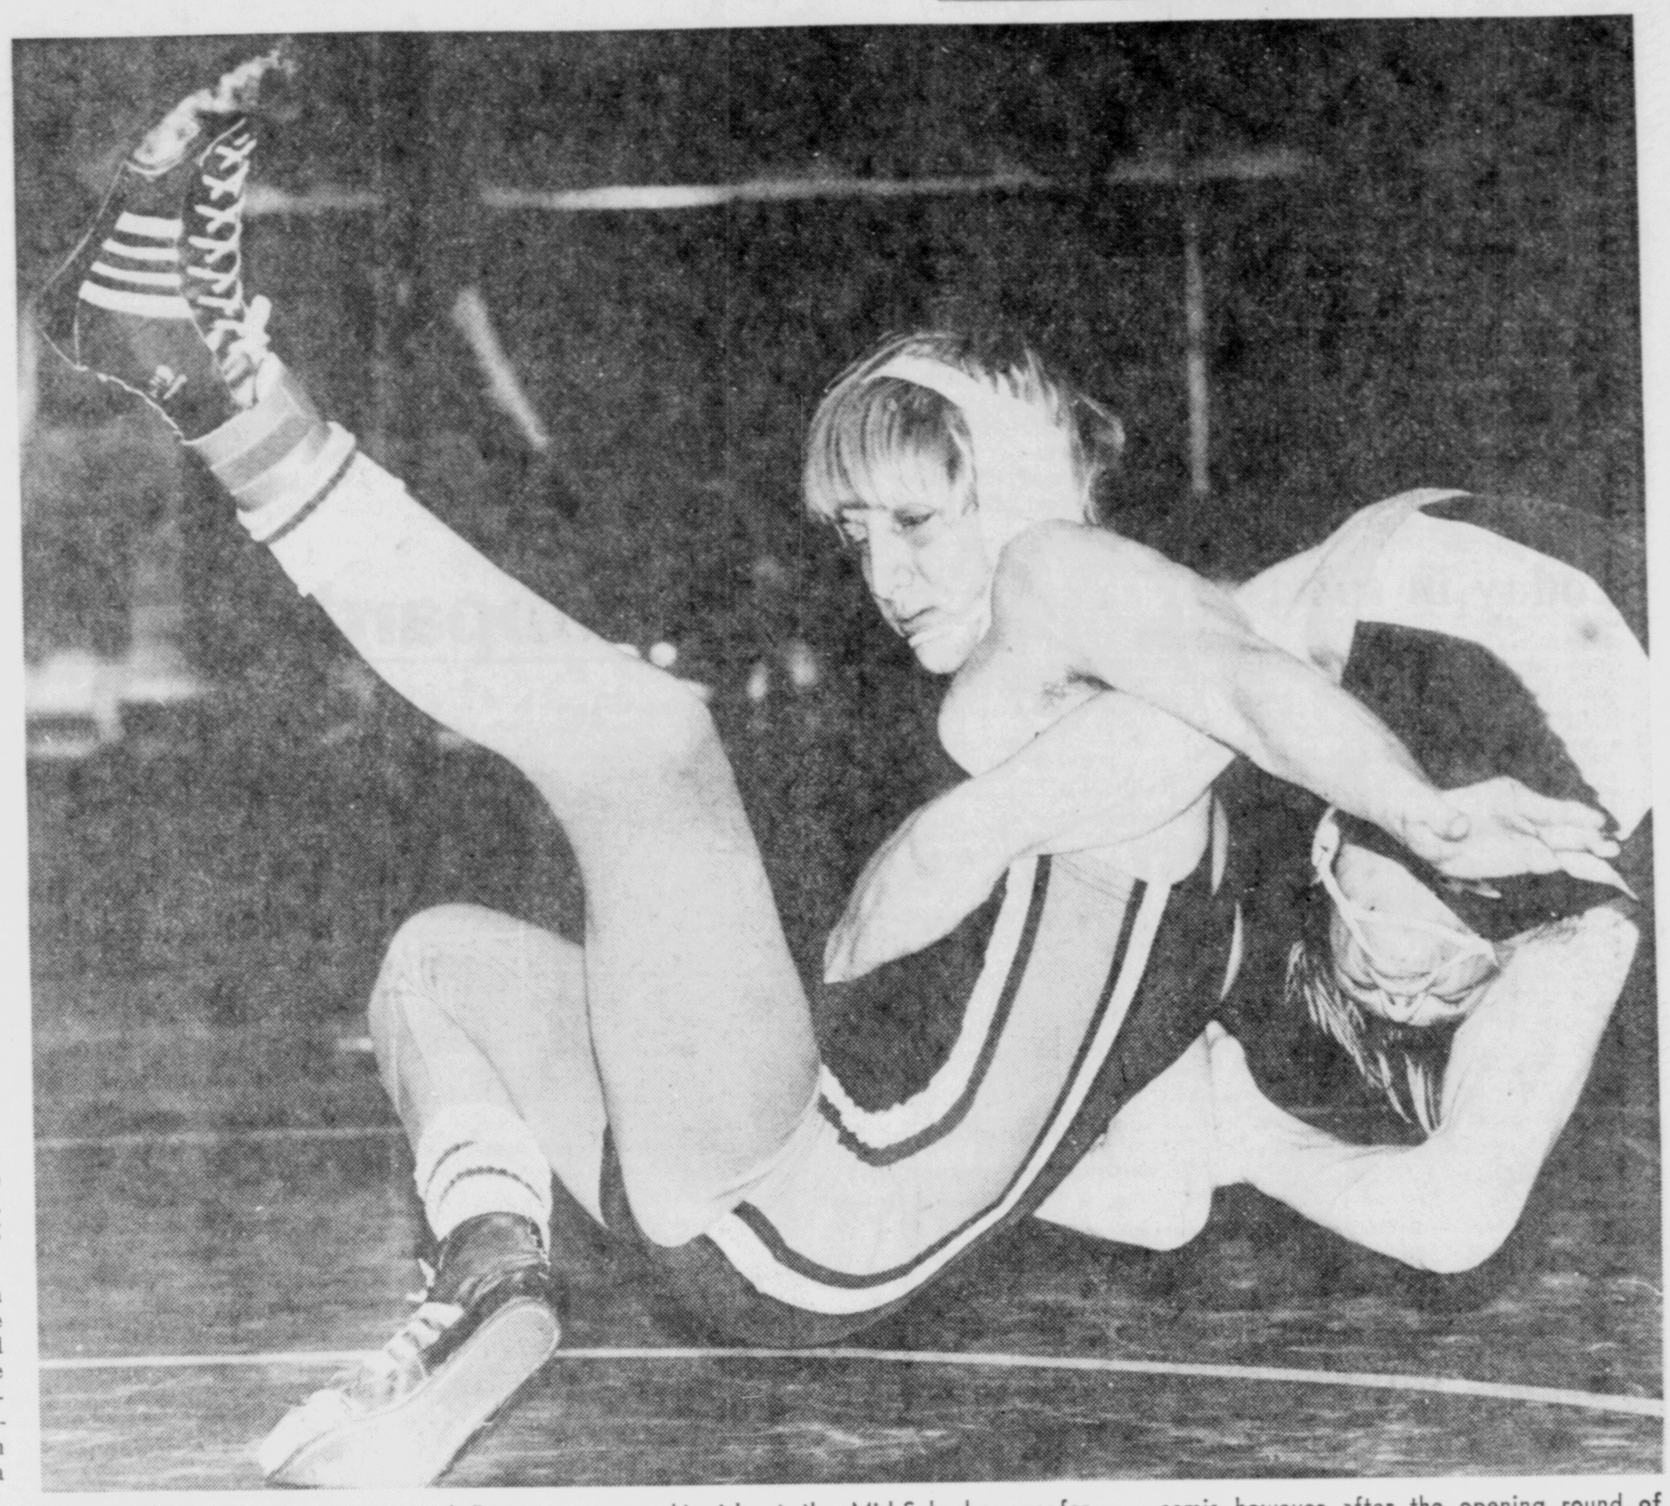

"We've done well before swimming consecutive days," said Weber, who probably wishes he could schedule a meet before this Friday's conference clash.

PROSPECT'S Tom Cole bettered his state leading time in the butterfly by turning a 52.3, compared to his previous best of 52.65. Cole also won the 50-yard freestyle, equaling his best time of the year, a 22.1, in doing so.

Gary Drake led Elk Grove by taking first in the 500-yard freestyle (5:07.6), 200-yard freestyle (1:53.05), and swimming on the Grens' winning free relay team.

Prospect's loss means Arlington could win its fifth straight MSL title merely by finishing second behind Prospect in the league meet, since the crown is decided on the basis of regular season wins and place in the conference meet. Arlington would tie with Prospect for the title in the event of a Prospect-Arlington finish.

Arlington could win the crown outright by winning Friday's league meet as could Elk Grove.

Kloiber, Thomas impressive

Cards close fast, tip Huskies

It didn't carry the usual significance of a basketball meeting between Arlington and Hersey, the crowd was only so-so, but that didn't detract from the drama generated Friday night in Grace Gymnasium.

In a tense battle that wasn't settled until the final seconds, the host Cardinals shook off the stubborn Huskies, 68-62, for the second time this winter.

Arlington, a 66-64 victor over Hersey in an earlier meeting, was on top by only four points with two minutes remaining, but Greg Kloiber, who had another big evening, keyed a closing charge that sealed the Cards' 13th win in 19 outings.

COACH GEORGE Zigman's outfit needed a big finish to offset the tenacious visitors, who were sparked by an incredible show by 6-foot-2 Jim Thomas.

Thomas hit for 36 points with 12 baskets and 12 free throws and also pulled down seven rebounds. Kloiber had 23 rebounds and 30 points.

Hersey trailed by two at halftime but vaulted into a 45-40 lead late in the third quarter. Arlington battled back to cut the gap to a pair at the buzzer on a basket by soph Chris DeSimone, and the teams traded points early in the concluding stanza until the Cards made their move.

AT THE 5:00 mark Kloiber's basket gave Arlington a 53-51 advantage, and they held on in a hectic finish although Rog Steingraber's Huskies made a couple serious rushes down the stretch.

Hersey lost both centers on fouls in the final half — Todd Walker and Gary Meyer — and Arlington capitalized with Kloiber underneath.

The Cards had a 60-57 lead with 2:30 remaining when Dave Kamps hit a big basket on a rebound. After Thomas dropped in a free throw, Kloiber went to work again to settle things.

THE TWO TEAMS shook off a slow start with some offensive fireworks in the second period, and Arlington carried a 32-30 advantage at halftime.

Driving away from a 22-22 deadlock in the closing three minutes, the Cardinals stretched their advantage to six points at 32-26. Hersey battled back on two free throws by Thomas and a desperation 30-footer by T. R. Frye at the buzzer.

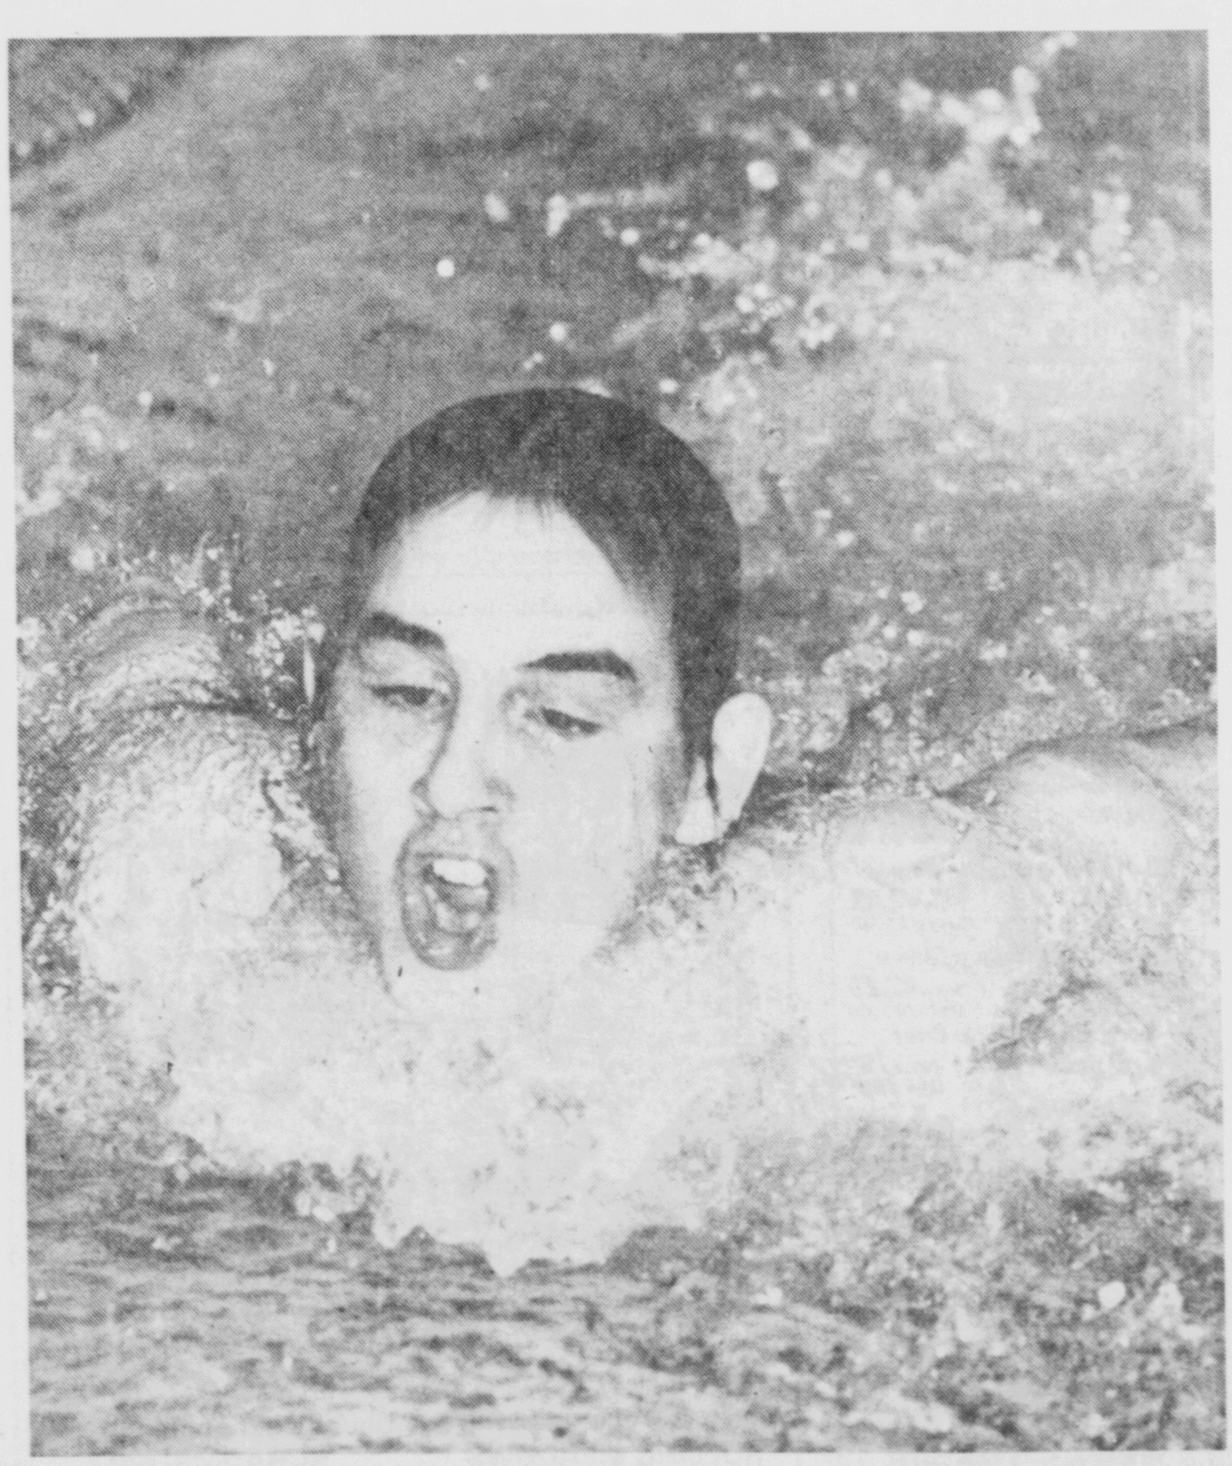

With the whistle blowing and some tentative play on both sides, the game got off to a shaky start, but the teams finally warmed up.

HERSEY HAD only two leads in that opening stanza, and Arlington's Frank DeSimone, who was a key factor in the early going, popped in a basket that set an 8-8 deadlock. Jim Zobel followed with two points off a missed free throw, and Arlington had a lead it didn't relinquish during the rest of the first half.

Hersey was down by two (14-12) after one period, enjoyed four ties in the second quarter, but the Cardinals made their rush at the 3:00 mark when Kloiber fired in a fadeway jumper.

Some nifty work by Dan Frase helped set up three baskets and give Arlington a 32-26 lead with 24 seconds remaining before the intermission. Thomas then hit two free throws and Frye popped in a 30-footer to close the gap to 32-30 and keep things interesting.

It was interesting the rest of the way.

FINISHING HARD. Prospect's Tom Balas is en route to a second place finish Friday in the 200-yard individual medley. Elk Grove's Tim Bird won the event in 2:09.6 and the Grens went on to defeat Prospect in a down-to-the-wire meet at the Knights' home pool, 86½-84½.

Wheeling surprises Fremd with solid 85-76 victory

by JEFF NORDLUND

Keeping in mind Wheeling's boys basketball team was 4-14 coming into the game Friday, the Wildcats' 85-76 win over visiting Fremd was a shocker.

After all, Fremd's 9-8 record looked a whole lot better, and the Vikes had lost to Mid-Suburban North leader Buffalo Grove by only nine points Tuesday. But the record and play of his team this season have been a puzzle to Wheeling coach Ted Ecker.

"It's a real mystery to me how we're at this particular record at this point of the season," Ecker said following the nervous triumph. "I've told the kids we've had the toughest schedule around. We've played Barrington, West Aurora, Proviso West and Batavia, as well as Buffalo Grove this season."

"WE'VE PLAYED well against some very fine teams," the coach continued. "But we've had trouble putting two halves together this season. We've had some mental lapses and have let down in the past."

There was no letting down Friday, which is one of the reasons the performance by the Wildcats was pleasing to Ecker. Fremd maintained pressure throughout the game until the final minutes of the last quarter when it became obvious Wheeling was not going to fold.

In fact, Wheeling gained momentum as the game wore on, blasting 50 points in the final period. Shooting an even 50 per cent from the field (31 of 62), the Wildcats never trailed after inching to the lead late in the second quarter.

"We were strong with our man-to-man defense today," Ecker said. "We took their offense away from them. Last time we played, they did the same thing to us."

"WE WERE JUST excellent on defense," the coach added. "I couldn't be more pleased."

But it was the offense that carried the day for Wheeling, with a strong boost from Jim Sabal. He scored a team high 25 points, including seven of nine free throw attempts in the final quarter when Fremd tried to get back in the game by sending Wildcats to the line.

Sabal was nine of 13 from the field, showing just as deadly an eye there. Brian Begrowicz dropped in another 19 for Wheeling, while teammate Dan Larson also reached double figures with 11.

Fremd's frustration over the turn of events this week began to show at the game's end, as it committed 13 fourth-quarter fouls. Scott Rawlins and Kerry Field fouled out, followed by Wheeling's Jim Lockefeer and Ken Paulus in the last minutes.

CRAIG RAWLINS and Dave Hallberg dominated Fremd's scoring with 28 and 26 points, respectively, but no one else reached double figures.

Ecker gave credit to sub guard Rick Heredia whose play in the second quarter sparked Wheeling to the lead. He scored five points for the night.

St. Viator wins overtime thriller, tops Carmel 63-60

by BOB GALLAS

Rick Sanders was thinking pass, but ended up shooting twice to spark the St. Viator Lions to an overtime 63-60 win over East Suburban Catholic Conference foe Carmel Friday night.

Sanders drove down the lane with six seconds remaining in regulation time but his layup missed. However, the 6-0 junior guard followed up by grabbing the rebound and putting it in with three seconds left to send the game into overtime tied at 56.

The Lions eventually won after fouling out three Carmel starters in the extra period.

"I WAS SUPPOSED to get the ball, go to the basket and was looking to pass off to (6-7 Paul) Wiloff or (6-4 Paul) Rogozinki," Sanders said afterward. "But the guy guarding me sagged off when I faked a pass and luckily the ball came right back down and I got another shot."

Sanders carried the responsibility for filling the void left by Lion captain Steve Notaro, who's sick in bed with the flu and back problems. And Sanders came through when it counted Friday.

"I was skeptical of the bench," admitted Lions' coach Ron Cregier, who not only had to fill in for Notaro but for Rogozinski, who sat out much of the contest with four fouls. "But they came through for us," said Creigier, whose club is now 12-6 overall and has won three straight league games since losing their opening five.

But while the Lions had to depend on their bench the Corsairs were having personnel problems of their own.

FOUR CARMEL players, three in the overtime, fouled out of the game and the only two Corsairs with any height, 6-8 Mark Ornatek and 6-5 Tom Quinn, spent much of the game on the sidelines in foul trouble before eventually fouling out.

After starting out by letting Carmel burst out to a 12-2 advantage, the Lions were able to come back from a 17-11 deficit at the end of one quarter when Ornatek picked up his third personal late in the opening period and retired to the bench.

Reserve center Quinn couldn't handle Wiloff, who hit for a career high 28 points, and Viator bounded back to lead 28-24 at intermission.

The lead changed hands more than a dozen times in the final half as league-leading scorer Tim Murray kept the Corsairs in contention by netting 17 of his 27 game points in the third and fourth periods.

WITH FOUR starters gone, Carmel still threatened until 37 seconds were left in the overtime. Wiloff pumped in a pair of free throws to pull Viator up 62-60, then Viator got the ball back when Carmel missed a shot. Sanders dropped in a free throw with three seconds left to seal the win.

The Lions host conference leader St. Patrick's tonight. Game time is about 8 p.m.

Stevenson tips Woodstock, 70-67

Stevenson employed balance scoring to overcome foul trouble by two of its starters Friday night in handing Woodstock a 70-67 defeat.

Doug Barnett cashed 18 points, Doug Atkins 15 and Mark Cordes 14 for the 9-2 Patriots who finally withstood a 28-20 fourth-quarter scoring blitz by host Woodstock to ring up the triumph.

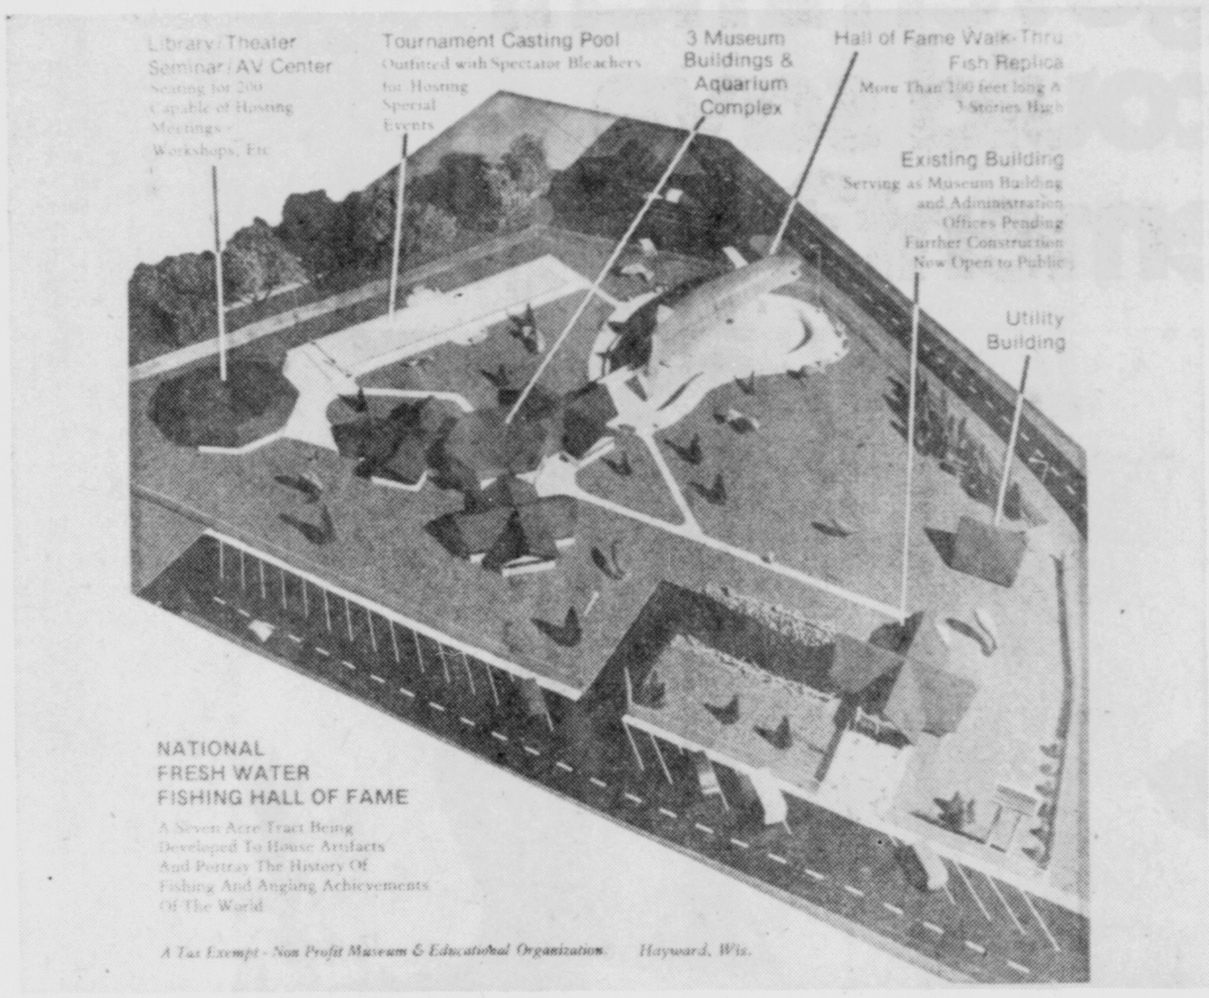

Stevenson lost both Cordes and Don Blaha to fouls in the final period and stifled the rally by Woodstock after carrying an 11-point lead into the final eight minutes.

Atkins and Cordes each hauled down eight boards for Stevenson which owned a slim 33-29 edge in the rebounding department. Barnett also dished out six assists for the Patriots who travel to Carmel of Mundelein tonight for a non-conference game.

A 17-YEAR-OLD dream of Bob Lutz was a National Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame in Hayward, Wis., about 400 miles north of Chicago. Far from completed, the idea has stalled because of lack of donations and grants. The Arlington Heights museum meanwhile, is to be completed in October.

Midwest's 'other' museum losing struggle for support

Jim Cook

Bob Lutz wore a pained expression.

He stood before a massive, glass-enclosed display case containing a 17-year-old dream. The 3x4 foot model was a miniature replica of the National Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame under construction in Hayward, Wis.

Lutz spawned the idea in 1960, but it wasn't until 10 years later that he and five others officially formed the non-profit organization and began laying plans for construction.

The dream began maturing with the erection of the first building in 1974 and a timetable for a museum, aquarium, library and a spectacular five story tall fish-shaped Hall of Fame building was outlined.

BUT LUTZ appeared somewhat discouraged as he greeted passersby at the recently-concluded America's-Chicago Fishing and Sports Show at Arlington Park.

Lutz was drumming support for donations that might further advance construction of the project, that when completed, will far exceed $1 million.

There was a hint of excitement in his voice as he described the scenic park-like area, highlighted by the Namekagon — the state's first wild river — that would serve as a backdrop for the complex.

"Right now, we have $350,000 invested in the project, a $45,000 mortgage and a minus bankroll," Lutz explained. "Personally, I have about $10,000 of my own money invested and an awful lot of hours."

THAT'S WHY Lutz is miffed about the Ameican Fishing Tackle Manufacturer's Assn.'s (AFTMA) plans to construct a $1 million international fishing center in Arlington Heights. Construction is scheduled for March 1 with occupancy expected by Oct. 1.

"We had the idea originally, but they'll have their museum finished way before our's," Lutz admitted. "We are getting our funds from anglers, sportsman's clubs, manufacturers and other individuals. The boost we need now is a government grant."

The Arlington Heights project, some 400 miles south of Hayward, will have no trouble raising funds for the museum. The tackle manufacturers have donated the money to insure completion sometime this year.

"I fear duplication to an extent," Lutz, a former resort owner said. "There will be similarities with our museums, libraries, the children's programs, the casting ponds," Lutz said, "but I consider it something comparable to the Smithsonian Institution and the Field Museum. There is certainly room for both."

A GOVERNMENT grant would provide Lutz' group with enough money to begin construction of the main attraction at the Hayward project — a five-story replica of a musky — Wisconsin's state fish.

"We've already had 40,000 attend the Hall of Fame with just a couple of structures up," Lutz said. And they all want to know when the fish will be done." The project's most expensive creation, the fish-shaped Hall of Fame building, will be 160 feet from tail to mouth and will provide an observation deck and a panoramic view of the surrounding countryside.

"I really don't think duplication will be that much of a problem," AFTMA Vice President Tom Schedler replied. "Our purpose is to reach the younger, neophyte angler and create interest in fishing while we teach him some of the techniques of the sport.

"When people have finished touring our museum, seeing the evolution of tackle, studying our audio-visual displays and absorbing some of the vitality of the sport, we want them to be able to wet a line right away and that's what they'll be able to do in our one-acre stocked fishing pond."

"ONE OF OUR big features will be that a complete and accurate log of 134 fishing records will be kept in addition to line-class specifications," Lutz countered.

"It will be updated twice a year and anyone who appears on the world record list will receive a Hall of Fame certificate and a very handsome lapel pin."

"Realistically, completion of our program will be in about five years, but so much hinges on the grant from the government," Lutz said. "We're trying to stay optimistic."

Recommendations for deer permits

The Illinois Conservation Dept. is actively seeking public opinion on recommendations made by citizen members of the Deer Task Force for changes in the state's 1977 deer permit allocation process.

The Task Force — consisting of citizen hunters, university biologists, and DOC staff — was formed last October to study the Illinois deer management program, which has been in effect for more than 20 years, and to make recommendations for practical alternatives to current practices.

Readers are asked to express their opinions on recommendations which suggest the Department should:

• Allow county wide hunting by landowners/tenants who purchase a landowner/tenant shotgun deer permit. To be eligible for this type of permit the landowner or tenant must have 40 acres used for agricultural purposes, but need not reside on the land.

Effects of recommendation? Provides additional hunting opportunities for farmers whose land furnishes deer habitat. Possible lowering of number of permits available to general public in future years. Provides incentive to landowners to open their land for hunting.

• Limit county choice on applications to one county and hold an initial lottery for applicant's first choices only. Then hold a subsequent lottery to allocate remaining permits. Thereafter, if there still are permits available, they will be allocated on a first come, first served basis.

Effects of recommendation? Will give each applicant better chance to obtain first choice county. Will delay date on which applicants will be informed if they have received a permit.

• Lower the number of acres required for a free landowner/tenant permit from 40 acres to 10 acres (to be eligible for this kind of permit the land must be used for agricultural purposes and the landowner or tenant must reside on the land.)

Possible lowering of number of permits available to general public in future years would be the effect.

• Eliminate acceptance of personal checks or money orders with permit applications and accept only certified checks.

In addition to the recommendations above, the citizen members of the Deer Task Force formed a subcommittee to explore the feasibility of requiring applicants for landowner/tenant permits to verify that they own land by submittal of tax records, deeds, or other information.

The Deer Task Force will continue to study the deer management program for several months and to make further recommendations at a later date.

Among the subjects slated for study are: a fee increase for deer hunting permits; possibility of a bucks-only season and split season; possible methods of ensuring unsuccessful applicants an early consideration for a permit the following season; and automation of the lottery.

Opinions of the recommendations may be mailed to Deer Task Force, Dept. of Conservation, Rm. 605, State Office Building, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Boat slips not slipping

Boat owners who live in the suburbs will be paying higher fees when the Chicago Park District harbors open for the season on May 15.

The Board of Commissioners of the Chicago Park District voted Tuesday to charge boat owners who live outside Chicago 25 per cent more than city dwellers for their berths.

Fees range from a low of $40 for the smallest boats with wet moorings to a high of $1,500 for boats more than 90 feet long. Fewer than half the boat owners who used the eight harbors in 1976 lived outside Chicago.

THE BOARD also voted to charge an additional fee for boats in slips with electrical service. President Patrick L. O'Malley pointed out that the cost of electricity has risen 32 per cent over the past four years and that more owners are equipping their boats with infra-red ovens, color television sets, ice-makers and other electrical equipment.

Fees for electricity will range from $75 to $200 per season, depending on the size of the berth. The average fee will be $100 per season. Owners who elect not to pay the fee will have power to their slips cut off.

O'Malley said the district expects to receive approximately $100,000 during 1977 from the 1022 slips involved.

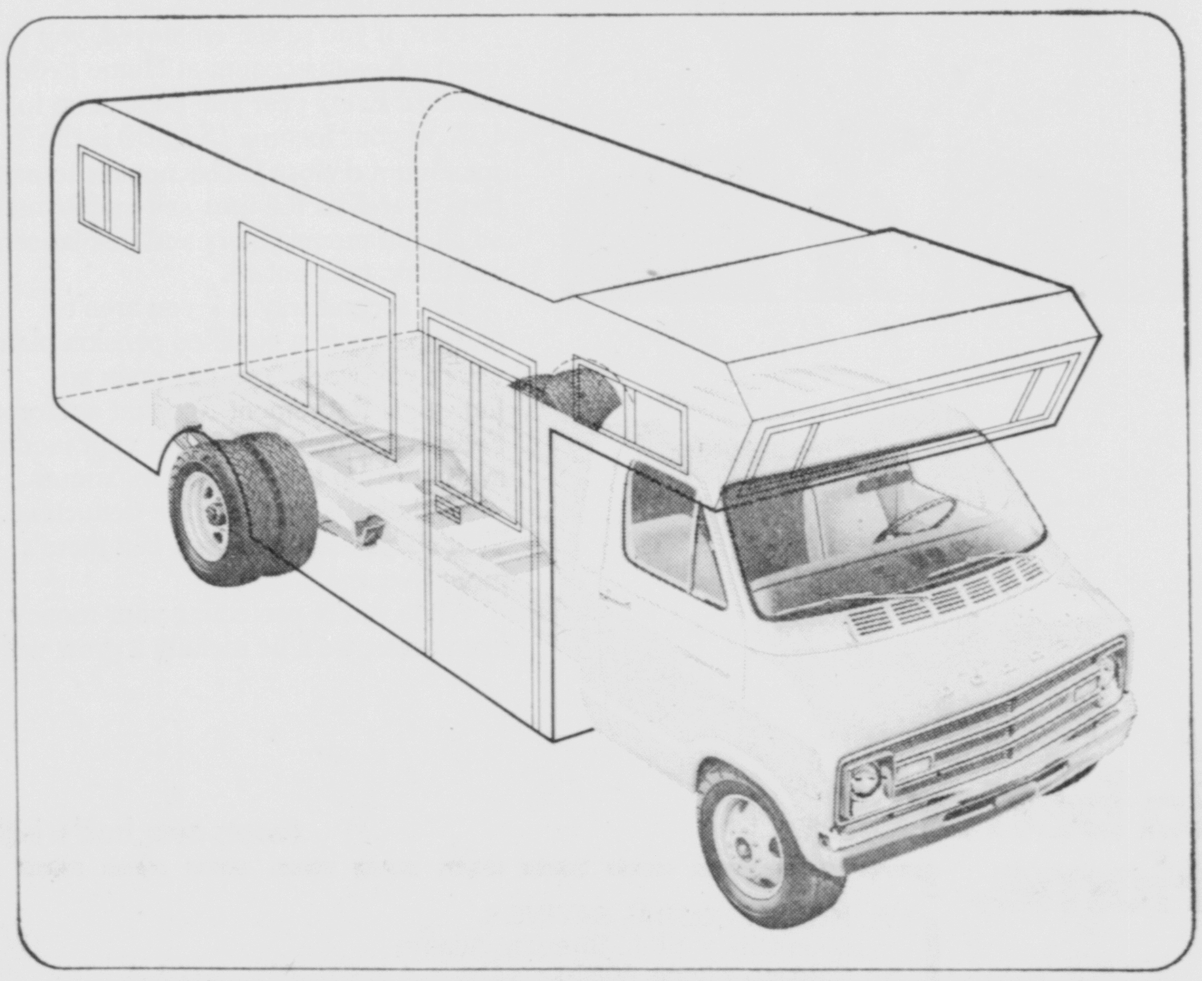

"Boats with power stickers will be able to use power anywhere. Boaters without stickers who are found to be using power will face immediate loss of their mooring permits," O'Malley said.

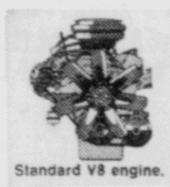

Derby features ice fishing, races

The 1977 Joint Annual Ice Derby of the Northern Illinois Conservation Club and the 885 Club is scheduled to be held on Channel Lake Feb. 12 and 13. This will be the 16th annual event in which major prizes will be awarded to holders of Derby tickets in addition to dozens of other prizes which will be awarded to fishermen during the two-day event.

This year, as in recent past years, some 100 sled dogs consisting mainly of Alaskan Malamutes and Siberian Huskies in 15 or more teams, will run races on both days for trophies and prizes. Although the sled dog races are of great interest, they are not the main business of the derby, which actually is that of fishing and cold weather sports activities involving over $8,000 in valuable prizes which will be won by fishermen, contestants in other activities and holders of winning tickets.

It's much better off at Home.

Here's a surprise. You might be able to take a tax deduction for money you save for retirement.

How? Two ways.

First, if you're self-employed, you can open a Keogh account at Home Federal Savings. Every year you deposit up to 15% of your income ($7,500 is the maximum deposit). This applies to part-time as well as full-time self-employment, so all you moonlighters and free-lancers out there, take notice.

The second way is if you aren't participating in a qualified pension plan where you work. You can open an Individual Retirement Account at Home Federal and deposit 15% of your income every year up to a $1,500 maximum.

All these deposits are tax-deductible. That's a pleasant surprise. But there's more to come.

While you're protecting your money from taxes, we'll be making it grow with the highest interest allowed by federal regulation. For example:

Annual Deposit	$ 1,500	$ 7,500
Balance with compound interest 10 years	$ 23,701	$118,504
30 years	$189,773	$948,866

This chart is based on our current 7¼% annual interest plan, based on certificate terms of 6 to 10 years. Current rates cannot be guaranteed past the initial term selected, or any renewal period. Figures shown are rounded off to the nearest whole dollar.

When you retire, we have some other great plans that can give you a steady, secure monthly income, further limitation of your tax liability and continued high earnings.

So why send more money to Washington than you have to? You can do much better at Home.

Visit any Home Federal office or use the coupon in this ad to find out more about our tax sheltered pension plans.

You can do better at Home.

Charles Haid: Give him the good life and a happy family

by Vernon Scott

Charles Haid, who plays detective Paul Shonski in the "Delvecchio" series, is that new breed of television actor who works in Hollywood but isn't a part of its social scene.

One of his closest friends and neighbors in Studio City — a part of the San Fernando Valley — is Henry Winkler, who is the Fonz in "Happy Days." They think of themselves as people as opposed to "actors."

An unprepossessing young man, Haid leads a quiet life away from the Beverly Hills beautiful people. He takes his work seriously but not himself.

He and his wife, Penelope, have been married seven years and are the parents of two daughters, Arcadia, 4, and Brittany, 4 months.

"Our family is beginning to sound like a map in an atlas," Haid says. "We liked Arcadia for a name because it means peaceful land. Brittany was named for Penny's father, Britaigne."

Visiting the Haids is an experience. The family consists of strawberry blonds. Even the family dog, a laborador named Benjamin, is a reddish blond.

Their house, old by Southern California standards, has four bedrooms. It is set high on a hill surrounded by trees with a spectacular view of the valley below.

The visitor feels as if he'd stepped into New England the moment the front door opens. The house is a treasure of colonial American antiques. Most of the rustic furniture was bought during forrays into Connecticut when the Haids lived in New York.

Charlie and Penny are especially fond of their collection of old sea trunks, one of which dates back 200 years.

Their dining room table can be made to seat 20 guests. It was made in 1790. Genuine Tiffany lamps add warm colors to the rooms. Penny collects antique silver, some of which is displayed at home. Most of the valuable pieces, however, are kept in a safe deposit vault.

Charlie's den has dormer windows. His desk is situated to take advantage of the view. The hideaway is complete with posters and photographs from his days in New York as a theatrical producer and director.

A redwood and cedar fence surrounding the rustic setting is topped by a woodcut of a rainbow over the entrance gate.

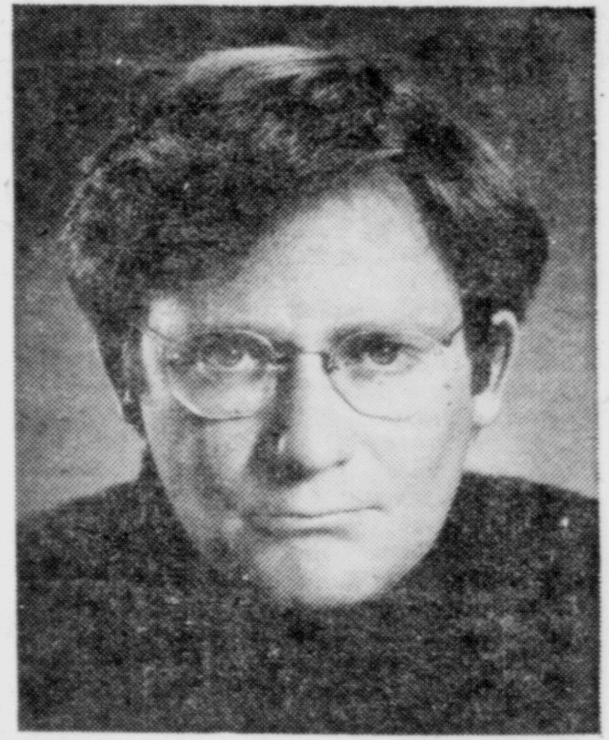

Charlie is up weekday mornings at 6 to devote 20 minutes to transcendental meditation. Another 10 minutes is given to Yoga exercises.

Then it's time for breakfast with the family. On sunny days Charlie hops on his bicycle for the two-mile ride to Universal Studios where his CBS-TV series is filmed.

By 7 p.m. he's home, where Penny has a hot dinner waiting. Penny is an accomplished cook. The other night Charlie's cousin, Merv Griffin, stopped by for a dinner of crepes with spinach and mushrooms. Charlie is especially fond of Penny's variety of chicken dishes.

Papa Haid never fails to read a story of some kind to Arcadia every evening before she is put to bed. He refuses to use the family television set as a baby sitter.

For his own relaxation, Charlie works in his flower garden, planting, pruning and cultivating roses, chrysanthemums, poppies, hollyhocks and snapdragons. He learned to love gardening from his mother who is a landscape gardener on the San Francisco peninsula where Charlie was born and reared.

Charles Haid portrays Paul Shonski on "Delvecchio," the CBS detective series Sundays at 9 p.m.

When pressures build up Charlie jumps into his six-year-old, four-wheel drive vehicle for a few days of skiing at Mammoth, Calif., or a weekend on a deserted Mexican beach.

"Work takes up most of my time," Haid says. "I enjoy it because I'm not running after a career — it's running after me."

James Cagney

Q. We were having a discussion about movies and the film "Mr. Roberts" came up. None of us could think of the name of the captain of the ship. Can you help? K.L.D.

A. James Cagney played Captain Morton. To go one step further, Henry Fonda was Mr. Roberts, Jack Lemmon, in an Oscar winning role was Ensign Pulver and William Powell was "Doc" the ship's medic. How about them apples?

Q. Can you print a romantic picture of Franco Nero, who played Sir Lancelot in "Camelot" and also who played Alex in "Dawn: Portrait of a Teenage Runaway." Thank you. T.S.

A. Alex was played by Leigh McCloskey. Here's a picture of Franco from "The Legend of Valentino" now how can you get any more romantic.

Franco Nero

Q. My little sister asked me to write this letter. She wants to know why letterman of the Electric Company always has the right letter on his sweater? C.H.

A. We found out that letterman has 26 sweaters and he likes to wear the one with the letter they're talking about that day.

Jane Fonda

Q. Did they record the soundtrack to the movie Klute? I would like the record if possible.B.L.

A. Sorry they didn't record the soundtrack and that surprised me. Since Jane Fonda won an Oscar for her performance, her picture on the jacket could have sold a few records.

The craftsmen who put together museum exhibits will take on any project from assembling a mastodon to creating coral reefs

by Nancy Waclawek

The old elevator glides silently past the "5" lettered on the black, inside wall of the shaft and stops at the sixth floor. With vigorous tugging, the lattice work swings aside, revealing a room in subdued orange lighting.

Water bubbles up from an aquarium in the background, where fish swim in a panorama world, oggling visitors who disturb their privacy.

Off toward the corner, employes scurry back and forth, some carrying designs and blueprints of their handiwork. Mock-ups of their conjurations dot the office, adding, sometimes, an eerie quality to the place as dinosaurs, insects, miniature persons and body parts fill obscure nooks and crannies.

Supervisor of this world of wizardry is Richard Rush, and if there is a mad scientist of exhibit work, it probably is he.

From the three floors that Richard Rush Studio, Inc., occupies at 168 N. Clinton, Chicago, come the creations that make museums look good. Rush builds the exhibits that line their halls and depict even the most complex processes with simple accuracy.

He is a specialist in this visual, three-dimensional trade and is recognized as an expert by his colleagues.

Rush's products have appeared in museums throughout the country and the world. Besides creating exhibits for the Museum of Science and Industry, the Field Museum of Natural History, the Chicago Historical Society, the Shedd Aquarium and the Brookfield Zoo in Chicago, Rush has done exhibits for the Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C., the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Science Museum in Tokyo and the Singapore Science Center.

His only business is museum work, done on a special-order basis, for firms that contract to open exhibits in museums.

A good deal of his productions are done for medical exhibits, Rush said, although he also creates the Smokey the Bear costumes for the rangers of the National Park Service and has worked with Kodak, Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and Swift Inc. in building their exhibits for the Museum of Science and Industry. He even helped with some of the work that went into building the museum's working coal mine.

Rush started his business in 1939 as a one-man studio. Following an aborted attempt to be a chemical engineer, Rush turned to art and studied sculpture at the Chicago Art Institute and the Illinois Institute of Technology. His thirty-seven years of work were interrupted only when he was drafted in 1941. After the war, he returned to Chicago, reopened his studio and has been working ever since.

A soft-spoken man, always in a physician's smock, Rush has seen the emphasis in museums change.

The trend is to involve viewers in what they are learning, and Rush has turned to using fiberglass and plastic as his chief building supplies. The old standards — metal and wood — have a lifetime of only about thirty years and deteriorate quickly under the wear-and-tear from an examining public. Plaster and wax definitely are out.

"Visitor participation means durability and the other material would be destroyed too soon," he said. "Permanent material is better made with fiberglass and acrylics."

Museums, once three-dimensional libraries, now invite visitor participation and visual communications, Rush said.

"Nowadays, museums are more 'publicly owned' and they give them (the public) more of the information about these collections they have in a simpler sense that the layman can understand. They say a picture is worth a thousand words. A three-dimensional object is worth a thousand pictures, and a sound story beside it is worth much more."

Rush is up to any challenge. When he was creating the barrier reef for the Shedd Aquarium, he went to the Bahamas with his son Richard to study the coral first hand — which meant getting into the water. Rush and his son learned to scuba dive to study their subject more closely and to be able to assemble their finished, fiberglass product in Chicago. Now, Richard works chiefly on aquariums and helped supervise an aquarium project just completed in Hong Kong.

Rush's employes are experts in their own right. They include sculptors, designers, craftsmen and artists who are willing to give up the urge toward individual creativity to produce figures realistically exact. That willingness to stifle individual innovation is something hard to find in budding artists, Rush said, so most of his workers are middle-aged. Finding new help is a problem, he admitted.

To accommodate the changing visual museum world, Rush, about six years ago, developed and patented the projection diorama system. The diorama incorporates a slide presentation and audio description in an open-screen format, teaching the viewer with sight and sound.

In most cases Rush produces the slides and graphics needed for his exhibits and occasionally hires Chicago movie companies when something more elaborate is needed.

He subcontracts on projects that are more intricate. That's when he usually turns to General Exhibits and Display, Inc., 2100 N. Racine, Chicago.

General Exhibits is one of the biggest producers of museum and trade show exhibits in the area, and its shop of about 100 employes has helped Rush to create the electronically intricate Talking Anatomical Woman, TAM, at the Museum of Science and Industry. The firm also has helped to produce the Paul Bunyan hardwood exhibit, the environmental theater diorama, the International Harvester Farm Exhibit and the telephone communications hall.

Donald Fairweather, president of General Exhibits, said the firm makes the control cabinets for such things as the anatomical,

Mink, glorious mink

Bill Taldis doesn't mind the freezing temperatures for they forecast thick pelts from his 'crop' of mink and booming sales for the mink coat industry

by Laura Schmalbach

The wind chill factor was hovering at 60 degrees below in the cornfields outside Union, and inside Bill Taldis' French Provincial showroom the thermostat registered a crisp 45. Taldis shivered slightly in his three-piece plaid suit, poured a cup of coffee, and smiled: the bitter cold may be wreaking havoc with his heating system, but business couldn't be better.

"Let's face it, there's nothing like a mink coat for keeping warm," said Taldis, owner of the Mink Barn, eyeing a thick mink jacket with a huge lynx collar. "Business is always better when it's cold."

Especially this year. For the Greek furrier-turned mink rancher and others like him, 1976 and '77 are proving to be bumper years for the raising and sale of minks. Cold weather has prompted thicker fur and more customers seeking the extra warmth, but it goes deeper than that: the innate snob appeal of The Mink Coat has triumphed over everything from environmentalist pressures to the leisure suit.

From a low point in the late '60s, mink ranchers are now enjoying the best financial growth since their beginnings in the 1930s, said Taldis. Annual production did plummet from around 9 million minks in 1965 to 3 million in 1976, but profits were $600 million industry-wide last year, double the late 1960s figure.

Most mink ranchers are located in the upper Midwest (the animal's natural habitat) but the fur's appeal isn't limited to the United States. The declining dollar has made the prices more attractive abroad, and Scandinavia and the Soviet Union are producing their own minks from stock originally shipped from the States.

What accounts for the world-wide pickup in popularity?

One factor, said Taldis, is a successful stand against the "save our environment" enthusiasts. "We've gotten a lot of negative comments from the seal people," said Taldis, who kills his animals with a hypedermic injection. "Actually, we are performing a service (by raising minks on ranches) because if we didn't they could easily become extinct.

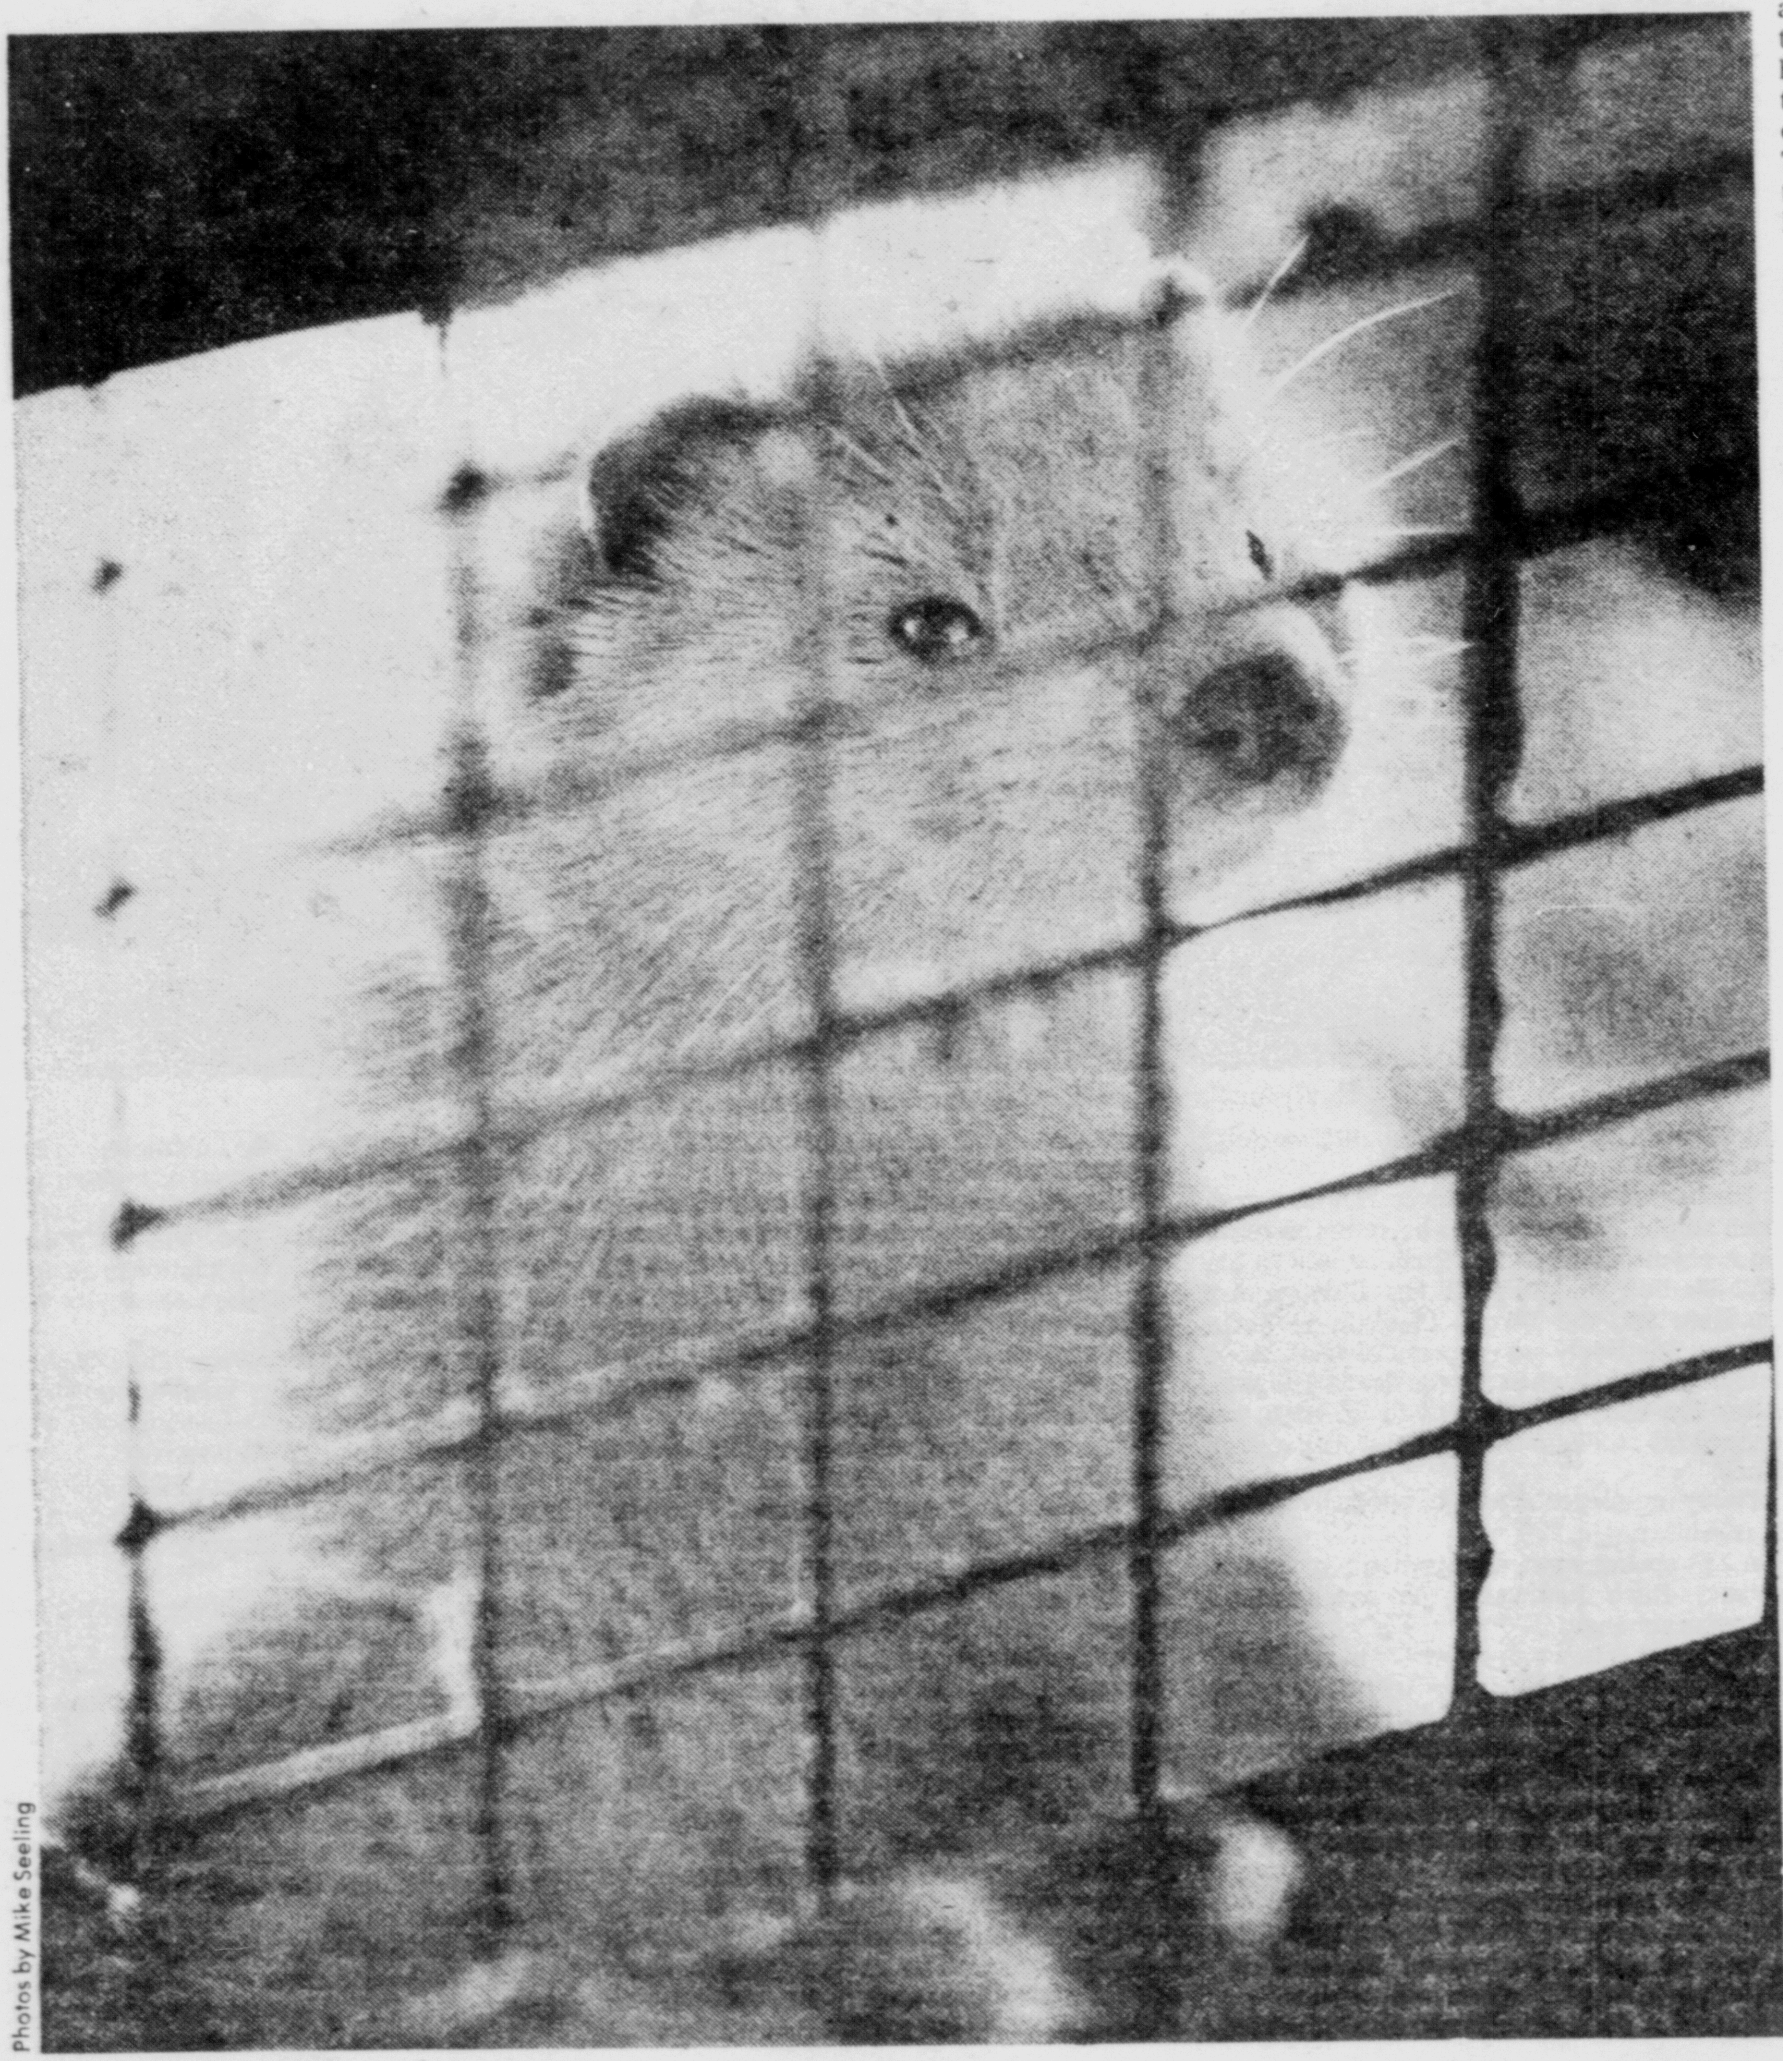

"Besides, while the manufacturers of fake furs have been mocking us, those coats are petroleum-based and are much more damaging to the environment."

Lower price tags on the coats themselves are probably the most obvious incentives for buyers, Taldis said. Before the 1930s, when mink were captured wild, the prices for a full length coat excluded all but the "richies and movie stars," he said. Commercial ranches and standardization of raising procedures have lowered prices considerably since then, despite the $25 per head cost of raising the minks.

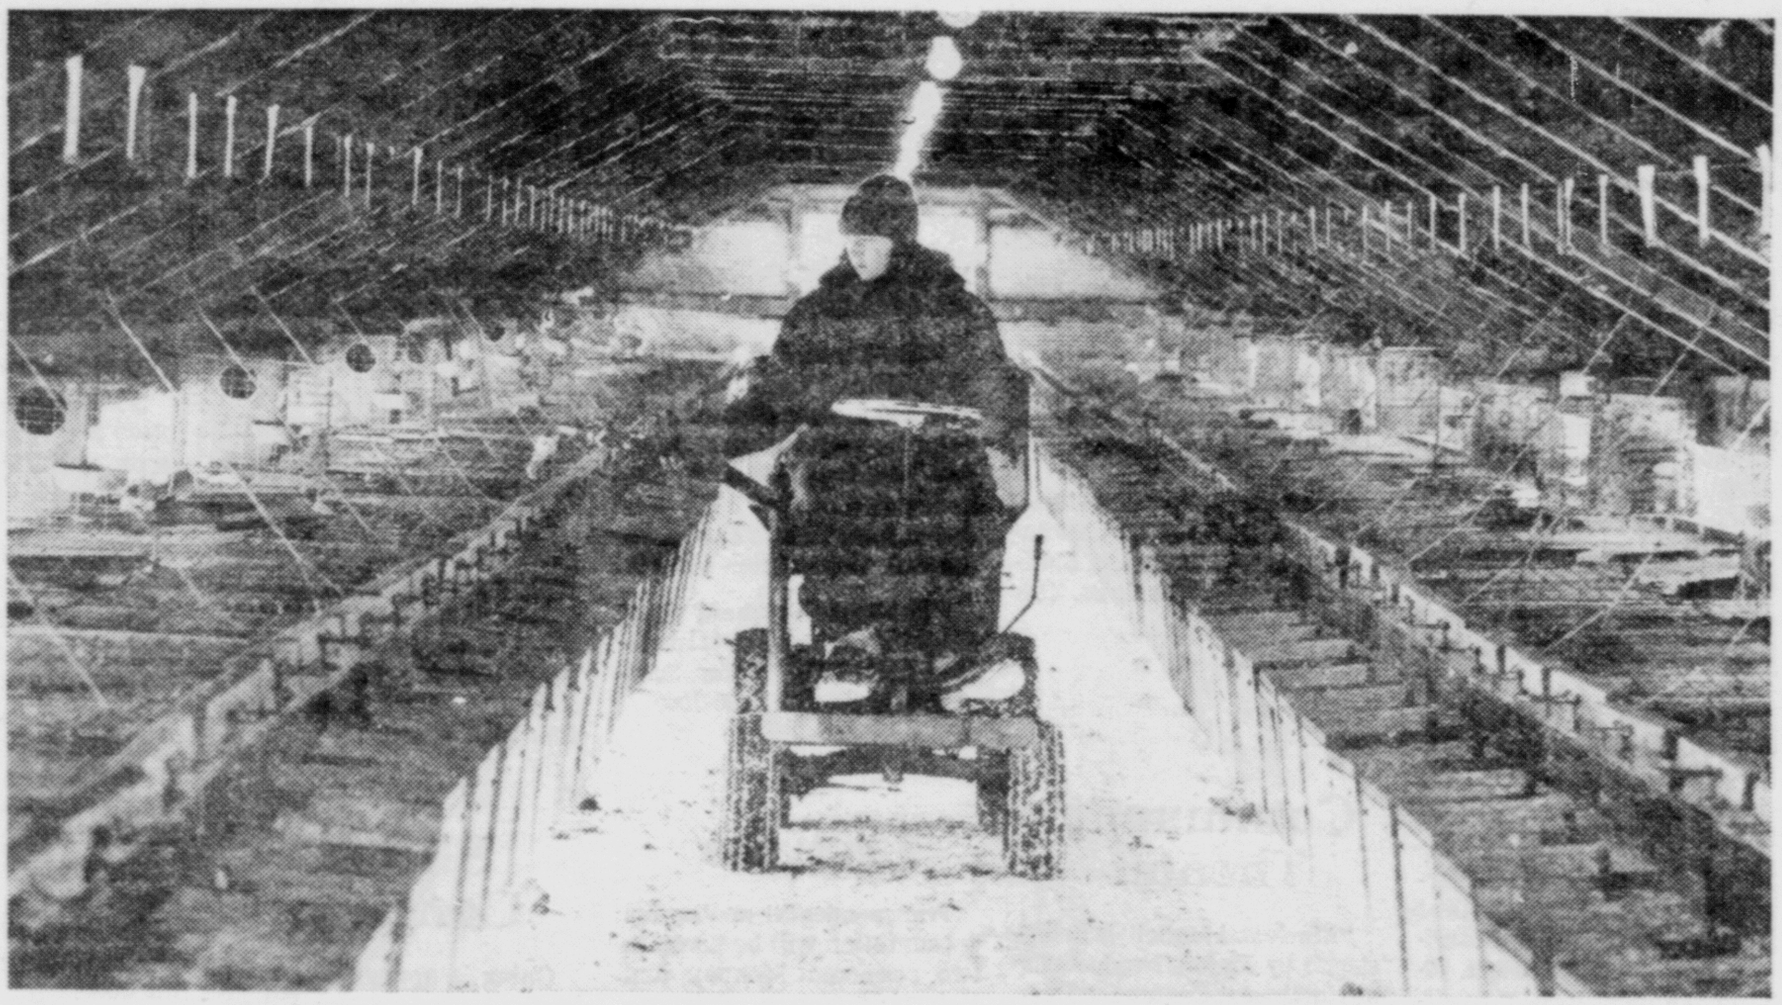

Of course, Taldis hastens to add, a mink coat is still one heck of a Valentine's Day present. Although the prices vary according to mark-up and the way the garment was constructed, a loving hubby can expect to pay between $2,000 and $7,000 for a full length mink; between $1,500 and $4,500 for a jacket (compared to $5,000 to $8,000 for a full length version 25 years ago).

The real key to the industry's renaissance, said Taldis, is a change in the mink-buying public's spending habits. True, the recession flattened the wallets of many would-be mink wearers, but those that did have the extra cash were spending it on motor homes and summer vacations, not clothes, he said.

denim leisure suits and polyester pants outfits, and what was once the mark of "I've got it made" society started going the way of white gloves and opera glasses.

No more. Graceful skirt lengths and three piece suits are making a comeback, and mink sales are following the trend.

"People are becoming much more dress-minded these days," Taldis said. "We're selling stoles again because dresses are back . . . and mink has always had a dressy, prestigious image."

Mink coats are still prestigious, but they've come a long way from the shapeless sack of the '50s and '60s. Fitted, leather-trimmed styles are popular and the two Racine, Wis. - based organizations for mink ranchers, Emba and the Great Lakes Mink Association (GLMA) are both investing in promotion campaigns, like the "Living Legend" Black Glama ads, to present mink coats as high-fashion items.

But high-fashion or not, the production of mink coats is still an intricate, expensive process, Taldis said. The cycle begins in late February through mid-March when the females come into heat. After a six or seven week gestation period the minks give birth to a litter that averages from four to five each but which can range from one to twelve. After four months with their mothers and coddling that includes three feedings a day, the young mink are separated into their own ventilated cages, where they are fed animal by-products by attendants guarded from the sharp teeth with special handling gloves.

By the end of November or early December, the summer fur has been shed and the new winter coat is in; the minks are then killed on a schedule geared to their color. Through scientific cross-breeding, the natural dark brown minks now have cousins in twelve shades ranging from creamy white to almost black, with nearly fifty variations between them. The lighter furs are declared "prime" earlier than the darker, but within a month between 1,300 and 1,400 minks are skinned and ready for processing.

The first step is "flushing," a procedure which scrapes the fat from the mink. The fat is then used as a cosmetic base, and the carcasses are used as fertilizer.

After the skins have dried for about a week, they are sent to a tannery for four to six weeks, where they are placed in tanks of specially-treated water to soften the hide without damaging the fur.

When the skins come back from the tannery, they are separated according to color and work begins in earnest. Preparation of a full-length mink coat takes a team of four or five people a week, said Taldis, and it begins with an intricate process called "letting out."

A less expensive mink coat will be sewn with severed rows of skins running horizontally from top to bottom, said Taldis, but the preferred version involves stretching the normal 22 inch skin into a full 50 inches — accomplished by making small diagonal slits in the skin and stretching each one before sewing. The result is a smooth unbroken line from top to bottom.

After the "letting out" and preliminary sewing, the coats are placed in a large metal cylinder for "drumming," a process which uses sawdust to eliminate any final shedding from the furs. The skins are then stretched out on a large board, cut on a prepared pattern, and sewn together by machine. Hem and lining complete the procedure, and the finished coats are ready for sale.

Ladies' coats aren't the only items available at the Mink Barn; Taldis said there's also a demand for mink capes, stoles, purses and hats. Even the men are getting into the act with their own mink coats — but Taldis admitted it isn't a booming market because the more expensive price tags often discourage would-be buyers.

The high prices, primarily due to the "letting out" process, inhibits many younger and less-affluent buyers. As a result, 30 per cent of Taldis' stock is in less expensive furs, ranging from rabbit to Persian lamb.

"Up until a few years ago, other furs were pretty much forgotten," said Taldis. "But the younger girls are becoming much more interested, and a less expensive fur like rabbit will naturally suit a working girl's budget and lifestyle better.

"People are just as proud of a muskrat as they are a mink," he added, "but (a mink) is still a big deal . . . that mink coat is a very prestigious thing."

And as a visitor pads across the plush blue carpeting, admiring herself in the three-way mirror as she pulls up the lynx collar and cuddles into the jacket, Taldis smiles again.

"Every little girl wants a mink coat when she grows up. Sure, it's a mystique . . . but it's there just the same."

movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Silver Streak" — A comedy adventure set principally on a luxury train en route from Los Angeles to Chicago. Hostages are held aboard the train by racketeers engaged in an international art hoax. Stars Gene Wilder, Jill Clayburgh, Richard Pryor, Patrick McGoohan and Scatman Crothers (PG)

"King Kong" — Multi-dollar remake of the 1933 "King Kong" classic, in which the giant ape commutes downtown from the Empire State Building to the twin towers of the World Trade Center. Stars Jeff Bridges, Charles Grodin and Jessica Lange. (PG)

"A Star Is Born" — The eternal show business classic, originally starring Janet Gaynor and Frederic March and later remade with Judy Garland and James Mason, surfaces for the third time, this time transposing Barbra Streisand and Kris Kristofferson into a rock and roll setting.

"Rocky" — Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and stars as the title character in this small, unpretentious and genuinely involving story of a local clubhouse prizefighter who gets a chance-of-a-lifetime shot at the world heavyweight title and finds love and self-respect along the way. (PG).

"Network" — The quartet of award-caliber performances by Peter Finch, Faye Dunaway, Robert Duvall and William Holden is a whopping show in itself in this biting look at a television network, the cutthroat tactics rampant behind-the-scenes and the questionable message delivered by the medium to its viewers. (R).

"The Front" — An entertaining, informative and thoroughly involving comedy-drama about the entertainment industry's infamous "black-list" of the early 1950s, with Woody Allen playing a none-too-bright cashier catapulted to fame by submitting the scripts of banished TV writers under his own name. Though it's essentially a fantasy — Allen becomes a committed martyr to free speech — the film maximizes both the grinning absurdity and underlying destructiveness of the era to great effect. (PG).

CATLOW — Barrington — 381-0777 — "A Star is Born" (PG).

lighted woman and recordings and impulse tapes for the voice descriptions. In fact, the firm developed its own taping system called Syncro-Sound that is used exclusively at the Museum of Science and Industry.

About 40 per cent of General Exhibits' work is permanent installation, Fairweather said, and the firm employs foreign-born, precision craftsmen to build the wood, masonite and steel objects.

The custom work is not cheap. Rush estimates the price range of an exhibit from "$10,000 and $15,000 to $200,000, depending on how many scenes and how difficult it is."

One of his smaller projects is just a slight heart throb, literally. Rush produces life-sized rubber hearts that are used in schools to teach the workings of that muscle. The rubber hearts are pliable and hollow inside so they are practically indestructible and can be used in many ways.

His larger works are enough to make the heart throb with excitement or fear. His sculptors are working to create life-like Indian figures that will go into an Indian museum for the Rock Island State Park. Working from perfect anatomical diagrams, the models take the shapes of the North American inhabitants and look so real the viewer almost expects them to move and speak. After these clay models are completed, they are cast in fiberglass and the finishing touches are added by the painters.

Similar exactness in design and creation is part of the work Rush is doing to refurbish the Shedd Aquarium coral reef project and to complete work on an exhibit on Chicago's history that will be displayed in the lobby of one of the downtown banks.

Rush also put together the mastodon that reigns over Wheaton College. The skeleton was discovered on U.S. District Judge J. Sam Perry's land in Glen Ellyn. Recreating the mastodon in all its prehistoric majesty was just another test of Rush's ability to "go to pieces" in creating his magnificent replicas. §

Jamaica's best kept secret is a secret no more

Stories and photos by Katherine Rodeghier

NEGRIL, JAMAICA — Put your body and soul together.

Those are the words to live by here on the western-most tip of Jamaica, 90 minutes by car from Montego Bay.

This 7-mile rim of white sand on the blue, 80 degree waters of the Caribbean, has been called Jamaica's best kept secret, a hidden Eden and a haven for the knowing few. For centuries the Negril area was an isolated paradise, sparsely populated and known by few tourists. In contrast to the big cities of the island, life here was slow and leisurely.

But Negril's tropical beauty could not have remained a secret forever. Paradise lost became paradise found and today Negril is the island's newest tourist area. Villas, cottages, hotels and resorts have sprung up along the beach during the past few years and Negril appears on Jamaica's travel brochures right along with the island's popular resort areas to the north.

But despite the millions of dollars that have been invested in Negril, the development of the area has not been brought about without planning. The government and the people of Negril are intent on preserving the area's natural beauty. A Development Order for Negril guards against over development, insuring that the resorts are inconspicuous and blend in with the setting of the trees, the sea and the sand. The people do not want Negril to become an urban resort area with multi-story buildings forming a massive facade along a beach over-crowded with tourists.

So far this careful planning has been successful. An element of tropical wilderness has been preserved in Negril and while there are tourists one can still run along the beach without fear of stepping on a sunbather. Negril is uncrowded, intimate and serene.

Best of all is the feeling of being at peace with one's self here. It's a feeling of lay back, a mood of unrestricted self-indulgence, a feeling of being close to nature that opens the mind, nourishes the soul and caresses the body.

There is no place that capitalizes more on this atmosphere than Negril's newest resort, the Negril Beach Village, which opened on the north end of the beach in December.

Those who are familiar with the Club Med resorts will recognize similarities in the Beach Village for it is almost a carbon copy of these sanctuaries of sand and sun. When entering the Beach Village guests are encouraged to leave their cares and their inhibitions behind to relax and allow their free spirit to take over.

Guests need not carry a wallet or purse for no money is needed in the village. The medium of exchange is plastic shark teeth which can be purchased at the front desk for 50 cents each and redeemed in the village for tobacco and drinks (a bottle of Red Stripe beer goes for two shark teeth). The shark teeth can be snapped together and worn as a necklace, headband, belt or bracelet and you can even take them with you when you swim — they float.

The dress here is casual. Most people wear only a swimsuit or loose fitting article of clothing such as a caftan. Nudity is not frowned upon at the village. If a woman removes the top of her swimming suit while sunbathing on the beach no one is shocked and at nearby Booby Cay, a tiny secluded island 300 yards off shore, the atmosphere is even less inhibited. The cay, in fact, has been billed as Jamaica's first nude beach.

The Negril Beach Village is a cluster of two-story buildings spread among 20 wooded acres fronting the beach. More than $10 million was poured into the construction of the resort by the Jamaican government and it is managed by the Issa Family, one of Jamaica's leading hotel and resort operators.

The minimum stay at Negril Beach Village is one week and ranges in price from $248 in the low season to $378 in the high season ($195 and $295 for children over age 6). The price includes three meals per day and all the activities and facilities of the village. Tipping is not allowed. All 250 rooms are air conditioned with twin beds for double occupancy. If you have no one to share your room you are given a roommate.

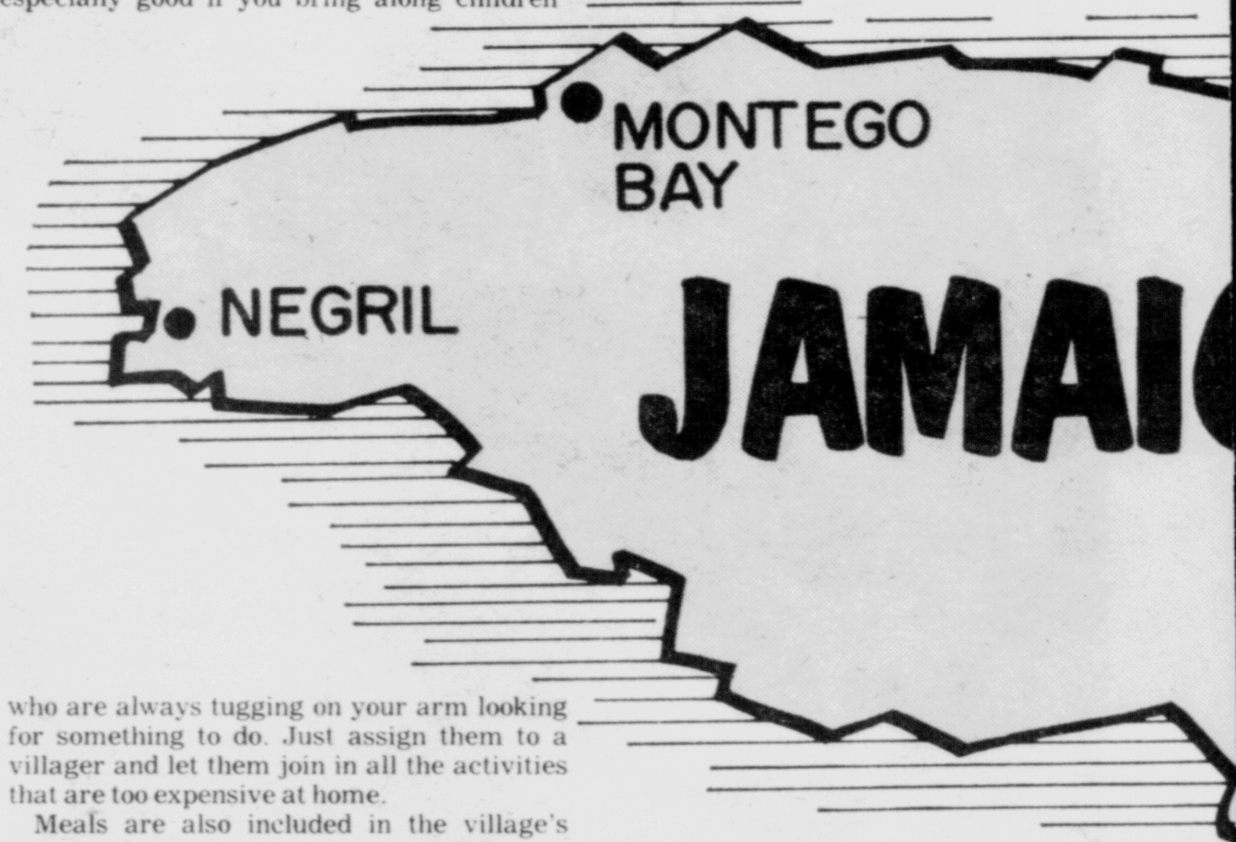

When it comes to things to do at the village there are certainly enough activities to keep anyone busy and, in fact, it could take an entire week just to squeeze them all in.

There are six lighted tennis courts (they'll lend you a racket, no charge) and a tennis pro to help you improve your game. Besides the white sand beach there's also a pool with poolside bar — just swim up to the submerged bar stools, plop down a few shark teeth and drink to your heart's content. There's sailing on a fleet of Sunfish sailboats, water skiing, scuba diving, snorkeling, and horseback riding. If you've never tried these sports one of the "villagers" (members of the staff in charge of recreational activities) will be happy to give you free lessons. For those who prefer tamer activities there's ping pong, bar billiards, and games of chess and backgammon can be checked out if you care to challenge a friend while sunning on the beach.

The villagers also organize special activities for guests such as volleyball and badminton matches, shell hunts, yoga exercises, and picnics on the beach or Booby Cay. On one evening there may be a bingo game with a 4-foot-long string of shark teeth as a prize.

While guests may receive some gentle prodding to join in the fun, participation in village activities is not forced upon them. There are some who come to Negril Beach Village to do nothing more than stretch their bodies in the sun.

The fact that activities are included in the village's package price has its advantages and disadvantages. If you happen to be one of those people who doesn't enjoy lots of activity you'll pay the same price as the sports nuts. There are no lower rates for the lethargic. On the other hand, if you're one who enjoys these activities but always has the image of a dollar sign in the back of your mind, then your money worries are over — it's all included in the cost of a week's stay. This is especially good if you bring along children who are always tugging on your arm looking for something to do. Just assign them to a villager and let them join in all the activities that are too expensive at home.

Meals are also included in the village's price and each one is a banquet. There are usually three buffet tables, one filled with salads, a second with main dishes and a third with desserts. The entrees include steaks, roast beef, lobster, fruits and salads and in the morning selections include eggs, pancakes, porridge, sausage, fruit juices and Jamaican coffee. Complimentary wine and rum punch are served with the evening meal and more than likely there will be live entertainment in the open-air dining area. On some evenings there will be a calypso band or a rock band or a limbo dancer or an amateur night contest where guests dance to the music or jump on stage to give their rendition of their favorite song.

The disco opens at 11 p.m. and goes all night if you wish. It's located under the pool deck and there are windows which look into the water. In the wee hours of the morning after a few at the bar it's not uncommon for a villager or guest to swim past minus a few articles of clothing — which only makes the dancing livelier inside.

The Negril Beach Village is a self-contained resort and there's plenty to keep guests occupied inside its perimeter. But for those who also would like to explore the rest of Negril, other hotels in the area can be reached by walking along the beach and the village has a rental car agency on its premises which has cars for hire. If you'd like to get some exercise while exploring, the village will lend you a bicycle — no charge, of course.

Along the beach south of the Negril Beach Village are the Coconut Cove and Sundowner hotels and the T-Water Cottages.

Coconut Cove is a modern hotel, its terraced white buildings hidden among flower gardens and palm trees. This season's rates for a double in the hotel's one bedroom apartments range from $59 without meals to $91 breakfast and dinner included. There are also rates for single, triple and quadruple occu-)ancy and special honeymoon, tennis and scuba diving packages. Dining at the Coconut Cove is refined and entrees may consist of lobster caught in Jamaican waters, lobster bisque soup, pate, and lamb served with wine. In the evenings a band often provides live entertainment just a few yards from the surf.

Strolling on the beach in Negril and leaving your cares behind.

The Sundowner is one of the oldest hotels in Negril. The atmosphere here is quaint and casual. There's a bar near the beach and meals are often served buffet style on the patio.

The T-Water Cottages are a cluster of cottages fronting on the beach. The accommodations are simple and economical — perfect for those who expect nothing more from a vacation but sea, sun and sand and a comfortable place to spend the night.

Traveling south and west along the shore side. Piles of straw hats and handbags offered for sale by the islanders can be seen along the road.

By now the shoreline has changed from sandy beach to grotesquely-shaped coral cliffs and caves reminiscent of the Basque coast of Spain and France. This part of Negril, along Lighthouse Road, was populated by hippies during the mid 1960s. Today the area has shaken off its hippie past, becoming mainly a low-cost cottage resort area for the young-in-heart on a budget.

One of the most well-known spots here is the Rock House Retreat. Accommodations are in thatched cottages perched on cliffs which are reached by paths leading through a maze of trees and tropical foliage. The cliffs of the Rock House have a reputation for having Jamaica's best view of the setting sun. Rates for the retreat this season range from $44 per day for a cottage to $50 for a beach house. Special one-week rates are also available.

One of the legendary places in the Negril area also is located on Lighthouse Road. It's Rick's Cafe (owned by Rick). The outdoor cafe is frequented by young customers who divide their time between eating, talking or sunbathing and diving off the cafe's 50-foot cliffs into the warm, blue waters below.

Negril, after all, is a place for the free spirited. Jumping off cliffs or running along a white sand beach or dancing to the distinctive rhythm of Jamaican reggae music just seems to come naturally here. § visitors make their way to the village of Negril itself. Unpainted wooden shacks line the street and it is not uncommon to see a pig or a cow or a goat grazing by the road-

Taking in the view from the cliffs at Rock House.

Is there danger in paradise?

Today most of the conversation revolves around the weather.

Jamaica, an island in the southern Caribbean, was once the "in" place for tourists from North America and Europe. That was before the island became embroiled in a political and economic turmoil which erupted in murders, lootings and a general feeling of hostility among the people. Americans read newspaper reports of Jamaica's troubles and when they packed their bags for vacation they headed elsewhere.

As a result the bottom fell out of Jamaica's tourism market dropping 11.7 per cent in the first nine months of 1976 alone. The Jamaican economy, which was already in trouble, was hit hard by the loss of revenue. Several resort hotels, nearly empty of guests, had to be taken over by the government.

But today there are signs that Jamaica may be making a comeback. Advertisements placed by the Jamaican Tourist Board cry "Welcome Back" and the Jamaicans themselves seem to be going out of their way to make their island a tranquil paradise once again.

On my visit to the Negril area last month the main concern of the tourists and the natives was whether the sun would be out that day. They seemed unconcerned about their safety and talked of recent troubles in Jamaica only when asked. I neither saw nor heard of any incidents of crime or violence.

Mrs. Betty Lengauer of Oshawa, Ontario Canada, told me she experienced no trouble during her stay in Jamaica. She spent two weeks in Ocho Rios, one of the island's popular north coast resort areas, before joining her husband in Negril. She had read reports of violence and was warned of the danger in Jamaica but made the trip anyway. "I didn't notice anything. It was quiet as can be."

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wagner of Hammond, Ind. also reported no incidents of violence and they said they felt the news reports of trouble on the island were "exaggerated."

Pat Heise, vice president of Around the World Travel, Inc. based in Palatine, discovered a new spirit on the island which she noted in her winter 1977 newsletter. "I took a long week-end in Jamaica in late November, and found the people most accommodating and pleasant to tourists. (They didn't even know I was a travel agent.) The bad publicity of 1976 has certainly hit the Jamaican pocketbook, and I feel they are really bending over backwards to change the tide. We stayed in Ocho Rios at the Jamaica Inn, and the accommodations, service and general atmosphere were the best."

This is not to say that Jamaica is crime-free. Tomorrow's headlines are just as likely to read that a tourist has been robbed in Jamaica as they are that a tourist has been murdered on a road in Mexico or stabbed in the streets of San Francisco. No city or country can give a tourist an absolute guarantee of safety.

Almost all of the reported acts of violence have occurred in Jamaica's capital city, Kingston, the most recent exception being the robbery and rape of Sir Winston Churchill's niece on her estate near Montego Bay. The best bet for the average tourist may be to confine himself to a resort area and take all the normal safety precautions that he would at home. On this Connecticut-size island, 144 miles long by 50 miles wide, resort areas like Montego Bay, Ocho Rios and Negril are about as far removed from Kingston as Lake Geneva, Wis. is from Chicago's West Side.

No matter where one travels it is always good to have an understanding of the country and its people. For those who are considering a trip to Jamaica today this background is especially beneficial. It may shed some light on what has happened to this country, it may put the changes occurring in Jamaica into sharper focus, and it may give American tourists an idea of what they can expect from a vacation on the island now and in the near future.

Jamaica was a British Colony for more than 300 years before independence in 1962. For most of those years the island economy was primarily agricultural with Negro slaves working in the fields of the sugar plantations.

The tourists of this era were often wealthy Europeans who came to bask in Jamaica's abundant sunshine. They had a taste for luxury and they demanded the very best in service. The resorts were elegant and exclusive and the food was the best in Continental cuisine, often imported.

Today Jamaica is in a period of transition from a colony to an emerging nation. It is a period fraught with struggle. About 5 per cent of Jamaica's population controls roughly 90 per cent of the country's wealth. About 90 per cent of the population is of African origin. There is a high rate of illiteracy on the island and the unemployment rate is about 22 per cent. The rate of unemployment is much higher among Jamaica's young people who make up a large section of the population. It has been estimated that about 40 per cent of the population is between the ages of 12 and 22.

The Jamaica of 1977 is moving toward urbanization. It's estimated that a quarter of the country's two million citizens now live in Kingston. Jamaica's number one income producing industry today is the mining of bauxite ore used to make aluminum. Tourism runs a close second in terms of economic importance to the island. Today's tourists, in contrast to the wealthy travelers of a former era, are basically middle class people with an eye on their budgets.

The sort of violence that has rocked Jamaica in recent years falls into two basic categories: criminal and political. The criminal type of violence is the classic struggle of the poor against the rich. In a country with such a high rate of unemployment and a wide disparity in the distribution of wealth it should not be difficult to imagine why this type of violence occurs.

The second type of violence is political and it is a result of the power struggle between Jamaica's two major political parties, the Jamaican Labor Party which governed the country following independence, and the People's National Party which assumed power in 1972 with the election of Prime Minister Michael Manley.

The perpetrators of political acts of violence are often roving gangs of juveniles, loosely tied to the two political parties, who battle against each other in the streets of the Trench Town slums in West Kingston. Much of the night violence that has occurred in Kingston — murders, lootings and arson — is this form of gang warfare and it is the sort of terrorism which most often makes the page one headlines abroad.

Last year the government imposed a night curfew in Kingston and a mandatory life sentence was set for those convicted (without a jury) of illegal possession of weapons. In June, after a large arms cache was discovered in Kingston's slum area, Manley declared a state of emergency giving police the power to move quickly to quash trouble and to search without a warrant.

Manley is attempting to bring Jamaica out of its Third World status by healing the island's political and economic wounds. This past December his followers gave him a vote of confidence by re-electing him in a landslide victory.

But Manley has been met with criticism both in Jamaica and abroad. One of the major sources of suspicion of Manley's regime is his friendship with Communist Cuba, located just 90 miles north of Jamaica. While Manley has accepted aid from Cuba and is himself an advocate of socialism, he has been quoted on numerous occasions as saying that socialism is not the same as Communism and this misunderstanding is the cause of much of the negativism toward Jamaica in capitalist countries.

When I asked one of the villagers at Negril Beach Village about Jamaica's tourism problems he said he felt the American press had overplayed the island's crime problem, a situation he attributed to America's negative reaction to the government's political leanings. Jamaica, he said, has no more crime than any other Caribbean island.

I posed a similar question on Jamaica's crime problem to Phyllis Russell, professor at the University of the West Indes in Kingston. She looked weary — as though she had been asked the question too many times. She answered by relating her experiences while living in the U.S. She told me she lived in New York City for ten years and returned to Jamaica twice during that period — both times in a wheelchair as a victim of crime in America.

Ms. Russell recently headed a government commission to set a minimum wage on the island — $20 per week. Yes, there is the problem of low wages and unemployment in Jamaica, she said, and there is a lack of skilled labor and an unwillingness among some of the islanders to do so-called "menial" tasks.

But efforts are being made to correct the employment situation, she said, by re-educating and retraining the population. Much of this retraining involves the tourism industry and she cited Negril Beach Village as an example. The staff at the village consists mainly of local people who went through a rigorous training program before the resort was opened. At Negril there is an "integration" between the visitor and the islander, she said, and there is no feeling of being an "outsider."

From what I witnessed at Negril, I must agree. The villagers were friendly and outgoing and happy to help a visitor. They seemed to view themselves not as menial servants catering to the whims of guests but rather as fellow sun worshipers. If this same spirit is catching on in some of the island's older, more established resort areas Jamaica may be on the road to solving both its employment and tourism problems.

Jamaica's tourism industry has two things going for it. Travel to Jamaica is downright cheap for Americans with charter packages as low as $250 including air fare and a week's accommodations. There is also a large variety of other one week packages in the $500 range.

Secondly, there does seem to be an increased awareness among the general population of the importance of tourism to Jamaica's economy. Certainly, tourism figures into the government's goals for Jamaica's future. Following the election in December a spokesman for the Prime Minister said fiscal stability, increased tourism and a good relationship with the U.S. are viewed by Manley as key factors in making Jamaica a responsible world citizen during his second five-year term of office.

American tourists can only hope that the Prime Minister's words are sincere and that his efforts are met with success. Jamaica is truly an island paradise. It would be most unfortunate if its tropical beauty were obsured by terrorism and lost to the American traveling public forever. — K.R.

Peru and Jamaica combined on Lufthansa tour

Peru, land of the ancient Incas and of the Spanish conquistadors and Jamaica winter playground for the wealthy and famous, are combined in a two-week tour from Lufthansa German Airlines called "The Best of Peru and Jamaica."

The tour leaves New York by DC-10 jet for Lima, spends one week in Peru and then goes on to Jamaica to spend the second week, returning to New York by non-stop jet from Kingston.

The tour cost of $1,072 includes roundtrip air fare, from New York, top hotels, overland transportation, sightseeing, some meals and the services of an experienced guide in each country. The tour departs monthly through March.

The highlight of the week in Peru is a three-day excursion up the Andes to Cuzco, once the capital of the Inca empire, later of the Spaniards, and Machu Picchu, another Inca city so well hidden in the mountains that the Spanish conquerors never found it.

Jamaica's capital, Kingston, offers thriving day and night life in hotels, restaurants and clubs, museums, galleries, theaters and the University of the West Indies. Horseracing, polo and yachting combine with cultural attractions and scenic spots like Hope Botanical Gardens. :

The tour spends five nights at the Ocho Rios Inter-Continental Hotel on the island's north coast where white beaches rim the waters of the Caribbean. Adventurers can ride a bamboo raft for 7 miles over the swirling rapids and placid shallows of the Rio Grande.

Lufthansa offers two other "South Amrican Holidays." A one-week "Inca and Amazon Adventure," priced at $967, goes to Lima, Cuzco, Machu Picchu and Iquitos, for a 50 mile boat trip down the Amazon. "Around South America," at $1,768, visits in three weeks the major cities and scenic wonders of Peru, Chile, Argentina and Brazil.

Chicago Zoological Society bound for Kenya

The Chicago Zoological Society has announced its seventh safari to Africa leaving Feb. 26 for Kenya. Camping, tenting and walking in national game parks, and game viewing by land vehicle, foot and canoe are part of this twenty-two day journey.

This safari will go into the land for an intimate view of its animals and people including a two-day camel trek. A fishing expedition for Nile perch is planned at Lake Turkana.

Dr. Gilbert Boese, Associate Director of Brookfield Zoo, will host the trip. With a knowledge of Africa gained as leader of five Chicago Zoological Society safaris, Dr. Boese has planned the journey as an in-depth look at East Africa.

The trip will concentrate on game viewing in Sankuri Camp, Lake Turkana, Meru and Marsabit national parks and Aberdere Mountains. The trip includes an evening reception with African wildlife conservation representatives and a visit with staff of the Serengeti Research Institute and concludes with a one-day visit to Paris.

The safari will stay at some of Africa's most famous lodges — Samburu in the Samburu National Park, Meru Lodge in that national park, and Peponi Hotel on the Island of Lamu; the latter will provide beaches, swimming, scuba and deep sea fishing.

Jamaica charters depart weekly from Chicago

In less time than it takes to drive a car 200 miles and for slightly more money than it costs to drive between Chicago and Miami, a Midwestern couple can now take a vacation in Jamaica through a new low cost charter program.

The "Jamaica SunTrack" program features weekly Saturday departures from Chicago at combined air and hotel prices ranging from $249 to $439 per person depending on the season and hotel selected. Accommodations are for seven nights in beach front hotels in the north coast resort area of Ocho Rios.

A special rate of $199 is available for children age 2 through 11 and $39 for children under age 2 when traveling with parents. The program is based on the European Plan (meals not included) but a Modified American Plan (daily breakfast and dinner) is available as an option.

Information and reservations may be obtained through travel agents.

Panama City's Old Railroad Station houses new museum

Panama City's historic Old Railroad Station, once the Pacific terminus for the world's first transcontinental railway, has become the home of Panama's new museum of anthropology. El Museo del Hombre Panameno, the Museum of the Panamanian Man, exhibits the republic's principal archeological, ethnographic and folklore collections.

The two-story, neo-classical-style building, located in May Plaza, adjacent to Central Avenue the capital's main shopping street, was erected in 1913 to serve the U.S.-built Panama Railroad. It was the link between Colon, on the Atlantic side of the Isthmus, and Panama City, on the Pacific, a rail distance of about 47 miles. The building was a station until October, 1960, when the railroad's Pacific terminus was shifted to Ancon, in the Canal Zone. The United States had turned the building over to Panama a year before and for the next thirteen years, until December, 1973, it was occupied by various Panamanian government agencies.

The new museum, which opened last December, marks the culmination of three years of renovation work on the station's interior under the supervision of Panama's national institute of culture at an expenditure of $1.15 million. In addition to the main exhibit rooms and art galleries, the renovations have provided the museum with an auditorium, cafeteria, bookshop and laboratories for the examination of historic documents.

Among the museum's most notable exhibits are its pre-Columbian artifacts, such as the golden "huaca" ornaments of the Indian tribes who prospered in Panama before the arrival of the Spaniards, and the stone barrels and sculptures from Barriles in the Bugaba district of Chiriqui Province in western Panama. The "huacas," in stylized human and animal forms, are more than 1,000 years old. Reproductions in less expensive metals are available in Panama's shops and are popular as pendants, bracelets and earrings. The Barriles sculptures, some of which show dual figures, are said to date before Christ.

The ethnological section of the museum includes more recent objects made by Indians from San Blas, Rio Bayano, Bocas del Toro, Chiriqui and Darien. There are also modern paintings and fine woodwork from Panama's colonial period.

Much of the collection has been transferred to the Museo del Hombre Panameno from its old home, the former National Museum on Avenida Cuba which has become Panama's National Science Museum. However, many objects are being shown in Panama for the first time, having recently been returned from other countries.

The museum is open Tuesdays to Saturdays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays, from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. It is closed Mondays and certain holidays.

King Arthur's a mystery even in death

by Gregory Jensen

Within the haunting ruin of Glastonbury Abbey lies one of England's greatest mysteries. Perhaps one of its greatest heroes, too.

A sign marking the spot identifies it as the "Site of King Arthur's Tomb." But even the sign hedges.

"In the year 1191," it says, "the bodies of King Arthur and his Queen were said to have been found" in the abbey grounds. (Note the "said to have been found.") In 1278 they were moved "to a black marble tomb on this site."

Is this were Camelot ended?

Arthur's story has gripped imaginations for a thousand years, and Arthurian books would fill a public library. Is this where all those golden legends died, of Guinevere and Lancelot, of Galahad and the Round Table?

Nonsense, says Dr. Robert Dunning, the official Somerset County historian.

The whole thing is a fraud, he says in a recent book, a brilliant publicity stunt by a gang of grasping monks.

Glastonbury is a suitable spot for mystery, or for the skulldruggery suggested by Dunning and earlier writers.

Where the modern town stands was once an island, sacred into prehistory. Lately archeologists have been uncovering what they think are man's oldest paved roads — trackways of logs and brush 5,200 years old — in the marshes which surrounded it.

For centuries Glastonbury was England's holiest place, the cradle of English Christianity. Some legends say Christ himself came here as a boy.

Joseph of Arimathea came in 60 A.D., ancient traditions say, bringing the Holy Grail. He thrust his staff into the ground and it "forthwith sprouted and blossomed."

You can still see the spot where Joseph built England's first Christian church. It is at the heart of a vast monastery which grew around it, rebuilt time and again.

Now it is a lovely ruin, a wide grassy field interlaced with foundations, crowned by the substantial ruins or an enormous church. Inside its broken walls is the grass rectangle which is all that remains of "Arthur's Tomb." Here and there are trapdoors in the grass, protective covers for surviving scraps of ancient floor.

The "Glastonbury Thorn" which grew from Joseph's staff is gone — Oliver Cromwell's Puritans chopped it down. But cuttings from it still grow. One blooms near a museum displaying stones from the abbey's old buildings.

Tomb or no tomb, King Arthur's presence seems very strong. Glastonbury always has been connected with him — it is the "Isle of Avalon" where the poems and legends say he was buried.

Science has been tightening its net recently around Arthur's misty, half-mythical figure.

Historians now accept that he was "a British General of the sub-Roman age," a heroic cavalry leader who died about 516, according to historian C. A. Ralegh Radford.

For several years archeologists have been excavating what may be Camelot itself — the great hill fort of South Cadbury, about 12 miles from Glastonbury. Their digs confirm it was an important fortified city of Arthur's period, the only such one known.

Just recently scientists tested the famous "Round Table" displayed in Winchester Castle. Not King Arthur's, they decided — it was made some 800 years after his time.

But the mystery of Arthur's grave eludes them. All the evidence is indirect.

The mystery arises from the claim in 1191 by Glastonbury's monks that they had found a grave holding a tall man and a blonde woman. They also said they found a lead cross inscribed, in Latin:

"Here lies buried the famous King Arthur in the Isle of Avalon."

The bodies were accepted without question as Arthur and Guinevere. King Edward I and Queen Eleanor came for their reburial in 1278 on the spot which is marked today.

Which only means we've all been conned, says Dunning.

"Forgery and deception seem not to have been uncommon, even among the most religious of men," he wrote in his book on "Christianity in Somerset."

He connects the "deception" with a fire which burned Glastonbury Abbey to the ground in 1184. Rebuilding began at once.

But reconstruction hit a snag. Royal funds were withdrawn when "Richard Lionheart succeeded to the throne and wanted all available money for his crusade," Dunning wrote.

"The monks had somehow to raise cash," he said.

They hit upon the Arthur legend, made popular by Geoffrey of Monmouth only 50 years earlier, to attract pilgrims and benefactors. Seven years after the disastrous fire they "found" Arthur's body.

Science has done its best to test their tale.

The lead cross from the grave is lost, but a 16th Century engraving exists. From this, experts believe "it could well date from the 10th Century, when St. Dunstan is said to have raised the level of the cemetery," Radford wrote. Dunstan could have deposited the cross to replace the original gravestone.

Fifteen years ago archeologists carefully excavated the area where the monks said the bodies were found.

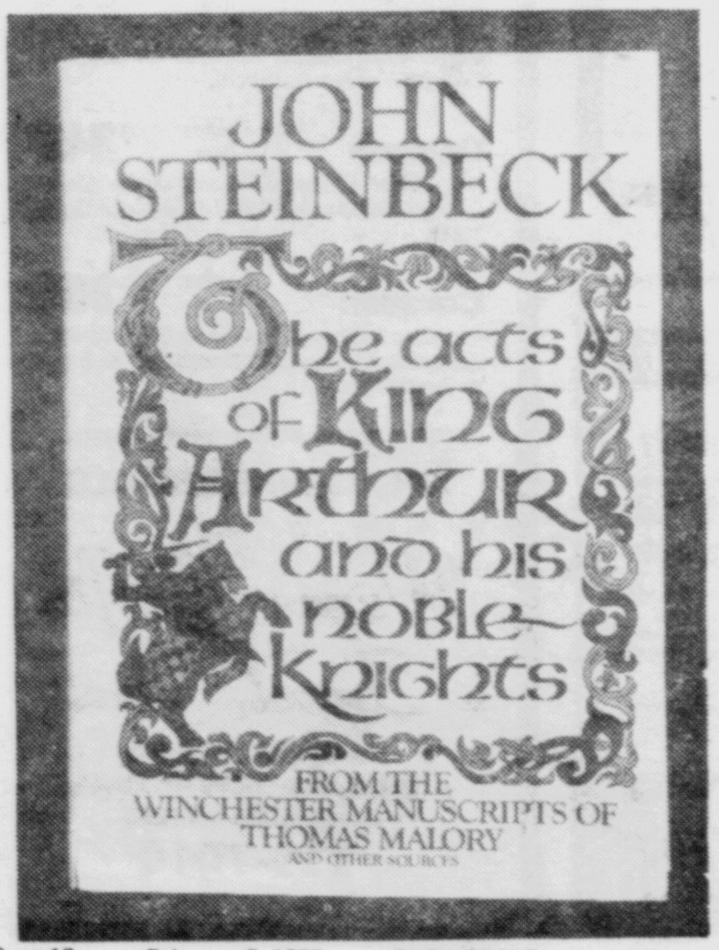

"There, in the position described by the medieval writers, two bodies had been exhumed in the late 12th Century" — that is, around 1191, Radford reported.

But there was nothing left to prove that the bodies were Arthur and Guinevere, and nothing to show whether the grave was dug for them. Dunning believes it was not.

"In fact," he wrote, "it was probably dug by monks and bones were put in to be 'discovered.' "

Tales of the Round Table in plain English

THE ACTS OF KING ARTHUR AND HIS NOBLE KNIGHTS, by John Steinbeck (Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $10).

Reviewed by Diane Mermigas

The only sources for romantics to read of the intriguing, reckless and chivalrous tales of King Arthur and his knights have been the oversimplified fairytale renditions or the archaic and confusing Old English accounts.

Until now, that is.

In light of how the world loves the mythical Arthur and his idealistic realm, it seems strange that we've waited so long to have one of our modern day literary geniuses rewrite the legends in plain and simple English.

John Steinbeck, worked diligently on "The Acts of King Arthur and His Noble Knights" during 1958 and 1959 in the proper setting of Somerset, England, the country's southwest region that is most often associated with the Arthurian legends.

The American author loved the legends and explained in the book's introduction, "I wanted to set them down in plain present-day speech for my own young sons . . . to keep the wonder and the magic."

The movie, comic-strip and fairytale versions are travesties of the actual legends, Steinbeck contended, but, it is too difficult and time consuming to wade through the Old English prose and odd spellings used in works like Sir Thomas Malory's "Morte d'Arthur" to find the truth.

Steinbeck decided to tackle the 15th Century work himself and save the rest of the world the trouble. Steinbeck died in 1968 without completing the translation of Malory's entire work, stopping short of delving into the adulterous love affair between Arthur's beloved consort Guinevere and his best friend and near perfect knight, Lancelot.

It is disappointing to relish the final paragraphs of Steinbeck's book which describe the first embrace between the two lovers and then have no alternative but to consult Malory for more than half of the remaining legends which Steinbeck never mentions: the developing love affair between Guinevere and Lancelot, the quest for the Holy Grail, Arthur's continuing battles against the Saxons and other invaders of Britain, and the final demise of Camelot and the Round Table fellowship.

Steinbeck does an admirable job translating Malory's work, which is the most comprehensive and referred to collection of the Arthurian legends.

Steinbeck, like Malory, paints a medieval and courtly image of Arthur and his realm — a false conception of the man who, many historians agree, did exist as a famed warrior leader in the 5th Century.

However, a more truthful tale of Arthur — who was probably more crude, more warlike and less romantic in nature that the knight we have come to know — would never do as far as romantics are concerned.

So, we settle for a factional but more appealing hero who Lavish feasts from 14th Century England

FABULOUS FEASTS, MEDIEVAL COOKERY AND CEREMONY, by Madeleine Pelner Cosman (George Braziller, $25).

Reviewed by Diane Mermigas

The 14th and 15th Centuries in England, in which the literary Camelot is usually placed, was a time of medieval splendor, when food and feasting were a prominent and lavish part of life.

Royalty and nobility shared their great castle halls with guests in banquets that lasted twelve hours or so with an elaborate procession of food, servants, entertainers and musicians.

"Foods are cultural insignia. Few indicators define a people so well as its food lore," says Madeleine Pelner Cosman in her book, "Fabulous Feasts, Medieval Cookery and Ceremony," which includes magnificent color illustrations and more than 100 original recipes — both taken from medieval manuscripts.

It is a cook book and an historical synopsis of food lore during an era when spectacle, delight and sensuality were synonymous with feasting.

The medieval appetite for the eccentric and bizarre was as evident in their eating habits as it was in all other modes of life. Even the mythical King Arthur and his court, as portrayed in Sir Thomas Malory's 15th Century work, "Morte d'Arthur," is often preoccupied with the meshed enjoyment of food and chivalry.

Arthur, like all good noblemen of the time, held feasts at various times of the year corresponding with religious holidays like Christmas, New Year's and Pentecost. The warrior leader demanded to be entertained with stories of great quests and wonder before the eating began.

The illusion and pageantry that were an important part of medieval feasting might, indeed, seem breathtaking to us today.

Guests were ushered into the hall with a trumpet fanfare. The nobles were seated at a raised head table while guests were seated at sideboards at right angles to the head table.

There were numerous servants, each with a specialized chore: a carver cut the "fysssches" and "smale byrdys," a panter was in charge of slicing the bread, a butler cared for the wine and ale, and a surveyor supervised marshals, squires and ushers who performed their tasks with carefully choreographed movements.

Guests supplied their own knives and fingers in the time that preceded the use of forks, and ate off pewter plates. The serving and eating of food was done in accordance with rules of etiquette set forth in manuals like the "Boke of Kervying."

The food was the center of attention in the grand feasts in which there were generally a dozen courses and twelve to fifteen kinds of food served per course.

Food was sculptured, colored, decorated and dressed to dazzle the guests. A peacock was served in its entirety and dressed in its feathers, tethered live birds were baked into a pie and sang when the crust was cut, and the uppers of a chicken were sown to the nethers of a pig and served as a "cockentrice."

Heraldic emblems were reproduced in pastry, jugglers and musicians were presented live in a pastry shell, castles and beasts were sculptured from meat and fruit, cooked fish seemed to swim in an aspic stream, and what looked like simple peas were really fish roe tinted green.

Smell was also an important element and exotic spices were used generously to give food an aromatic quality. A concern and appreciation for odors, color and creativity in food demonstrated good breeding and education.

"The medieval mind believed in wasting nothing, and, therefore, wanting nothing," Cosman said, and so we shudder at the thought of what were popular recipes for roasted bird entrails or cow udder.

The book is interesting, entertaining and educational — a real gourmet's handbook to medieval cookery written by one of the foremost experts in the area. Cosman, director of the Institute for Medieval and Renaissance Studies at the City Colleges of City University in New York, developed a natural interest in the period's food studying medieval medicine.

Many of the detailed recipes in the back of the book are easily adaptable to today's tastes and cooking habits while others are more for just gawking over.

The book not only tells us in great length about medieval food preparation and eating etiquette, but also about the English battle with water use and sanitation, attitudes toward other forms of indulgence, including sex, and artistry in household wares.

It is, in fact, a feast all its own.

Steinbeck:

prizes gallantry and adventure above all else.

Steinbeck's version of the legends is easy reading although some of the tales have been altered slightly by the author.

The quests are probably more gory and violent than most readers would expect. It seems that the Round Table knights are continuously challenging others to joust. The bloody head or shield of a fallen knight are the rewards of a Round Table cavalier who returns periodically to Arthur's court to tell of adventures and victories.

The book relates the birth of Arthur to Uther Pendragon and the Lady Igraine; Arthur's apprenticeship under the mystic Merlin; the way he pulls the sword from the stone to inherit the English throne; his treacherous half-sister, Morgan Le Fay; and the troubles that Arthur faced following the end of Roman rule in Britain.

Some of the most entertaining parts of the book involve the quests of Sir Gawain, Sir Balin, Sir Ewain and Sir Marhalt — all knights who strive to uphold the strict code of ethics that rules the Round Table.

And even more captivating than the events surrounding the marriage of Guinevere and Arthur are the sections in which Steinbeck describes the essence of the realm where might is for right, and the honor of lady and church comes before all else.

Often, Steinbeck writes, the king and his knights sit motionless around their magnificent Round Table, dressed in armor and waiting:

"They might have been asleep as they have been and will be many times over, sleeping but listening for the need, the fear, the distress, or the pure and golden venture that can call them awake."

The search for the treasures of Tutankhamen

THE SEARCH FOR THE GOLD OF TUTANKHAMEN by Arnold C. Brackman (Mason Charter, $8.95).

Reviewed by Don Dillon

Although he had been dead some 3,300 years, "King Tut" was a headline sensation in the 1920s.

The discovery of the young Pharaoh's tomb in Upper Egypt, and the ensuing uproar, are well told in this 200-page book. Much of the huge treasure in gold and jewels surrounding the mummy are now on a tour of U.S. museums.

The heroes are Lord Carnarvon, who spent a fortune on the search, and Howard Carter, a self-taught British Egyptologist who persuaded his sponsor to make one last try after years of failure that began in 1907.

Success finally came to the pair in 1922 when they made one of the world's great archaeological discoveries.

Lord Carnarvon died within a few days of the discovery of King Tut's tomb. Then came the deaths of several other persons associated with the project, and the legend of the mummy's curse was born. The so-called "Curse of King Tut" provides one of the book's best chapters.

Brackman, a former foreign correspondent, tells his tale well, and tailors it so that the reader need not have a degree in archaeology to enjoy the story of King Tut's tomb. (UPI).

On chess

Chess is now going college, as never before.

In this year's Pan-American Intercollegiate Team Championship, attended by 108 teams from twenty-six states in New York City, a surprise victory was gained by a newcomer among college chess powers: the University of South Florida.

The secret of its success? Two of the United States' top junior players, Larry Christiansen (USCF rating 2468) and Ronald Henley (USCF rating 2308) are attending South Florida on chess scholarships!

Meanwhile, at Dean Junior College in Franklin, Mass., there is under serious consideration a proposal to introduce ten course credits of chess as a new curriculum for "minor" concentration. Science Chairman, Dr. Peter Sakkinen, who is spearheading the effort, expects to attract top players and teachers as faculty, if the chess program is, indeed, adopted.

These somewhat spectacular innovations have lesser precedents. Credit and non-credit chess courses are already available at a significant number of colleges and high schools in the U.S. For example, this writer is teaching a two-credit course, offered by the Phys-ed Department at Adelphi University, Garden City, Long Island.

Ex-world champions Michael Tal and Tigran Petrosian are strong friends away from the chessboard. But when they play each other, they have a penchant for doing violent battle.

Here is the most recent example. In this game from the first round of the U.S.S.R. Championship, Petrosian, whose center is under fire from the black pieces, makes the piece sacrifice 20 NxKP?!

But then his flaccid 23rd and 24th moves give Tal the chance to stymie him with the counter-sacrifice 26. . . . BxP!

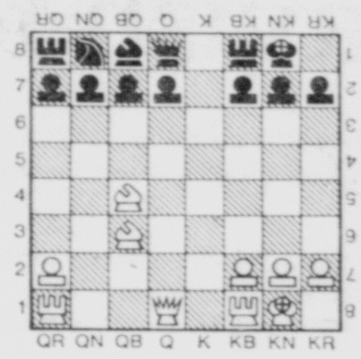

Two moves later, Petrosian, faced with the loss of his pinned and bombarded knight at Q4, resigns.

'Old Ironsides' featured in museum art show

Paintings and drawings of the USS Constitution form a special U.S. Navy exhibit visiting Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry through March 2.

The work of Naval Reserve Ensign John C. Roach, the sixty-six pen and ink drawings and two oil paintings present a panorama of life and work aboard the oldest commissioned ship in the Navy.

Roach spent almost six months researching, painting and sketching the ship.

The Constitution was launched in 1797. It gained its international renown during the War of 1812 when the strength of the ship's 24-inch oaken hull which literally bounced cannonballs led to its nickname "Old Ironsides."

Admission to the exhibit and the museum is free. The museum, at 57th Street and Lake Shore Drive, is open from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily and from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekends and holidays.

Olga knows

ARIES (March 21-April 19): No matter how you may feel, Ari, you are not a hamster on a wheel. This week, in fact, you're more apt to resemble a ram on a rampage. Slow down. Raise eyebrow rather than voice. Week ends on key of B, for business, boom and brouhaha.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Messages highlighted. If your circuits are already overloaded, Taurus, perhaps it's time to abolish toll-free number. Meaning becomes clear. Week of decision ends on key of B, for busy — signal and body.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Great expectations of partner/friend can put you in uncomfortable position. If you honestly don't know what the dickens to do, then do nothing. This week, Gem, time and Olga are your two best friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Personal problem needs attention. Don't think you can slap on the proverbial Band-Aid and go merrily on your way. Oh, no. Emotional wound needs air to prevent festering: Week ends on key of C, for choice, charge and change.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Compared to recent weeks, one ahead should be an absolute picnic. Don't limit your abilities, Leo, for you're scheduled to take a giant step forward in area of understanding. Simon says. So does your star.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): Legend has it, Virgo, that you are fussy, fastidious and finicky. But that's not always so. You're human. You have your moments. Why every now and then you do something positively madcap! This may be one of those witless weeks. Week ends on key of F, for flung.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Stop vacillating concerning personal matter, for indecision (your archenemy) impales action. Move it! Before is over, Libra, your February heart melts.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): Romance highlighted. Play game boldly and with your own special brand of dash. Before last day contact Aquarian and plan rendezvous. Week ends on key of G, for grit, grog and getaway.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Challenge ahead. Career/money matters highlighted. Practice patience "the beggar's virtue." This week it could really pay off. Week ends on key of A, for alms.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): Rest on first day, Cap, for by mid-week you're sure to be wired for action. Don't allow casual remark of associate to rile your roof, or you end week walking into walls. Secret message to you, Cap, hidden in words to Saj.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Secret message dispatched. Keep your ears scrubbed so you won't miss a single word. After all, Aquari, you can hardly expect a secret to be delivered via a bullhorn. Week ends on key of G, for gadget, grow and gee-whiz!

PISCES (February 19-March 20): Temptation tiptoes into your private garden and crooks a boney finger. Be wary. Play role of Dr. Faust, Pisces, and it's the devil you'll pay. And pay, And pay.

The packet includes forty-five Roosevelt stamps issued by eleven different countries and five special event covers for $7.50. Also included is a checklist of Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt stamps of the world, an article on "Collecting Rooseveltiania" and an issue of the society's monthly publication "Fireside Chats."

The packet and further information is available from "The Franklin D. Roosevelt Society of Hyde Park, Clinton Corners, N.Y. 12514."

Sylvia Porter's Money Book (Avon Books, October 1976) has some interesting comments about stamps as an investment. Among them: spending by collectors for stamps is rising because stamps are a traditional hedge against inflation; U.S. stamp values increased an average of about 20 per cent a year and sometimes more during the early 1970s; the value of post-1943 U.S. stamps as collectors items has remained at or below their face value.

For anyone considering stamps as an investment I would urge them to read the section in Porter's book carefully, then research the subject thoroughly from there.

Win at bridge

In Monday's article we mentioned that Ted Lightner and Waldemar von Zedtwitz were two of the three players who invented the forcing two-bid. Today they are in their 80s and, while they don't play much bridge, they still do mighty well when they come to the table.

They bid today's hand about forty years ago, but their bidding may well serve as a model today.

There was nothing wrong with Ted's two bid and when Waldy gave him an immediate raise Ted decided to explore for the slam. Hence his rebid to four diamonds.

Waldy looked at his two kings. A lesser player might say to himself, "I have a minimum positive response. I should sign off at four spades."

Not Waldy. He realized that his king and one diamond had to be worth their weight in gold, and bid five diamonds to show second round control.

Ted continued his exploration with the five-heart cue bid and at this point Waldy realized that Ted could not be trying for a slam if he had two club losers. His four trumps looked mighty good and he jumped to six spades.

Now Ted bid seven, since he felt certain that Waldy would show up with just what he did hold and that it would be possible to discard any losing hearts in Waldy's hand on the long diamonds.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know if expert players use the aces over two-bids convention.

The answer is they don't. Once in a blue moon you may find a hand that suits this convention, but those hands don't come up often enough to make the convention of any real value.
